All of the Senators-elect, twenty-six in number, answered to the call of their names, and each one appeared at the bar of the Senate in waiting to take the oath of office prescribed by the Constitution of the State.

At 12:15 o'clock P. M. the committee appointed to wait upon the Judges of the Supreme Court, returned and reported through their Chairman, Senator Gorman, that the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the State of Illinois, Frank K. Dunn, was present, and he thereupon proceeded to administer to each of the members-elect of the Senate, present at the bar of the Senate, the oath of office required by and set forth in the Constitution of the State of Illinois, to which oath each Senator subscribed his name.

The President of the Senate addressed the Senate as follows:

SENATORS—In the past four years this body has made a record in the passage of laws and the enactment of bills of which it may well be proud. By so doing it has put Illinois in the front rank of progressive states. It has been my good fortune to have had the honor of assisting you by being with you as your presiding officer during that time.

The people have decided that during the next four years another shall be your presiding officer. I wish at this time to thank the Senators for their courtesies and kindnesses to me. If, during my association with you, we have had differences, so far as the Chair is concerned, they were only honest differences of opinion and not the result of personal feeling or enmity. Under the circumstances while it is my duty to escort the Senate to the inaugural exercises, at the completion of those exercises, my term being ended, it will not be my privilege to again preside over this body nor will it at that time give me an opportunity to introduce my successor. That being so, I have asked him to appear with me each day in order to familiarize himself with the duties of his office and the workings of the Senate. I now have the pleasure of introducing to you Lieutenant-Governor-elect O'Hara who will be your presiding officer for the next four years.

Acknowledging the introduction, Lieutenant Governor-elect O'Hara said:

The courtesy extended to me by Lieutenant-Governor Oglesby in inviting me here to act as a pupil and to, I trust learn a great deal during the next few days, is only one of many courtesies extended to me by Lieutenant-Governor Oglesby. I have found in Lieutenant-Governor Oglesby a man who measures up to the full standard of a gentleman and I desire to take this occasion, Senators, to express to him my deep and sincere appreciation of the courtesies extended to me and it is my belief that the example that he has set is an example that will make for good citizenship.

The President of the Senate presented the following opinion, which he held would be considered informal for the time being, in order that it should be open for discussion:

In order to make clear the question of the election of the constitutional and statutory officers provided for this body, and to determine the proper legal status covering these cases, I addressed a letter to the Attorney General of the State of Illinois asking for his opinion in general upon the matter.

The attached answer shows the question submitted by me to him and his reply thereto:

STATE OF ILLINOIS,
DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
SPRINGFIELD, Jan. 13, 1913.

Hon. John G. Oglesby, Lieutenant Governor, Springfield, Ill.:

DEAR SIR—In your favor of the 11th inst., you request an opinion upon the following question:

"If a quorum of the membership of the Senate is recorded as being present and a question is presented either by a motion or a resolution for the election of officers provided by the Constitution and the statute and of that quorum present some of the members refrain from voting upon the question, will a majority of those voting elect or does it require a constitutional majority of the membership of the Senate?"

I have given your question careful consideration. Upon such consideration, I have arrived at the conclusion that the proposition presented involves neither a legal nor constitutional question within the meaning of the statute requiring the Attorney General to advise the General Assembly, its officers and committees upon legal and constitutional questions.

The only question presented by your communication, it seems to me, is a question of parliamentary procedure, upon which the Attorney General would not be authorized to express any opinion whatever.

Very respectfully,

W. H. STEAD,

Attorney General.

In conformity with his official opinion, the question of such elections becomes one of parliamentary procedure. That being so, it devolves upon the President of the Senate to determine this question.

In making my decision I have decided to be guided by the public good and need of this State. The elected Senators of this body were sent here by their constituents to represent them and to settle, in a speedy, orderly and dignified manner, the public questions presented to them.

Those Senators who have seen fit, up to this time, to be present in this body and yet take no part in the deliberations of this body, and by their non-voting refuse to let those Senators who are willing to vote determine what, in their judgment, is the best policy for the conduct of this body, to say the least are not performing the duties for which they were sent here.

The question resolves itself, in the opinion of the chair, into whether a constitutional majority of the Senators is required for the election of officers of this body or whether a majority of a quorum of the Senate can so elect. For example: With fifty Senators present, twenty-five answering "present and not voting" and twenty-five voting "aye," can the twenty-five elect? In other words, if a quorum be present can a majority of those voting elect?

Broadly speaking, the action of a parliamentary body is the action of those voting upon any particular proposition providing a quorum is present, unless there is a specified requirement in the Constitution or the statute of the State making it necessary to have a majority of those elected voting in the affirmative. The Constitution and statutes of this State have no such requirement regarding the election of the officers of this Senate.

If the framers of the Constitution had intended that a majority of those elected to the Senate should be required to vote in the affirmative in order to fill the office of president pro tempore, secretary, and statutory offices, the Constitution would have stated so in specific terms. The Constitution is silent on this question. Also the statutes are silent on this question, as no statute has ever been passed by the General Assembly making a constitutional majority of the Senate a requisite for the election of officers of the Senate.

The absence of such a requirement, either by Constitution or by statute, makes the inference inevitable that the vote of a constitutional majority of the Senators is not necessary for valid action except in the specified cases. It is a rule of law that the inclusion of one thing is the exclusion of another. The inclusion in the Constitution or in the statutes of the requirement that a majority of the members elected, or, in other words, a constitutional majority is required in certain instances in the judgment of the chair, excludes anything from such requirement except those so specified.

The only precedent that I am able to find which, in a measure, is applicable to the question presented to me, is in Hinds' Precedents, volume 1, section 2, page 16, where, in the National House of Representatives in 1879, it was held that a speaker might be elected by a majority of those present, a quorum voting, a majority of the members elected not being required.

At the organization of the House the following result was announced:

Randall, 144; Garfield, 125; Wright, 13, and Kelly, 1. The total membership of the House, however, was 293 and the vote for Randall fell short of a majority of that number. Randall was declared elected.

It was decided that a majority of those voting to elect a speaker was sufficient. The rule required that a quorum shall vote. Since 1890 the requirement has been the quorum present rather than the quorum voting.

In the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States sustaining such a ruling by Speaker Reid, the court used this language:

"And here the general rule of all parliamentary bodies is that when a quorum is present the act of the majority of the quorum is the act of the body itself."

In other words, those Senators who refused to vote but who nevertheless, by their presence here, show that they are taking part in the workings of this Senate and are in fact participating in the deliberations of this Senate, are, in accordance with the unquestioned practice of this body for the past four years, to be counted present for the purpose of determining a quorum. Those sitting quietly and refusing to vote are silently acquiescing in the action of the majority of those voting, because if this is not so they would have the right, at any time, to intervene and vote against such action being taken by those voting aye. By not choosing so to do, they are practically giving their assent to the actions taken by those voting aye, those voting aye being a majority of those voting, a quorum being present. That being so, the chair will rule that if a quorum of this body is present, that upon all questions a majority of those voting will decide any question presented to this body not otherwise covered by constitutional or statutory provisions, providing that a quorum is always present, and if the Senators who help to constitute the quorum by their presence do not care to vote and take part in the deliberations of this body, then they shall not show their approval by supinely sitting and not voting, at the same time objecting to a majority of those voting ruling.

It is within their province to break a quorum by leaving the Senate Chamber, but so long as they are present and by their presence silently acquiesce in the acts done by those Senators who are performing their duty by voting, then they shall be governed by the majority of those voting.

As a further citation of my authority in making this resolution, I first refer to rule 54 of the Senate rules of the State of Illinois, under which the preceding Senate, that of the Forty-seventh General Assembly, operated.

This rule reads:

The rules of parliamentary practice comprised in Cushing's Parliamentary Law shall govern the Senate in all cases to which they are applicable and in which they are not inconsistent with the standing rules and orders of the Senate.

That being so, I refer [to] 4, paragraph 24a, of rules and proceeding and debate in deliberative assemblies by Luther S. Cushing's new edition which reads as follows:

"Unless there be a regulation, to the contrary, when a quorum of a body is present and its journal properly shows their presence, a proposition is carried by a majority of the votes cast."

By direction of the President of the Senate, the roll of the Senate was called and the following answered to their names:

By unanimous consent, Mr. Hay, offered the following resolution, which was adopted:

SENATE RESOLUTION No. 16.

WHEREAS, Pursuant to joint resolution passed by the Forty-sixth General Assembly, a commission was created for the proper celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, and,

WHEREAS, The creation of said commission led to the formation of the Lincoln Centennial Association, the purpose of which was to annually commemorate, in proper manner, in the city of Springfield, the anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln,

WHEREAS, Said association, at its annual celebration, February 12, 1913, will have as its guests and principal speakers, Baron von Bernstorff, Ambassador, Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary from his Majesty, the Emperor of Germany to the United States, and the Hon. Joseph W. Bailey, late Senator of the United States from the state of Texas; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That it is the sense of the membership of the Senate of the Forty-eighth General Assembly that a joint session of the Forty-eighth General Assembly should be held in the House of Representatives, in the Capitol, on February 12, 1913, at the hour of 2:30 o'clock p. m., and that Baron von Bernstorff and the Hon. Joseph W. Bailey be invited to address such joint assembly, and further

Mr. Hurburgh offered the following resolution:

Mr. Jones raised the point of order that the Senate could not elect the President pro tempore by resolution, but that nomination for that office should be made from the floor of the Senate.

Mr. Hay raised the point of order that the point made by Senator Jones was not correct, as it was within the province of the Senate to decide how its officers should be elected.

The President of the Senate thereupon ruled that the point of order made by Mr. Hay was correct, and that therefore the point of order made by Mr. Jones was overruled.

Mr. Jones, then asked for a division of the question on the resolution and asked that the vote on the election of President pro tempore be taken separate from the election of other officers, provided for by the resolution.

The President of the Senate then ruled that a division of the question should be taken as asked for by Mr. Jones, unless otherwise ordered by the Senate.

Mr. Hay moved that the Senate proceed to the election of the officers provided for by the resolution as an entirety and that the question on the adoption of the resolution should not be divided.

Mr. Cleary raised the point of order that the motion made by Mr. Hay was not in order, as it was not an amendment to the resolution now before the House.

The President of the Senate then made the following ruling:

The Chair rules, going back to his decision, from which decision no appeal was taken by the Senator from Cook, Mr. Jones, that the point of order now raised by the Senator from JoDaviess, Mr. Cleary, is not in order.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The President of the Senate presented the following communication from the Attorney General:

STATE OF ILLINOIS,
DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE, SPRINGFIELD.
January 28, 1913.

Hon. J. H. Paddock, Secretary of the Senate, Springfield, Ill.:

DEAR SIR—In your letter of the 22d instant, I am advised that the Senate desires to be informed,

“whether it is legal and constitutional to introduce bills into the Senate after they have completed their organization, but prior to the organization of the House of Representatives as required by the Constitution.”

In reply thereto, I would say that the Senate, having both a presiding and recording officer, can, in my judgment, transact all legislative business which may be brought before it unless prohibited by some provision of the Constitution, irrespective of whether or not the House of Representatives has organized.

I fail to find any provision of the Constitution which inhibits the Senate from transacting legislative business.

I do not regard section 4 of Article V of the Constitution, which requires the returns of the election for constitutional State officers to be made to the Secretary of State and directed to “the Speaker of the House of Representatives,” and requiring the Speaker “immediately after the organization of the House and before proceeding to other business” to open and publish the same and to declare the result to be a limitation upon the power of the Senate. As I construe this section, it is simply a limitation upon the power of the House of Representatives.

Very respectfully,

W. H. STEAD,
Attorney General.

The President of the Senate presented a communication from the Institute of International Agriculture, of Rome, Italy, which, by his direction, was referred to the Committee on Agriculture.

The President of the Senate presented a communication from Herbert Myrick, President, Coöperative Finance League, transmitting copy of a bill providing for farm finance. The communication and accompanying bill were, by direction of the President of the Senate, referred to the Committee on Agriculture.

At 5:10 o'clock p. m., on motion of Mr. Hay, the Senate adjourned.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 29, 1913, 10:00 O'CLOCK A. M.

Senate met pursuant to adjournment.

Hon. John G. Oglesby, Lieutenant Governor and President of the Senate, presiding.

Prayer by the Chaplain.

The President of the Senate announced that he had examined the Journal of yesterday and found no changes or corrections to be made, and if the Senate had no changes or corrections to offer, the Journal would be ordered to stand approved. No corrections being offered, the Journal was ordered to stand approved.

The President of the Senate made the following announcement:

A policeman is hereby assigned for duty at each side door of the Senate Chamber, said policeman to be designated by the Sergeant-at-Arms.

Janitors will report to the Sergeant-at-Arms, who will assign to them their work and the hours that they would be required to be in the Senate Chamber.

Robert L. Jones is assigned as Republican Cloak-Room Janitor until March 1, his place then to be taken by Benjamin H. Lucas, until the close of the Session.

Farrall McCullom is assigned as Janitor to the Democratic Cloak-Room.

The following having passed the Civil Service Examination are hereby appointed permanent stenographers of the Senate:

Hattie Wagner, Catherine McCarthy, Stella E. Harvey, Avis D. Dawson, Helen Ryan.

He announced that several stenographers were not present to take the examination on yesterday, and they, with others, desiring to take the examination would report today at 3:00 o'clock p. m., to Senator Magill in the Senate Chamber at which time the second and last examination would be held.

The Chair announced that he entered no orders except those approved of by the Senate. He announced that until otherwise provided all stenographers and committee clerks would report to the Chairman on Contingent Expenses for assignment to duty.

The following communication was read and under Rule 42, was referred by the President of the Senate to the Committee on Elections, together with the accompanying papers:

January 9, 1913.

To the Honorable the President of the Senate:

SIR—In compliance with the provisions of the Statutes, I transmit herewith sundry papers relating to contests in the following cases, filed in this office on or before Jan. 8, 1913:

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 2.

WHEREAS, The Sixty-Second Congress of the United States of America at the second session begun and held at the City of Washington on Monday, the 4th day of December, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred Eleven, by a vote of two-thirds of both houses, proposed an amendment to the constitution of the United States, which should be valid to all intents and purposes as a part of the constitution of the United States when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the states, which resolution is in words and figures following, to wit:

JOINT RESOLUTION.

Proposing an amendment to the Constitution providing that Senators shall be elected by the people of the several states.

Resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress Assembled (two-thirds of each House concurring herein); That in lieu of the first paragraph of section three of Article I of the constitution of the United States, and in lieu of so much of paragraph two of the same section as relates to the filling of vacancies, the following be proposed as an amendment to the Constitution, which shall be valid to all intents and purposes as part of the Constitution when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the states:

"The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each state, elected by the people thereof, for six years, and each Senator shall have one vote. The electors in each state shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the state legislatures.

"When vacancies happen in the representation of any state in the Senate, the executive authority of such state shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies: Provided, that the legislature of any state may empower the executive thereof to make temporary appointments until the people fill the vacancies by election as the legislature may direct.

"This amendment shall not be so construed as to affect the election or term of any Senator chosen before it becomes valid as part of the Constitution." Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Senate, the House of Representatives concurring herein, That the State of Illinois by its Legislature ratifies and assents to said amendment so proposed by the congress of the United States.

Mr. Magill offered the following resolution, which was read and under Rule 42, was referred by the President of the Senate to the Committee on Constitutional Amendments:

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 3.

Resolved by the Senate of the State of Illinois, the House of Representatives concurring therein, That there shall be submitted to the electors of this State for adoption or rejection at the next election of members of the General Assembly, a proposition to amend Article IV of the Constitution of this State by adding thereto an additional section, to be known as Section 35, to read as follows:

Sec. 35. The people reserve power to propose and to enact laws as herein provided. Eight per cent of the electors of the State may propose an Act by initiative petition, verified as to signatures, and filed with the Secretary of State not less than thirty days prior to the date of convening of any regular session of the General Assembly. The Secretary of State shall transmit a certified copy of the proposed Act to the House of Representatives and to the Senate at the convening of the next regular session of the General Assembly, and the same shall be treated as a bill introduced in the name of the People. Unless such proposed Act shall, without change become a law by regular legislative enactment within one year after the date of convening of the General Assembly, the Secretary of State shall submit the same by its title to the electors at the next general election: Provided, that if a proposed Act shall be placed upon its final passage in each house, and shall fail in each house to receive the affirmative votes of one-fourth of the members elected, it shall not be so submitted. If a proposed act when submitted to the electors, shall be approved by a majority of the electors voting on the proposition, it shall become a law, and take effect on the first day of January next thereafter.

All laws enacted under the provisions of this section may be subsequently amended or repealed by the General Assembly, and they shall be subject to the same constitutional provisions and limitations as are Acts passed by the General Assembly: Provided, such provisions and limitations are not inconsistent with the provisions of this section.

The people reserve power to reject laws passed by the General Assembly, and to stay the time of their taking effect, as herein provided. Five per cent of the electors of the State, by a referendum petition, verified as to signatures, and filed with the Secretary of State before the taking effect of an act, may require that such act shall not take effect until submitted to the electors. The Secretary of State shall submit such Act by its title to the electors at the next general election, and if rejected by a majority of the electors voting on the proposition it shall become void, otherwise it shall take effect on the first day of January next thereafter. Acts passed in case of emergency by a vote of two-thirds of all the members of each house, and Acts making appropriations for the ordinary and contingent expenses of the Government or of any existing institution of the State, shall not be subject to referendum petition. All acts shall take effect as provided in section 13 of this article, except that no Act subject to referendum petition shall take effect within less than thirty days after it becomes a law, and, provided further, that one per cent of the electors of the State, by referendum petition, verified as to signatures and filed with the Secretary of State before the taking effect of an Act, may require that such Act shall not take effect until ninety days after it became a law, pending the filing of a petition supplementing and completing the said referendum petition.

The Governor, Attorney General and Secretary of State shall constitute a board to pass upon the sufficiency of every initiative and referendum petition, and when approved by them its sufficiency shall not be questioned in any court. A finding of the board that a petition is not sufficient may be reviewed upon a petition for mandamus filed in the Supreme Court within thirty days. The total vote cast at the last general election shall be the basis upon which the required per cent of electors herein specified shall be estimated, and not less than fifty per cent of the signatures required shall be of electors residing outside of the county of Cook, and the required per cent of the electors of a majority of the counties of the State shall be necessary to make valid a petition. This amendment shall be self-executing, but appropriate legislation may be enacted regulating the details of its operation.

The verification of signatures herein required shall establish the fact that each signer is an elector, and that the signing of the petition was his free and voluntary act.

Mr. Magill offered the following resolution, which was read and under Rule 42, was referred by the President of the Senate to the Committee on Constitutional Amendments.

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 4.

Resolved, by the Senate of the State of Illinois, the House of Representatives concurring herein, That there shall be submitted to the electors of this State, for adoption or rejection, at the next election of members of the General Assembly, a proposition to amend Sections seven (7) and eight (8) of Article IV of the Constitution of this State, so that the same shall read as follows:

Section 7. The House of Representatives shall consist of three times the number of the members of the Senate, and the term of office shall be two years. Until otherwise provided by law, as authorized in Section 8 of this article, three Representatives shall be elected in each Senatorial District at the general election in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and sixteen, and every two years thereafter. In voting for Representatives in the General Assembly each qualified elector may cast one vote for each of the three candidates, and the three candidates highest in votes shall be declared elected.

Section 8. In lieu of electing three Representatives from each Senatorial District, as provided by Section 7 of this article, the General Assembly may, at the time the State is apportioned into Senatorial Districts, divide the State into one hundred and fifty-three representative districts, each of which shall elect one Representative in the General Assembly, and the term of office shall be two years. The population of the State, as ascertained by the Federal census, shall be divided by the number one hundred and fifty-three, and the quotient shall be the ratio of representation in the House of Representatives. Representative Districts shall be formed of contiguous and compact territory, and contain, as nearly as practicable, an equal number of inhabitants, but no representative district shall contain less than four-fifths of the representative ratio.

Mr. Magill offered the following resolution, which was read and under Rule 42, was referred by the President of the Senate to the Committee on Contingent Expenses.

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 5.

Resolved, by the Senate, the House of Representatives Concurring Herein, That in all contested election cases involving seats in either House of the General Assembly a sum not to exceed five hundred dollars for attorney's fees be allowed to the sitting member, and not to exceed the same amount to the successful contestant, and that no attorney's fees or other expenses shall be allowed to any unsuccessful contestant.

Mr. Juul offered the following resolution, which was read and under Rule 42, was referred by the President of the Senate to the Committee on Constitutional Amendments.

if sections one (1), three (3), nine (9) and ten (10) of this article of the Constitution did not exist: Provided, however, that any tax levied upon personal property must be uniform as to persons and property of the same class within the jurisdiction of the body imposing the same, and all exemptions from taxation shall be by general law and shall be revocable by the General Assembly at any time.

Resolved, further, That the said proposed amendment to Article IX of the Constitution shall be submitted to the electors of this State for adoption or rejection at the next election of members of the General Assembly in the manner now provided by law.

Mr. O'Connor offered the following resolution, which was read and under Rule 39, was laid on the table for one day.

WHEREAS, The number of divorces throughout the United States has been increasing during the past fifty years at an alarming rate, and under the present system there is no uniform law covering this subject in the several states, and,

WHEREAS, At the present time the several states are operating under laws so entirely divergent that the legitimacy of children is often made a serious question, and property rights are frequently uncertain, and

WHEREAS, The question is one that strikes at the very foundation of our social organization and we deem it necessary and proper that the law in relation thereto should be uniform throughout the United States, and that such law should be so safeguarded that fraudulent divorces cannot be secured, now, therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Senate, The House of Representatives Concurring Herein, That we instruct our Senators in Congress and request our Representatives at Washington to use their best endeavors to have Congress propose an amendment to the constitution of the United States, whereby the Congress may pass laws regulating the subject of marriage and divorce throughout the United States.

WHEREAS, Under the Constitution and Laws certain matters must be specifically set forth in said journals in reference to the passage of laws by the General Assembly; and,

WHEREAS, The recent decision of our Supreme Court in the case of Neiberger v. McCullough, 253 Ill. 312, it was there expressly held that unless certain matters were affirmatively shown by the journal of each House in reference to the passage of any law, that the same would be void; and,

WHEREAS, By reason of the decision in said Neiberger case a number of our laws have been attacked on the ground that they were not properly passed, as shown by the journals; and,

WHEREAS, No person is particularly blameable in the matter of keeping the journals, it was commonly understood that they were correct in every particular until said decision of the Supreme Court; and,

WHEREAS, To avoid any similar question arising in the future, it is necessary to see that the journals of each House comply with the matters set forth in the decision of our Supreme Court, as aforesaid; therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate, the House of Representatives Concurring Herein, That a committee of six be appointed, three to be named by the President of the Senate, and three by the Speaker of the House, to examine the manner of the keeping of the journals in both Houses, so as to comply with the holdings of our Supreme Court, and that the said committee report at the earliest possible moment.

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 9.

Resolved, by the Senate of the State of Illinois, the House of Representatives Concurring Therein, That there shall be submitted to the electors of this State for adoption or rejection at the next election of members of the General Assembly, a proposition to amend Article IV of the Constitution of this State by adding thereto an additional section, to be known as section 35, to read as follows:

Sec. 35. The people reserve power to propose and to enact laws as herein provided. Eight per cent of the electors of the State may propose an act by initiative petition, verified as to signatures, and filed with the Secretary of State not less than thirty days prior to the date of convening of any regular session of the General Assembly. The Secretary of State shall transmit a certified copy of the proposed Act to the House of Representatives and to the Senate at the convening of the next regular session of the General Assembly, and the same shall be treated as a bill introduced in the name of the People. Unless such proposed act shall, without change, become a law by regular legislative enactment within one year after the date of convening of the General Assembly, the Secretary of State shall submit the same by its title to the electors at the next general election: Provided, that if a proposed Act shall be placed upon its final passage in each House, and shall fail in each House to receive the affirmative votes of one-fourth of the members elected, it shall not be so submitted. If a proposed Act, when submitted to the electors, shall be approved by a majority of the electors voting on the proposition, it shall become a law, and take effect on the first day of January next thereafter.

All laws enacted under the provisions of this section may be subsequently amended or repealed by the General Assembly, and they shall be subject to the same constitutional provisions and limitations as are Acts passed by the General Assembly: Provided, such provisions and limitations are not inconsistent with the provisions of this section.

The people reserve power to reject laws passed by the General Assembly, and to stay the time of their taking effect, as herein provided. Five per cent of the electors of the State, by a referendum petition, verified as to signatures, and filed with the Secretary of State before the taking effect of an Act, may require that such Act shall not take effect until submitted to the electors. The Secretary of State shall submit such Act by its title to the electors at the next general election, and if rejected by a majority of the electors voting on the proposition it shall become void, otherwise it shall take effect on the first day of January next thereafter. Acts passed in case of emergency by a vote of two-thirds of all the members of each House, and Acts making appropriations for the ordinary and contingent expenses of the government or of any existing institution of the State, shall not be subject to referendum petition. All Acts shall take effect as provided in Section 13 of this Article, except that no Act subject to referendum petition shall take effect within less than thirty days after it becomes a law: and provided further, that one per cent of the electors of the State, by referendum petition, verified as to signatures and filed with the Secretary of State before the taking effect of an Act, may require that such Act shall not take effect until ninety days after it became a law, pending the filing of a petition supplementing and completing the said referendum petition.

The Governor, Attorney General and Secretary of State shall constitute a board to pass upon the sufficiency of every initiative and referendum petition, and when approved by them its sufficiency shall not be questioned in any court. A finding of the board that a petition is not sufficient may be reviewed upon a petition for mandamus filed in the Supreme Court within thirty days. The total vote cast at the last general election shall be the basis upon which the required per cent of electors herein specified shall be estimated, and not less than fifty per cent of the signatures required shall be of electors residing outside of the county of Cook. This amendment shall be self-executing, but appropriate legislation may be enacted regulating the details of its operation.

INTEREST ON PUBLIC FUNDS.

Up to Feb. 1, 1912, the departments and institutions, having deposits in banks, reported that they had required the payment of interest on same as follows:

Grain office, Chicago.....	$ 8,585 92
Grain office, East St. Louis.....	1,883 81

Total.....	$488,601 74

Since Feb. 1, 1912, the State Treasurer has made an additional payment of interest of $67,430.68, and there is also in process of collection approximately $20,000.00 in interest, which, when collected, will be paid into the State treasury. The sum of these amounts, $87,430.68, added to the interest accrued to Feb. 1, 1912, $488,601.74, makes a total of $576,032.42. Interest has also accrued to funds belonging to departments other than the State treasury, the exact amounts I have not at hand, but it is safe that approximately $600,000.00 interest on public funds has accrued to the State since my administration began.

THE PUBLIC CHARITIES.

The present method of administering the State charitable institutions, as well as the character of the service rendered by them, has been the result of the adoption of a general program for their improvement. This program was of a comprehensive character. It embraced the physical rehabilitation of buildings, grounds and equipment; the re-organization of the medical and nursing service; and of a change in the method of general business administration, and the assumption by the State of the complete custody, care and treatment of all insane or feeble-minded persons in public institutions in this State.

The general features of the plan or program for improving the condition and service of these institutions were determined upon at a conference of the State Board of Charities, the superintendents of the State charitable institutions and the Governor in 1905.

The work was begun in 1905, when the State Architect and a consulting engineer, under my direction, made a complete survey of the State buildings used in this service and prepared a report to the General Assembly and the Governor. The report showed the present condition, the improvements necessary and the estimated cost of such improvements. The sum required to place the State charitable institutions in satisfactory condition was much larger than had been anticipated and the appropriations made by the General Assembly were inadequate to carry out completely the improvements required. Nevertheless, with such appropriation as has been made, the work has gone steadily forward ever since. The condition of the buildings and equipment of the State charitable institutions has been much improved and Illinois institutions of this character will now bear favorable comparison with those of any other State.

In addition to the work of rehabilitating the old buildings used by the State charitable institutions, many new buildings have been erected and other permanent improvements effected at an aggregate cost during the past eight years of $3,949,931.00.

These improvements have included special hospitals for insane patients suffering from tuberculosis; cottages for tuberculosis patients; the enlargement and improvement of heating plants; the making of buildings fireproof; the purchase of additional land; cottage homes for attendants and nurses; farm colonies; infirmaries; additional water supplies and improved systems of fire protection; fire-escapes; hospitals for the acute sick; power plants; the erection of power houses; the removal of old and installation of new plumbing systems; the erection of cold storage and ice plants; new paving in hospital grounds and in adjacent streets; sanitary dairy barns; and enlargement of old and building of new gymnasiums and play rooms; the establishment of workshops for industrial re-education of the insane; the establishment and equipment of psychopathic institute at Kankakee; and the erection of new hospital buildings and many other improvements.

In addition to this, an appropriation of $500,000.00 has been made for the selection of a site and preliminary work upon a new State hospital, and an appropriation of $75,000.00 for the buildings and equipment of a surgical institution for crippled children.

The medical and nursing service has also been reorganized and systematized in a most thorough and comprehensive manner, as shown below:

1. At Kankakee State Hospital there has been established a psychopathic institute for the education and training of State hospital physicians in nervous and mental disorders and symptoms, methods of treatment and cure, and for scientific research and investigation into the causes of insanity with the purpose of discovering cures for forms of insanity now deemed incurable. The physicians employed by the State are required to attend this institute from six weeks to three months each year. Each physician brings with him the experience gained in his work at the State hospital with which he is connected and takes away with him deductions as to the treatment of insanity which are the result of the combined experience of the physicians in all the State institutions.

It is worth comment here that when the Illinois Psychopathic Institute was established there was only one other such State institute in the United States, that at Ann Arbor, Michigan.

2. There have been established at each of the State institutions for the insane psychopathic hospitals where new patients are received, their cases carefully diagnosed by the entire hospital staff of physicians and the curable and non-curable cases classified before they are assigned to the hospital wards suited to their treatment.

3. Mechanical restraints have been abandoned and medical restraints also except when administered under the immediate direction of a physician. In place of these there has been instituted a mild therapeutic or water treatment of the insane. The apparatus installed in our State hospitals for this treatment is equal to that found in the best public or private institutions in the world.

4. There has been a complete reorganization of the medical administration in hospitals for the insane with uniform records and laboratories established in each, looking to the most humane and scientific system of care and cure.

5. The segregation of consumptives in quarters especially adapted to such purposes has been provided for, to protect those not having consumption from infection, and to cure or improve those suffering from the "great white plague."

6. Compulsory training schools for nurses and attendants at which nurses and attendants are required to pursue courses of study from two to four years have been established, with conferring of certificates and diplomas upon graduates therefrom.

7. New buildings of the pure hospital type for the treatment of new cases of insanity and of insane persons suffering from other forms of disease, such as pneumonia, typhoid fever, etc., have been erected.

8. Systems of industrial re-education of the chronic insane, which abolish the curse of idleness, fit many cases for discharge from the hospitals and save the State money, have been introduced.

9. Dietitians are employed to prepare a healthful, nutritious and varied dietary for the State charitable institutions, and a monthly statement is sent to each institution by the State Board of Administration, giving a summary of the dietaries of all institutions.

Besides the physical rehabilitation of the State charitable institutions and the reorganization of their medical and nursing service, a change has been made in the business administration of the institutions from the supervision formerly exercised by local boards of trustees at each institution to that of a central State body, the State Board of Administration, in which all general administrative powers are lodged and the members of which devote their entire time to the performance of this work.

The Act creating the State Board of Administration was passed at the 1909 session of the General Assembly and is known as The Code of Charities for the State of Illinois. As the powers and functions of the State Board of Administration are of a purely administrative character, there was also created by the same Act a Charities Commission, with powers of a visitatorial character and clothed with the responsibility of criticising defects and recommending improvements in the administration, service and equipment of the State charitable institutions.

The change has been beneficial in many ways. It has effected a great saving in the cost of maintaining the institutions. Comparing operating expenses for the years 1910 and 1911 with those for the year 1909, the last year under the management of boards of trustees, there has been a reduction of the per capita expense of maintaining the seventeen State charitable institutions (excluding the Chicago State Hospital at Dunning which came under State supervision on July, 1912) for the two years of $483,106.89; or, comparing for the same periods the bills incurred for ordinary current expenses, there has been a saving of $389,802.63.

The general result has been a great increase of efficiency accompanied by greater economy and uniformity of service, placing all institutions upon a level with the best similar institutions in this country or in Europe.

The taking over of the Dunning institution by the State was accomplished under the Act passed in 1907 providing for the complete State care of the insane. Previous to this enactment many insane persons had been kept in county almshouses and the care bestowed upon them there had long been a disgrace to the State. This law provided that the insane should be first removed from county institutions outside of Cook County. The work of transferring them began immediately after the passage of the Act and was completed on July 1st of the present year. At that time, under the terms of the Act, the Cook County institution was transferred to the State and was renamed the Chicago State Hospital. All together, no less than 5,000 persons have been removed from county almshouses and the institution at Dunning under this law.

The great advancement made in the State charitable service, of which some account has been given in the preceding paragraphs, has required the enactment of a great mass of new legislation upon the subject. In the past twenty years there were placed upon the Illinois statute books twenty-eight laws relating to the administration of our State charitable institutions, twenty-five of which were passed during the last eight years.

The burden of caring for the insane is a growing one. During the eight years of my administration the population in the State hospitals grew from 12,174 to 18,944 (the latter being the population Dec. 1, 1912), showing the gain in population of 6,770 against a gain of 8,074 in the preceding twenty years.

The net annual increase of insane—that is, the numerical excess of those admitted to State institutions over those discharged therefrom—is approximately 400. As the maximum number capable of being properly cared for in a well-equipped hospital was estimated by the State Commissioners of Public Charities at from 1,200 to 1,500 this increase of population will necessitate the erection of a new State hospital every four years or during each administration if the policy outlined by the Board of Charities is pursued. The present State institutions are crowded to their limits and a new hospital for the insane, which has been provided for and its location fixed at Alton by the State Board of Administration, is sorely needed.

The financial burden of this branch of the public service therefore, will never be less. Advancing years will entail greater expenditures for repairs on old buildings and new institutions will become necessary, both from a natural increase in the classes now under the State care and from an extension of the State's functions in response to a broadening sense of public duty.

There is now an urgent demand that the State take care of its epileptics. The necessity for this has been recognized for years. In 1899 an Act to establish a State colony for epileptics was passed and commissioners appointed to select a location; but no action was taken because no appropriation was made for the construction and equipment of buildings.

Since that time the matter has been repeatedly called to the attention of the General Assembly and the establishment of such a colony recommended. In 1907 the State Board of Charities requested an appropriation of $365,000.00 for this purpose and I submitted their recommendation to the General Assembly with an urgent appeal for its favorable consideration, as I did also in my biennial messages of 1909 and 1911, and as I do in my present message. I cannot too earnestly recommend to this General Assembly the founding of such a charity. At present the epileptic is practically without State care. The epileptic child of the poor cannot be admitted to any orphanage maintained by the State, nor can he, when mature, be admitted to any State hospital for the insane for he is not insane. It is only when repeated convulsions render him demented that he is eligible for admission into any State institution. The establishment of an epileptic colony is one of the most urgent needs in public service of the State, and I trust that this General Assembly will not adjourn without passing the necessary legislation and making the necessary appropriations for this public necessity.

A new branch of the public service which has been placed under the supervision of the State Board of Administration is that in charge of the State Agent for the Visitation of Children, an office created in 1905 to visit children placed under orders of courts in public or private homes. In 1905 the General Assembly made an appropriation of $4,500.00 per year for carrying on this work. In 1907 the appropriation was increased to $5,500.00 per year, and in 1909 to $11,300.00 per year. Prior to the last increase in appropriation there was but one visitor engaged under the State Agent to do this work. Now there are three. Four thousand five hundred children are now under the supervision of this department.

In 1911 another Act was passed providing for the maintenance of the children of poor and worthy parents at their own homes, subject to the friendly visitation of a public officer. The amount allowed in such cases has been left entirely to the discretion of the court, upon whose order the county authorities are directed to pay the amount designated to the parents of such dependent children.

CIVIL SERVICE.

The first State Civil Service Law enacted at the regular session of 1905 went into effect November 1st of that year. In my inaugural message I had recommended the enactment of a State-wide civil service law applicable to the charitable and penal institutions of the State. The law enacted, however, was made applicable to the seventeen State charitable institutions only. Under this law 2,269 employees in the public service passed from a political to a merit basis of employment.

Two years ago I recommended to your honorable body that the Civil Service Act of 1905 be amended to extend the application of civil service to other State institutions, in harmony with the judgment of the people as expressed in their vote upon this question of public policy.

The amendment of 1911, which followed, added about 2,500 employees to the civil service of the State, making a total of 4,900 out of 5,700 State employees, or over 80 per cent of the entire State service, subject to the provisions of the State Civil Service Law.

The following comparisons of progress in the application of civil service principles to the public service show the unusual rapidity with which the principle has been applied in this State.

The federal civil service law was enacted in 1883. It now embraces 230,000 out of a total of 370,000 employees, or 60 per cent of the federal service. The Wisconsin civil service law was enacted in 1905. One thousand fifty-seven out of 2,831 employees in the public service of Wisconsin are now under civil service, or slightly more than 30 per cent.

This enlarged application of the Civil Service Law has greatly increased the work of the State Civil Service Commission. The number of persons applying for civil service examination is constantly increasing. During the year ending Dec. 1, 1912, 6,831 persons had applied for examination. During the six years ending Dec. 1, 1912, 29,808 persons had applied for examination. Approximately 11,000 appointments have been made and 3,000 civil service employees have been discharged from the public service for various causes. In the administration of the Civil Service Law an efficiency record of employees has recently been introduced, showing, as to each employee, the number of days worked and the character of the service rendered by him. If the efficiency record of any employee falls below 70 per cent for any month, it automatically supplies causes for bringing of charges.

Under this system the service has been greatly improved. No business institution in the State has a better system of checks upon its employees and their service. It is a wise economy for the State to have a department specializing upon the important subject of the service rendered by its employees, and supervision by the Civil Service Commission under this efficiency system should be advantageously extended wherever suitable.

There are many positions still exempt from the Civil Service Law which should be under it, and I recommend its further extension to include clerks, watchmen and all other positions routine in the character of their work and in which efficiency and quality of service are dependent upon security of office.

RAILROAD AND WAREHOUSE COMMISSION.

One of the branches of the public business in which radical changes have been effected since the beginning of my administration is that over which the Railroad and Warehouse Commission exercises jurisdiction. Since that time a great variety of acts have added largely to the duties and responsibilities of this commission. These acts include:

Act providing for the inspection of equipment and operation of safety appliances on all railroads engaged in moving traffic between points in the State of Illinois and appointing an inspector of safety appliances;

Act to promote the safety of employees and travelers upon railroads by compelling common carriers to equip their cars with automatic couplers and continuous brakes;

Act to establish and regulate the maximum rate charges for the transportation of passengers, reducing the rate from 3 cents to 2 cents per mile;

Act in relation to the crossing of one railway by another, requiring railroads to apply to the commission before such crossing can be established and empowering the commission to regulate the kinds to be constructed. More overhead and subway crossings have been ordered by the commission during the last eight years than in all the former history of the State;

Act to regulate the size and manner of construction of caboose cars;

Act requiring common carriers of freight to maintain side tracks and connections for shippers and receivers of freight;

Act to provide for the punishment of any person who drinks any intoxicating liquors, or who is intoxicated in, or upon any railroad passenger cars or in or about any railroad station or platform, and conductors to make arrests therefor;

Act in regard to uniform bills of lading;

Act in regard to uniform warehouse receipts.

The entire act establishing a Board of Railroad and Warehouse Commissioners was, in a large measure, rewritten and amended in 1911.

This extension of the powers and responsibilities of the Railroad and Warehouse Commission was made in response to a growing demand for the more general public regulation of corporations exercising quasi public functions. This subject was discussed in my last biennial message and the recommendation there made that "the entire Act relating to the commission should be rewritten and revised and the powers of the commission very materially enlarged."

In the same message, in discussing the general question of the regulation of public utilities, I further stated "in my judgment authority should be given to the Railroad and Warehouse Commission, or to a commission created for this specific purpose, to gather and publish all facts regarding the cost of construction, maintenance and operation of public utility corporations with power to require service adequate to the public needs, and to fix rates which will be fair to the public, will insure to investors a reasonable return upon their investment and will offer inducement for the investment of private capital in public service corporations and stimulate their growth as the public needs may require."

I also recommend specific enlargements of the powers of the Railroad and Warehouse Commission, among which were the following:

1. Power to prescribe rules and regulations for installing telegraph and telephone wires, and trolley wires over railroad tracks.

2. That the commission be given power to compel railroad companies to install and maintain physical connections at crossings and junctions for the interchange of business.

3. That the commission should have authority to establish joint through rates for the movement of freight over two or more railroads.

4. That the commission should have power to compel railroads to file their tariff schedules with the Railroad and Warehouse Commission.

5. That no increase of rates should be permitted to become effective in less than 30 days from the date of filing notice of such increase.

6. That the commission should have authority to compel all railroads to provide reasonable facilities at all stations on their line for the transaction of business.

7. That no railroad be permitted to discontinue stations or track facilities without, consent of the commission.

8. That there be such legislation as would place express companies under the supervision of the commission.

Through amendments to the Act creating the Railroad and Warehouse Commission passed at the following session of the General Assembly, the Legislature gave to the commission practically all of the powers recommended, and, in addition, the power to fix and establish rates and rules regarding demurrage, storage and the charges incident to the transportation of property in this State.

The additional powers then conferred by the General Assembly upon the commission also included the power to establish reasonable switching rules and regulations and to require reasonable limits for such switching and reasonable rates therefor; also the power to inquire into the business management of all common carriers, their passenger and switching rates, the distribution of cars, the granting of sidings, etc.

The result is that the Illinois Railroad and Warehouse Commission now possesses as much power in this State as the Interstate Commerce Commission exercises over interstate commerce and today but few states exercise more complete public control over transportation matters than Illinois.

That these enlargements of authority have worked satisfactorily is to be attributed largely to the fact that the amendments to the Railroad and Warehouse Act above referred to were drafted by the commission after thorough discussion of the subject at a meeting of the commission with the representatives of the railroads and shippers called for the purpose. The bill to amend the Act was there presented for consideration, and after a number of conferences between the common carriers, the shippers and the commission the bill afterwards passed by the General Assembly was agreed upon.

In the report of the commission will be found detailed information regarding the work of the commission under these numerous enactments and you are especially referred to that report for an account of the operation of the new laws relating to express companies, boat lines water transportation, freight rates, new methods of inspection, and the inspection of railroad accidents.

The purely administrative work of the commission has been very thorough and has been conducted along lines designed to make the advantages of this work more immediately and extensively available both to the general public and to those engaged in the transportation business. With this purpose in view the commission has recently catalogued its entire library, composed of 2,000 volumes, and has distributed such catalogues to all of the commissioners of the United States and Canada and to public libraries in the State of Illinois and to many colleges and high school libraries and many attorneys throughout the State. This catalogue, with the present indexing of the subject matters contained therein, is a very valuable acquisition to the State. But two other states in the Union have such a library as Illinois, and have it catalogued and indexed both by subjects and authors.

DECISIONS AND RULINGS.

The commission has also revised and compiled all its decisions and had them reprinted in one volume. This is now ready for distribution, and will be distributed to the railroads, shippers and other persons interested in transportation throughout the State. This volume is practically a library within itself, giving in concise form, thoroughly indexed, the decisions and rulings of the commission from 1889 to 1912.

PUBLICITY.

The commission realizing the need of the public for more information in relation to the power, authority and workings of the commission began the publication of a synopsis of its proceedings, containing a brief statement of each case disposed of and printing in full all important opinions. These have been distributed each quarter to the commissions of other states and throughout this State to railroad people, shippers and newspapers and have been of great value to the public generally. So far as I am informed Illinois is the only State publishing and distributing regularly such a synopsis for the use of the general public.

THE ENGINEERING DEPARTMENT.

This department which now has its principal office in the city of Chicago, has never been equipped with a sufficient amount of help to do the work necessary to be done, yet with the addition of an assistant engineer the work of the department has been very materially increased during the last three years.

The question of protection to crossings and safe clearances is submitted to the Engineering Department for approval. During the last two years under the direction of the commission this department has inspected a large amount of railroad equipment, bridges, etc., touching 46 different railroads. Briefly stated, these inspections cover deficiencies such as the following:

1. Character of business performed.
2. Methods of operation.
3. Physical condition of tracks, bridges, buildings and equipment.
4. Stresses in bridges.
5. Methods in operating trains and cars over grade crossings.
6. Methods used in signaling.
7. Whether all grade highway crossings are equipped with cattle guards and crossing signs as required by law.
8. Concerning the physical condition of depot facilities.
9. Necessity for providing frogs and switches with foot guards.
10. Concerning horizontal and vertical clearances.
11. Necessity for the use of derails in side tracks having connections with main tracks on descending grades.
12. Need for maintaining vestibule doors of cars on electric railroads in closed position while cars are in motion, because of side clearances.
13. Lack of record of train orders issued and improper handling of same.
14. Where orders are issued by telephone, the necessity of spelling out names and numerals in train orders and repeating same back to dispatcher in order to reduce to a minimum all chances for error.
15. Necessity for introducing some form of dispatching system commensurate with needs of service where none is in force.

OVERHEAD ELECTRIC WIRES.

The question of proper clearances of trolley wires, electric wires and other metallic conductors carrying electric current spanning tracks of railroads was thoroughly investigated by this department and a set of rules and regulations prepared by them and adopted by the commission which are now in force throughout the State.

TRACK CONNECTIONS.

Within the last year special work has been done in this line and detailed information has been secured with respect to all track connections between railroads in this State. This information has been reproduced on plats of a standard size. A book of plats of track connections between electric roads and steam roads is practically completed and is a very valuable acquisition to the records of the commission.

INTERLOCKING APPLIANCES.

Interlocking devices are the most important appliances and are being more and more used every year. Their construction and the rules governing the same are important to the safety of public travel and Illinois was the first State in the Union to adopt rules governing the construction of interlocking plants. These rules are simple and concise. Such rules have been adopted by such states as Minnesota, Wisconsin and other northwestern states. During the past three years 255 plans have been received and approved for interlocking plants by this department. This department should be enlarged and given more assistants.

CAR SHORTAGE AND SUPPLY.

The commission has given a great deal of attention during the last year and a half to car shortage and supply throughout the State and has sent out various circulars, rules and regulations governing the movement of cars, and during the last half of the present year has had two inspectors making personal inspection of the cars on side tracks, the need of the shippers throughout the State and making daily reports to the commission of conditions found at each of the stations as to number of cars on track, number in condition, number of cars needed for shipment, number received. The information obtained is very valuable in determining the cause of car shortage.

The work of the commission has increased to such an extent during the last four years that it has been compelled to add to the clerical force and to open an additional office in the city of Chicago and in order to accommodate fully present conditions, the Engineering and Express Departments have been transferred to the Chicago office. The commission has also been required as a matter of convenience to the public and the commission to hold hearings both in Springfield and Chicago.

The docket of the hearings before the commission has increased gradually every month for the last three years.

The commission in order to do this work satisfactorily in the future, should have larger appropriations to enable it to employ more assistants, especially additional experts along transportation lines.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

1. I renew the recommendations made in my biennial message of 1911, that the Railroad and Warehouse Commission be authorized to gather and the street railway companies be required to furnish to the commission data sufficient to enable the public to ascertain their bonded indebtedness, income and expenditures.

2. I also renew the recommendation made in my biennial message of 1907, that before the issuance by railroads of additional stocks and bonds for improvement or extension purposes, a proper showing be made to the Railroad and Warehouse Commission of the necessity for such issuance and that it does not exceed the reasonable cost of the improvement or extension for which it is issued, and that its approval of such issuance be secured.

3. The commission should be given jurisdiction of the crossing of railroads over highways and highways over railroads.

4. A law should be enacted requiring all railroads companies seeking permission to incorporate to make application for such permission to the Railroad and Warehouse Commission concurrently with their application to the Secretary of the State, and that duplicates of all papers and certificates required to be filed by them with the Secretary of State shall also be filed with the Railroad and Warehouse Commission. Under the present law railroads are frequently incorporated through the office of the Secretary of State and the only means of knowing of such incorporation possessed by the commission is a search through the records of that office. Because of this, railroads have sometimes escaped making reports to the Railroad and Warehouse Commission for a considerable length of time after their incorporation.

GRAIN INSPECTION DEPARTMENT.

Since the beginning of the present administration, the system of grain inspections made by this department has been completely revolutionized. Under the old system of "track" inspections in use when my administration began, much complaint arose because of unsatisfactory gradings. An investigation of methods of inspection in use elsewhere was therefore made with a view to improving inspections under our own department. The result was the abandonment of "track" inspections for a system of office inspections. Very marked improvement followed. In track inspections, the gradings of grain were determined by a single inspector whose work was done at the cars on railroad tracks. In office inspections, the grades are determined by a corps of inspectors at the central office of the Grain Inspection Department. Under the new system, much greater accuracy and uniformity of inspections is possible than under the old one, and it is not too much to say that its introduction has preserved annually to the producers of grain large sums of money, at the same time giving them a service very much more satisfactory.

As an illustration of the success of office inspections as perfected up to the present time, a single day's work in the Chicago Grain Inspection Department may be instanced. On Tuesday, Feb. 14, 1911, the total number of cars sampled in the Chicago yards was approximately 1,800, of which number 1,531 were inspected and samples delivered to the Chicago Board of Trade for early trading. Out of this number of cars, there were but forty-two reinspections called for, of which fifteen were changed by the supervising inspector. As a final result of this day's work, but one car was carried to the Board of Appeal.

The magnitude of the business done by this department is little known to the general public. During the last four years 1,533,466,000 bushels of grain have been inspected "in" and "out" of Chicago without the expenditure of one dollar by the tax payers of the State. So satisfactory is the present system that complaints have almost entirely ceased and the volume of grain handled by the Chicago market has increased forty per cent.

PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION.

At the last session of your honorable body, several bills were introduced, one of them embodying my own views, aiming at the regulation of public utilities' corporations. All failed of passage, but you created an investigating commission on public utilities. Although this was entirely the act of the Legislature itself, I have been deeply interested in the subject matter of the inquiry of the commission and do not doubt that your commission has collected and will lay before you a large amount of important information. Without doubt the time has come for some kind of supervision of the public service corporations of the State. The public demands it, the corporations themselves recognize its necessity and it is in keeping with the spirit of the times.

Whatever form the action of the Legislature may take concerning this matter, there are some fundamental points of great importance that should be kept in mind. In the first place, the usefulness of any commission is likely to diminish as time passes. A commission is effective only so long as it feels the spur of public opinion to keep it to a high pitch of efficiency. If a public utilities commission is created, it will be necessary, therefore, to make it of such a high character that it will attract men of ability and of high standard of devotion to the public service. Under no circumstances can the State afford to have a commission that is amenable on the one hand to political influence or, on the other, to corporate suggestion. A commission, therefore, should be composed of financial and technical experts, attracted by a sufficient salary to insure the best service to both the public and the corporations.

The next matter of importance concerns the scope of authority of such commission. Home rule is a fundamental principle of government in this country. It is important that this principle shall be conserved as far as possible in all governmental activities, national, State and local. In pursuance of the principles of home rule, we would naturally expect to let at least the more important municipalities of the State create and manage their own commissions on public utilities. On the other hand, the efficiency of such commissions might possibly be impaired by a limitation of their authority by city lines. However, the greatest advantage to the people would doubtless accrue from the creation of two commissions, one for the city of Chicago and the other for the rest of the State. The public utilities problems of the city of Chicago are so great and so complex as to require the entire attention of such a body of experts as would compose the commission.

It is a question whether we could not accomplish in Illinois all that is necessary or desirable by the appointment of a commission to supervise and regulate the issue of stocks and bonds of public service corporations and to secure for the public such information concerning their operations, and such auditing and supervision of their financial affairs, as to make it impossible for any such corporation in the future to mislead the public.

In my opinion, great care should be taken in framing legislation on this matter so as to insure the retention in the power of the cities of entire control of the franchises of such corporations. In my opinion, the State will do well to adopt the policy of granting franchises for a definite term of years, long enough to justify corporations in making all necessary expenditures, while permitting municipalities to retain the privilege of purchase at the end of the franchise. In order to make this right of purchase effective, the law should provide, from assessment upon the corporations, a sinking fund large enough to enable the city at the expiration of the franchise period to buy in the property if it seems best so to do. The law should further provide, however, that if purchase is not desirable the proceeds of this sinking fund can then be devoted to certain classes of public improvements and a second sinking fund should then be accumulated during the extension period of the franchise. By some such provision for amortization, the city will be put in a position of real independence in the matter of purchasing franchises and if the service of the companies continues good, a fund will be created which will be a vast utility in making public improvements.

INSURANCE DEPARTMENT.

In legislation relating to insurance our State has been most active in recent years and much of the new legislation has been of great advantage to the insuring public, as well as to insurance companies. Since its enactment, our State takes rank as one of the foremost in the public supervision and regulation of the insurance business.

This is of the first importance to the citizens of our State for its benefits reach all classes, guard all lines of business and protect dependents in nearly every household. More than 900 insurance corporations of various kinds are now doing business in this State, in addition to licensed Lloyds and inter-insurers. In 1911 these companies collected over $100,000,000.00 in premiums and disbursed correspondingly large amounts to their policy holders.

The nature of the insurance business furnishes the necessity for public regulation, and it is a subject of congratulation that our State has been so active in promoting and securing such regulation. I am informed by the report of the Superintendent of Insurance that more sound legislation upon this subject has been passed by our State in the last eight years than in any thirty years preceding.

This legislation was the result of investigations made by the State Insurance Department and the submission by that department to previous General Assemblies of seventeen bills revising life insurance laws in our State. The enactment of these measures was recommended by me in former messages to the General Assembly.

As an introduction to the further recommendations which I shall urge upon the consideration of the General Assembly in connection with this subject, a brief resume of some of this legislation will be of advantage. Among insurance measures, some of those of the greatest importance are:

1. The law fixing the standard of values of life policies, adopted in 1907 and now known throughout the country as "The Illinois standard," which has been adopted by many other states and voluntarily followed by companies domiciled in other states.

2. The law requiring life insurance companies to maintain a reserve on their policies upon a higher basis than heretofore required.

3. The law authorizing the Insurance Superintendent to enlarge the information called for in the statements of life insurance companies.

4. The law prohibiting misrepresentation through advertisements of the terms, benefits or advantages of policies of life insurance companies by their officers or agents.

5. The law regulating the investment of funds of insurance companies.
6. The law requiring the salaries paid to officers, trustees and directors of life insurance companies to be determined by their boards of directors.
7. The law regulating the provisions that must be contained in policies of life insurance issued in this State.
8. The law requiring the financial examination of fraternal societies by the Insurance Department.
9. The law establishing the office of fire marshall and prescribing the duties of that official.
10. The law regulating Lloyds, inter-insurers and other forms of fire insurance and employers' liability insurance hitherto unlicensed and outside of State supervision.
11. The laws establishing pension funds for firemen, policemen, police matrons and park policemen.
12. The law permitting the establishment and maintenance of hospitals and sanitariums for afflicted members of fraternal societies.
13. The law permitting the amending of the charters of life insurance companies and requiring that such amendments shall be submitted to and receive the approval of the insurance superintendent.
14. The law providing a plan for the reinsurance and consolidation of life insurance companies and life assessment associations.
15. The law permitting life insurance companies with sufficient capital to do a life and accident business.
16. The amendment of the Mutual Employers' Liability Act relieving the stringency of the provisions of the former law under which but one company had ever been organized to do business in this State.

The purpose of many of the laws above enumerated is obvious from their titles. Their beneficial effects will be found discussed at length in the report of the Insurance Department, to which the General Assembly is referred for full information upon that subject.

In addition to the insurance legislation enacted by the General Assembly, two commissions were appointed to investigate fire insurance conditions in this State.

One of these investigated these conditions with special reference to the advisability of the enactment of State rate-making laws.

The report of this commission has already been transmitted to the General Assembly. In brief this report recommended legislation including:

(a) A bill regulating varieties of fire underwriting then unlicensed, prescribing the conditions upon which they may do business in this State. Among these are classed mutuals, Lloyds, inter-insurance and indemnity companies. This has been enacted into law.

(b) A bill amending the Surplus Line Law.

(c) A bill providing for a measure of State supervision of all fire insurance corporations based on prevention of discrimination in insurance rates.

(d) A bill recommending the desirability of a revised building code.

(e) A bill recommending that appropriate action be taken by the General Assembly to enable the State to coöperate with other states in the formulation of a uniform fire insurance code.

There was also appointed by the General Assembly a commission which is to report to the present session to codify the insurance laws and further investigate fire insurance conditions.

The foregoing will indicate in a general way the present condition of our insurance legislation and the present activity of our State in insurance matters as well as the great advancement which has been made in the effort to provide protection to those holding fire and life insurance policies.

Inasmuch as the Forty-seventh General Assembly appointed a commission of an equal number of members of the House and Senate to codify the State insurance laws and further investigate fire insurance conditions, I do not deem it advisable to recommend any further insurance legislation. I, however, again recommend the enactment of some legislation which I have heretofore recommended to your honorable body, but which has so far failed of enactment:

1. The Life Insurance Law should be amended, as suggested in a former message, to the effect that a stock company of this State should always have an unimpaired capital stock of at least $100,000.00. Under the present law a company of this kind is compelled to deposit securities with the Insurance Department worth at least $100,000.00. There is no provision in the Act, however, to the effect that this fund shall be unimpaired, and it seems self-evident that as the State requires $100,000.00 as a minimum amount of capital before chartering the company, it follows that this fund should remain intact in order to furnish needed security to the policy holders.

2. Legislation at various times has been recommended by me to the effect that assessment life associations should not be permitted to be organized in this State, nor should assessment life associations of other states be permitted to enter Illinois to transact business. Legislation of this kind has been passed by a large number of the more advanced states. It seems necessary because of the fact that as a rule assessment life companies are not satisfactory, either to their managements or to their members. The strongest of them are usually reorganized or reinsured on a legal reserve or old line basis and the weakest of them eventually go to the wall. Many such cases have occurred during the past eight years and the policy holders of such concerns have lost the protection they needed.

3. Not much beneficial legislation affecting fraternal beneficiary societies has been enacted into law. A strong effort is being made on the part of the management of many of the best of these orders to place them on an adequate rate basis with rates sufficient to insure the perpetuity of these orders. A great many of the members, however, have objected to these increases in rates which seem necessary to the management and to those skilled in insurance matters, and there is at the present time as a result much confusion and misunderstanding of these corporations.

The insurance commissioners of the various states, acting in conjunction with the heads of fraternal societies, have agreed upon what is known as the Mobile bill as a remedy for many of the evils affecting these orders. This measure is now a law in a number of important states. It has, however, failed of passage in this State.

I would suggest that if this amended measure could be passed, or the present statute amended, to meet the objection of those who do not wish to pay the National Fraternal Congress rates, and at the same time permit those members who prefer to pay the higher rates to do so, thus forming two classes in each order, it would solve to a large degree the difficulties of the present situation. There are those of our citizens who believe that a rate is adequate which is sufficiently large to pay death losses as they accrue. Such rates would necessarily increase as an order grew older, on account of the greater number of deaths. Insurance experts, however, construe an adequate rate to mean a rate sufficiently large to insure the perpetuity of the order charging them, and it would seem equitable to these members to permit them to pay the higher rate if they so desire. The surplus or reserve fund, however, created by this class of members should be held as the property of the members creating the surplus, and should not be used to pay the death losses of those members who prefer to pay a lower rate. If such a division of membership should be permitted by the statute, and each class of members, including new members, should be permitted to retain and use its own funds without reference to the other class, it would, as above suggested, in my opinion, solve a most perplexing problem.

4. A law should be enacted providing for standard provisions for health and accident policies, along the lines of the present law affecting policies of life insurance. The insured's rights in an accident policy should be fully and definitely set forth, and no provisions detrimental to his interests should be allowed therein. These minimum standard provisions should be set forth in the law, together with those which are prohibited, and the Insurance Superintendent should have the authority, as he has in the Life Insurance Law, to pass upon these health and accident contracts, in order to see that the provisions of the law are complied with. His rulings should be subject to revision by the courts.

5. A strong Anti-Discrimination Law should be passed applicable to fire insurance companies. This measure should provide that all companies doing business in the State should file their schedules of rates with the Insurance Department, and the Insurance Superintendent should be given authority to see that the same rates should be collected upon exactly the same risks, no matter in what part of the State they are located. Such a measure would secure to our citizens uniformity in rates on the same classes of risks. There is great complaint now to the effect that the rates charged upon certain hazards, dwelling houses, for instance, are much higher in some parts of the State than in others, and such a measure as that referred to above would abolish much inequality of rates.

STATE FIRE MARSHAL DEPARTMENT.

The Fire Marshal Department in the year of 1912 has investigated over four hundred fires reported as of incendiary origin. It has caused 194 arrests for arson and kindred crimes; has secured 97 indictments, thirty convictions and has fifty cases now pending in the courts. Deputies from this department have also made approximately 600 inspections over the State.

This department is supported by an assessment of one-fourth of one per cent of the gross premiums of all Fire Insurance Companies doing business in Illinois, and not by direct taxation. The Fire Insurance Companies doing business in Illinois paid into the State treasury during the year, 1912, approximately $65,000.00 and of this sum, the Legislature appropriated $49,500.00. This fund is treated as a special fund for the maintenance of the Fire Marshal Department only, and there is a balance of this special fund still in the treasury of approximately $15,000.00. This amount is greatly needed to make a more complete organization of the department and enable it to increase the number of deputies for this work over the State.

The state of Ohio collects from the insurance companies $69,000.00 and the legislature appropriates the total amount. Ohio has thirty-two deputies in its department while Illinois, the third State in the union in population and with greater property interests than Ohio, has but sixteen deputies. In the city of Chicago at least ten deputies are needed to cover the work of this department. Under the present limited appropriation it has been possible to have but three deputies in the city of Chicago and one of these has been called in from the country districts. Inasmuch as it is the intention of the law and the desire of the Fire Insurance Companies who pay for the entire support of this department to have all the money available for the department, I specially urge that the total amount of money collected by this special tax of one-fourth of one per cent be appropriated for the use of this department.

I call your attention to some changes in the Fire Marshall Law which would add greatly to the efficiency of the department. When the State Fire Marshall Law was framed it provided that township clerks of all counties of the State should report all fires occurring in their townships outside the incorporated cities and villages. Evidently, the fact that Illinois has seventeen counties not under township organization was not taken into consideration for no proper officer was designated to report fires in these counties. I would also suggest that the fees paid to the township clerks for reporting these fires is inadequate. They receive but fifty cents for reporting fires and mileage one way at fifteen cents per mile. I recommend that the law be amended so as to give each township clerk in counties under township organization, and each clerk of a road district in counties not under township organization, a fee of $1.00 for reporting each fire and ten cents per mile each way of travel.

Considerable confusion has risen in this department with reference to the fees paid to mayors and chiefs of fire departments in cities and villages throughout the State by reason of the fact that many mayors and chiefs of fire departments receive only a very small salary and under the present law are excluded from receiving fees from this department for reporting fires.

I recommend that the law be amended so that all mayors and chiefs of fire departments in cities and villages who receive a salary of $100.00 or less per annum shall receive the sum of $1.00 for each fire reported from their cities or villages.

I would further recommend that the law with reference to the construction of fire escapes and for the maintenance thereof be placed under the jurisdiction and control of the State Fire Marshal department.

I further recommend that the State Fire Marshal Law be so amended as to confer police power upon the State Fire Marshal, the Assistant State Fire Marshal and all deputies of that department. Persons suspected of incendiarism often escape by reason of the fact that there is not a proper police officer at hand to make an arrest or serve a warrant, and in many ways police power would be a great aid in expediting the work of the department.

I believe that enduring work could be done for the reduction of the tremendous fire waste in this State and the consequent loss of life and property by the promotion of educational means of knowledge of the causes, dangers, and prevention of fire. To this end I believe that the State Fire Marshal Law should be so amended as to require instruction in this subject in all public schools of the State and making it obligatory upon teachers of public and private schools in all buildings of more than one story to have at least one fire drill each month of the school year.

THE UNIVERSITY.

Among the most notable evidences of progress in the eight years of my administration as Governor is the development of the State University and the auxiliary scientific and experimental bureaus. This is true not only of the technical departments, but also of the sciences and arts, which the people of the State have established and developed in order that their children who are seeking a general education should have opportunities equal to those offered in technical lines.

THE COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENT STATION.

Interest is widespread and deep in the College of Agriculture and the Agricultural Experiment Station. In 1904 the student enrollment in the College of Agriculture was 406 and the staff of the College and Experiment Station together numbered thirty-seven. At present there are over 800 students enrolled in the college, and the staff now numbers 115.

Extension Work—The extension work of the College of Agriculture has assumed great importance. At present it is managing fifteen extension centers, or schools, in different parts of the State. Each of these runs one week under the direction of five people from the University. One of these is a woman who has charge of the domestic science instruction at the center. All who attend these schools are given instruction in crops and soils and in two other lines of agricultural work chosen by themselves.

In addition, the members of the faculty of the College of Agriculture and the Experiment Station have responded to a large number of calls from institutes and farmers' clubs to give addresses. Last year more than 600 such addresses were made in response to invitation.

Each year in the month of January a two-weeks' course is offered to all farmers and farmers' boys and girls at the University itself. All lines of agriculture are taken up here, special attention being paid to stock judging and lectures given on soils, dairying, animal husbandry and other lines.

Last year the attendance at this two-weeks' course was between eight and nine hundred. The value of all this work, part of it brought directly to the homes of the farmers of the State and the rest of it open to all comers at the University itself under the inspiring influences of its surroundings is incalculable.

Experimental Station—The Experimental Station of the University of Illinois has attracted the attention of the world by the excellence of its work in several directions, and has made contributions of untold value to the agricultural interests of the State. The work of the Soil Survey is so important that it is mentioned in more detail below, but admirable work has also been done in the Departments of Dairy Husbandry, Animal Husbandry, Horticulture, Floriculture, etc. The public has benefited largely by the results of the work of the Dairy Department in securing better conditions of milk production and marketing, and the stock feeding and judging work of the Department of Animal Husbandry have added to the knowledge of the world on these subjects.

The Soil Survey—The Soil Survey, which has been conducted for several years under the direction of the Experiment Station, has been extended already over forty-one counties of the State, and has resulted in giving our farmers a knowledge of the elements of fertility necessary in the various soils to get the best results from their crops. The soil Survey makes it possible to farm intelligently by supplying directly the elements of fertility necessary for the different kinds of soils. The Soil Survey should be pushed to completion rapidly in order that the people of the State may, as soon as possible, get the benefits of its investigations. The publication of the county soil reports was made possible by the appropriation made by the Last Legislature, and three have already been issued. The fourth will soon be out. These publications are of great interest and importance to the farmers of the State.

EXPERIMENT FIELDS.

The supervision of experiment fields in various parts of the State, which was begun in 1902, has continued to expand during the past eight years.

Detailed information upon this subject will be found in this message under the title of agriculture.

COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING.

As remarkable a growth has been experienced by the department in engineering. Among its more important developments, are the establishment of the departments of railway engineering and mining engineering, and the extension of the work of the department of architecture and electrical engineering.

The Engineering Experiment Station also has had a large development. Beginning in 1904, it has published a total of sixty bulletins dealing with a great variety of important industrial subjects. Too much emphasis cannot be put upon the value to the industries of the State of the researches carried on by the Engineering Experiment Station. They parallel the Agricultural Experiment Station in agriculture. The work in reinforced concrete alone has been worth hundreds of thousands of dollars to the industries which use that material in the State.

The locomotive testing plant, upon which it will be possible to mount and to operate a steam locomotive of any type or size, is rapidly approaching completion. This installation is an important addition to the facilities of the State and country for the advancement of scientific information concerning locomotive action.

MINING ENGINEERING AND MINE RESCUE STATION.

The Mining Laboratory has been erected and equipped for the two-fold purpose of studying fuels and ores. The equipment of this laboratory is such as to permit a careful study of all the usual processes in coal washing, sizing, or screening. On the ore side ample provision is made for handling and treating the more important types of ores. The laboratory has been designed not only for the instruction of students, but quite as much for the promotion of research.

There have been two mining commissions. The general commission, of which Professor Stock was a member, was appointed to report to the last Legislature upon such legislation as was desired and as was thought needful for the better protection of miners.

There is a second commission known as Mine Rescue Commission. Under the direction of this commission mine rescue stations have been established at four different points in the State, and mine rescue cars have been put into service. At each of these stations and upon each car there is a crew, with helmet and other rescue apparatus, always in readiness to respond to a call for help from any mine within the district they cover.

HOUSEHOLD ECONOMICS.

This department established some years ago for women has been of great service, not only to the students in direct instruction, but also to the State at large. The enrollment in 1903-04 was 80. Today it is nearly 300. The staff now comprises twelve regular instructors, two institute workers and three student assistants, and offers in all eighteen courses for young women. It carries on correspondence work, gives addresses at farmers' institutes, and aids in the work of movable schools and in extension courses at the University. The school for housekeepers, lasting two weeks each winter, has become very popular, more than two hundred women attending last year. In addition to all this, the department assists the public schools in the establishment and management of their courses.

DEPARTMENT OF CERAMICS.

This department was established in 1905 and began work with two students and one instructor. Its registration this year is 74, and the number of instructors of all grades is four. In this department, students have an opportunity to become ceramic engineers or specialists in the manufacture of pottery, cement, glass, enamels for metals and other kindred industries. Each winter a course two weeks long is offered in ceramics to the workers employed in the clay working plants of the State.

The department has published a number of valuable bulletins which have promoted the clay industries of the State in all lines, and many more are under way. It coöperates with the geological survey in the investigation of the ceramic materials of the State and has made investigations on paving brick, clays and raw materials for Portland cement.

THE STATE LIBRARY SCHOOL.

This department of the University also is rendering public service in training librarians for public libraries as well as for other purposes. It has today 33 students with a staff of four instructors.

THE COLLEGE OF LAW.

This college is doing much, not only for the legal education of the young men who attend it, but for the elevation of legal practice and legal standards throughout the State. Its faculty are represented on committees and in associations for the improvement of legal education, social and legal reform, and other purposes. In these days of demand for legal reform, it is important that a law school under the direction of the State shall be fully equipped to give work, not only in technical law, but in all the collateral subjects which are necessary to the broad training of a lawyer today.

THE ARTS AND SCIENCE.

This department is maintained not only because the students in the technical courses need the work in their technical education, but also because a large number of the people of the State demand that their children shall have opportunities for a general education equal to those for technical instruction. Moreover, no institution would be worthy the name of university which did not offer well developed and complete courses in the arts and sciences. The students enrolled in the work in the arts and sciences have increased in number from 787 in 1905-06 to 1,395 in the present year, so that they constitute the largest group of students in the University. The work of the technical departments could not be carried on successfully without these departments. Chemistry, botany, bacteriology, physics, English and other subjects which are not only of a general educational character but are especially necessary as fundamental training for the technical arts and professions are all offered in this group of departments. Several of these departments contribute to the welfare of the State in a direct way. For example, the department of chemistry, for several years, has pursued a study of the coals of the State and has made many suggestions and contributions of great value to the coal miner and to the users of coal in industrial plants. Several instruments have been developed which have received wide adoption, such as coal calorimeters, apparatus for the determination of carbon in coal, the percentage of sulphur, etc.

THE SCHOOL EDUCATION.

The enrollment in the courses under the control of this school has increased from 210 in 1904-05 to 505 in 1912-13. The school has turned out many well equipped teachers who have gone into the public school work and elevated the standard of our public education.

There are 30,000 teachers in the State of Illinois and the majority of them are in the small schools of the villages and rural districts. Upon the quality of their work depends the quality of their elementary and secondary schools. The vast majority of these teachers get such education as they have in the high schools alone and it is upon the preparation and teaching afforded them in the high schools they are working and the welfare of our whole educational system depends.

In the work of preparing teachers for their duties in the high schools the University should find one of its most important functions and one which has been so far too little developed. The 532 high schools in the State of Illinois will, before many years, become 1,000 or more, and in these schools will be employed a large number of teachers who should have a scientific as well as professional training. This is a combination of equipment which the University alone can give and without it no teacher should be appointed in the public high schools.

The School of Education has no separate building and is very much in need of one, so that it can carry on its practice work. Moreover, the staff of the department needs to be extended to aid in training for vocational teaching.

THE SCHOOL OF COMMERCE.

The work of this school has largely increased. Here the students may receive professional instruction for mercantile life, banking, insurance, accountancy, railway traffic and accounting and transportation and for the public service like the consular service and municipal and other administration. Besides this, the School of Commerce offers similar courses to students in engineering and agriculture who wish to supplement their technical education with some knowledge of business organization and methods. At present a thousand or more students from all departments of the University are taking courses offered in connection with this school.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL.

The Graduate School was organized some six years ago for the training of young men and women who are looking forward to teaching and research in various lines. It is the cap-stone, so to speak, of the University work, and its courses are taken by those who have already passed through the undergraduate classes in the various lines. Notable progress has been made in the development of this school, and its work includes all departments—engineering, agriculture, the arts and sciences. The aid which the establishment of this advanced work has given to the undergraduate departments is emphasized not only by the members of the teaching staff of the University, but by the educational world and by educational authorities in our own State. Several departments of the University are now in a very good condition to carry on this work. This is notably true of chemistry, physics, electrical engineering, zoölogy, mathematics, history, political science, some of the languages, certain departments of agriculture, especially animal husbandry and agronomy, and political economy. It is very desirable that other departments of the University should be put on as good a basis for this advanced work. To do so is to inspire the staff to set high standards for all the students, graduates and undergraduates, to strengthen the position of the University in the opinion of the educational world, and to enable the University, through its staff in their conduct of research, to contribute to the knowledge and the industrial progress as well as the culture of the State.

THE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY.

The library of the University is wholly inadequate for its purposes, although its growth for the past eight years has been very rapid. Eight years ago the number of volumes contained in it was a trifle over 70,000. Today, it is 220,000. Compared with the libraries of other great universities, however, it is very small and is wholly inadequate for the purposes of the work. The State should look forward in the near future, so the officials of the University inform me, to the accumulation of a million volumes at the University, as a basis for future development, if the University is to be a true center of higher educational interests, influence and culture. Moreover the present library building should be replaced with one consorting with the dignity and wealth and influence of the great State of Illinois. These books should be housed for safety in a great fire-proof building so constructed as to offer every facility for the student and the scholar, and such as would be a model to our sister states.

ILLINOIS SURVEY.

In six years the State will doubtless undertake to celebrate its admission to the Union. It is highly desirable that the records of the celebration should have dignity commensurate with the importance of our great State. Among other things that should be undertaken is the preparation of a monumental description and history of the State in all aspects of its life. For some years the authorities of the University of Illinois have believed that this should be done, and have desired to have ready for publication at the time of the celebration such a monumental work, giving a survey of the State geographically, historically, politically, socially, agriculturally, etc. In the conduct of its research, especially in the Department of History, the University has done considerable work in the early history of the State. The work of the Soil Survey, of the natural History Survey, of the State Entomologist, of the State Geological Survey, and of other departments of work which have been long established and are now carried on at the University, should be coördinated with the work of the other departments of the University for the purpose of producing this great record. It would necessitate the editing for publication of much of the work of the department mentioned, and entirely new work in all. It is my opinion that the Legislature would do well to set aside a sum of money to be expended under the direction of the University for the prosecution of this work in anticipation of our centennial celebration.

THE STATE WATER SURVEY.

The work of the State Water Survey during the past eight years has been of incalculable value not only to the industries but the health of the State. The department has made nearly 12,000 sanitary analyses and over 700 analyses of mineral waters. One hundred seventeen inspections of public water supplies have been made and twenty-five conferences have been held with public officers concerning the installation and extension of such water supplies. Also twenty-four sewer systems have been inspected by the department and eleven special investigations of a sanitary character made on rivers or watersheds. On several occasions, the help of the survey has been called for by boards of health in checking epidemics.

In several cases, the survey has saved the public unnecessary expenditure. In one case, a city proposed to spend $250,000.00 on its water supply; but the department was able to show that it would gain no advantage from this expenditure. At a State institution also some $50,000.00 was saved by the advice of the survey in the installation of a water plant. Other similar examples could be given.

LEGISLATIVE REFERENCE BUREAU.

In my biennial message of 1911, I directed the attention of your honorable body to the advantage of establishing a Legislative Reference Bureau and the desirability of using the facilities for the work of such a bureau already to be found at the State University, both in its library and other equipment and in its staff of professional experts on law, political science, economics, sociology, engineering and agriculture. A bill for this purpose was introduced at my instance and passed the Senate but failed to pass the House.

The question of establishing a Legislative Reference Bureau has been before the General Assembly several times and I believe there are many reasons for creating it. If established at the University provision could be made for the transfer of an important part of the bureau to the State House during the session of the Legislature so that its facilities could be placed easily and directly at the disposal of every Senator and Representative.

The University, with its expert knowledge and large fund of experience and with its wide reach and touch with scientific bodies, can do this class of work far more effectively than any other organization.

An important feature, which it might be desirable to establish in connection with such a bureau, is a bureau for the drafting of laws. Such a bureau could also be easily established at the State University by taking advantage of its law faculty and utilizing the services of the faculty in drafting legislation.

UNIVERSITY BUILDINGS.

The growth of the University has been so rapid that it has never had sufficient room to carry on its work properly and to accommodate its rapidly growing number of students. Its experience has been that a new building given by a Legislature is usually outgrown before it is completed, although notable promptness has marked the erection of the buildings of the University. The small extent and the narrowness of the campus have made it necessary to begin to crowd buildings more than hitherto and consequently a change in the character of the construction has become necessary. The buildings must now be fireproof. No new building should ever be erected on the campus which is not so.

Since 1904-05 the following buildings have been authorized by the Legislature and appropriations have been made for them as indicated. These have all been erected or are in process of construction:

Ceramics Kiln	$ 2,000 00	1906

The last General Assembly enacted a law providing for the levying of a 1-mill tax to create a fund for the support and maintenance of the University of Illinois, which law provided that none of this fund should be appropriated for any other purpose. The State University has been receiving about $1,700,000.00 per year. It is estimated that a levy of the mill tax will create a fund of $2,225,000.00 per year. In view of the large additional sum which has been provided by the 1-mill tax, I have deemed it advisable to state in detail the work and needs of the University of Illinois in order to indicate to your honorable body the importance of adopting a broad policy for its future development and growth.

PRESSING NEEDS OF THE UNIVERSITY.

There are three fundamental needs of the University. First of all, a higher range of salaries for the instructional staff.

At the present time it is very difficult indeed to keep first class men for very many years in the faculty of the University. Only special conditions make it possible to retain them. The attractions which institutions like Harvard and Yale and Columbia and Princeton and Cornell offer to the best men in the various lines of work made it impossible to hold these men in considerable numbers, for the somewhat meager salaries which are paid, as a whole, by the State University.

Improvements in this respect have been made lately, but there is need for a broadly considered and wise policy of expansion in this respect.

The University also needs more land, both for its agricultural departments and as building sites for other departments, and it needs more money for these buildings, and much more money for the equipment necessary to the highest kind of scientific work. The fundamental sciences of agriculture, chemistry, zoology, botany and others are all inadequately provided with laboratory space and for the technical work itself, the College of Agriculture needs very much additional land and an adequate building plant which shall meet modern requirements.

It is very desirable that this condition be met at once, for the University has not in the last twenty years caught up with its growth in the matter of building space and building equipment.

STATE ENTOMOLOGIST.

The law concerning this office was revised in 1909 in a way to define and enlarge the sphere of its operations. Its appropriations have been increased from an average of $10,750.00 per annum in 1905-07 to $25,000.00 per annum in 1911-13. It has published since 1904 four biennial reports and a comprehensive index to Reports XIII-XXIV inclusive, and a fifth report—the twenty-seventh of the series—is now in press. Its reports of the past eight years comprise monographic papers on insects injurious to corn, to clover, to the contents of the granaries and warehouses, to shade trees and shrubs, to the truck-farm and vegetable garden, and to plants grown in greenhouses, together with important special articles on the corn root-aphis and the corn field-ant, on the bill-bug injurious to corn, on the white-grubs, on the black-fly as related to the distribution of pellagra, and on field experiments for the control of the San José scale and for the protection of apples against the plumcurculio. The investigations have covered practical studies of methods of control of the mosquito pest as related to the prevention of malaria, and of the house-fly pest as concerned with the conveyance of contagious diseases.

With the advice and assistance of the United States Department of Agriculture, a careful survey has also been made of the forest areas of the State with reference to the kinds and importance of insect injuries to forest trees.

An important and successful campaign against the cinch-bug was conducted, in 1911 and 1912, under a special emergency appropriation of $8,000.00 with the result that large communities have for the first time been induced to coöperate in a contest with that insect, and have thus saved many thousand of acres of endangered crops, especially corn.

As required by law, annual inspections have been made of all the nurseries in the State, of considerable orchard districts, and insecticide operations have been required and conducted where these were necessary to the protection of endangered property. During the last four years all importations of nursery stock from foreign countries into Illinois have been inspected, a work necessitated by the appearance on imported stock of some of the most dangerous and destructive insect pests known to horticulture.

The department especially needs a small plot of land at Urbana on which to make experiments under outdoor conditions, and to rear food supplies for economic insects whose life histories it is studying. The department asks for a largely increased appropriation for inspection and insecticide work, since the fruit interests of the State are suffering heavily from insect injuries which are preventable, and I recommend the matter to the careful consideration of your honorable body. This is an important branch of the State conservation work and should be encouraged and expanded.

THE EDUCATIONAL COMMISSION.

The school law under which the educational system of Illinois had operated until 1906 had grown largely by accretion and was consequently incoherent and in many respects defective and cumbersome. It had been so declared again and again by those who were required to administer it. It was often obscure, sometimes ambiguous and sometimes contradictory. Some sections were exact duplicates of other sections. Some were inoperative, some had been repealed by subsequent legislation but still encumbered the pages of the statutes. The whole body of the school law had consequently long needed revision and codification. Upon the recommendation of the Superintendent of Public Instruction and the Illinois State Teachers' Association, I recommended to the Forty-fifth General Assembly that they authorize the appointment of an Educational Commission to make a thorough investigation of the common school system of Illinois and the laws under which it was organized and operated; to make comparative studies of other school systems as might seem advisable and to submit to the Forty-sixth General Assembly a report including such suggestions, recommendations, revisions, additions, corrections and amendments as the commission shall deem necessary. This commission was authorized by the Legislature and appointed by me. This commission has been at work since that time and has recommended of the following measures:

First—A complete codification of the school law, reducing the volume about one-third and greatly increasing its clearness and coherence.

Second—Fourteen amendments which greatly improved the operation of the new code.

Third—An increase of over $40,000.00 annually in the county superintendents' salaries.

Fourth—A restoration of the two-mill tax for the State common school fund. The Forty-sixth General Assembly added $1,000,000.00 annually to this fund.

The commission has made the following recommendations, which have not yet been enacted into law:

First—A comprehensive certificating law which encourages and recognizes preparation on the part of the candidates who wish to teach. This measure has passed the Senate twice and was on third reading in the House during the last session.

Second—A free high school tuition act.

Third—It has made a thorough study of vocational education and will recommend to the present session of the Legislature a measure providing State aid for encouraging the establishment and maintenance in the public school system of courses of instruction and training in agriculture, commerce, and in the domestic and industrial arts and trades.

I recommend that this commission be continued.

SCHOOL REVENUES.

A common school system supported by public tax is justified only upon the ground that such a system is necessary in order to establish and maintain those common standards of intelligence and citizenship essential to the welfare and safety of a self-governing state. The beginnings of the Illinois common school system were laid in 1827. It was not placed upon a complete public taxation basis until 1855. At that time the Legislature provided two ways of raising revenue; a local tax within the district and the 2-mill tax upon all the property of the State. In 1856 the total amount of money expended was $921,297.00. Of this amount $606,809.00 came from the proceeds of the 2-mill tax. It will be seen from this that the amount contributed from the State fund was 65.8 per cent and the amount raised by local taxation was 34.2 per cent. As local sentiment was created, the amount raised by local taxation became relatively a larger and larger part of the total expenditure until 1873, when the 2-mill tax produced 13 per cent and local taxation 87 per cent of the total amount expended. In 1873 the Legislature appropriated $1,000,000.00 in lieu of the proceeds of the 2-mill tax, which during that year had amounted to $900,000.00. Every subsequent Legislature since that time down to 1909 appropriated $1,000,000.00 in lieu of the proceeds of the 2-mill tax. In 1909 the amount contributed by the State for maintaining the public school system was only 2.9 per cent of the total expenditures, while the taxable wealth of the property had increased seven times since 1856 and the school population had almost quadrupled and the expenditures for school purposes had increased thirty-five times, the amount contributed by the State has dropped from 65.8 per cent to 2.9 per cent. The inequalities in the distribution of wealth require that a large amount of the burden of maintaining the public school system shall be borne by the State. There are thousands of districts and some entire counties which are unable by local taxation alone to maintain an efficient system of public schools. These districts and counties help to build up the large centers of wealth but cannot, except through a State-wide tax, secure any return. It is in order to overcome these inequalities that the State Teachers' Association, the Congress of Mothers' Clubs, and the State Miners' Union have sought to secure the restoration of the 2-mill tax for common school purposes. This 2-mill tax would have given $4,208,322.00 in 1911. As compared with other states, Illinois is far behind in the relative amount contributed by the State for public school expenses. New Jersey appropriated 68 per cent, Kentucky 69 per cent, California 54 per cent, Pennsylvania 22 per cent, Wisconsin 21 per cent, Indiana 20 per cent and Illinois 2.9 per cent.

TOWNSHIP HIGH SCHOOLS.

The insufficiency of local revenues to meet school needs was felt most keenly in those districts which maintained a high school in connection with the elementary school. Many of these districts found it impossible, levying every cent that the law allowed, to maintain their schools. With the adoption of a township high school act which authorizes the creation of a township high school district, including several elementary school districts, relief was afforded. This high school district is authorized to levy the same taxation for maintaining the high school which the sub-districts are allowed to levy for elementary schools. This high school act was greatly improved in 1911. Under this new law the number of township high schools has increased greatly.

NORMAL SCHOOLS.

In Germany and France and some other continental countries no person receives a certificate to teach who has not had from one year to four years of professional training. In some of the older states, like Massachusetts, New York and Pennsylvania, a certain amount of professional training is required of every person who wishes to become a teacher. The newer commonwealths have faced a serious proposition in trying to secure a sufficient number of well educated, well trained young men and young women to teach their public schools. In Illinois we have 30,366 teachers employed in the public schools. Only 14,252 have had as much as a high school education and the number who have graduated from normal schools or colleges is surprisingly small. It is in order to afford opportunities for young men and young women, who are intending to teach the children of the State, to prepare themselves for this difficult task that normal schools were established in Illinois. The first one was located at Normal, Illinois, in 1857. Since that time four other normal schools have been established. It would be impossible to measure the influence of these five normal schools upon the quality and quantity of public education by any statistical measure. While they did not graduate more than 350 persons annually, many thousands of young people who have had a few terms' work or a year's work are going out into the public schools to do better service than they would have done without this Normal School experience. The Normal Schools are also affecting the character of public education through the work of the members of their faculties in teachers' institutes, teachers' associations, farmers clubs, and patrons organizations. Three hundred well trained men and women mingling with the teachers of the State expressing their ideas on the subjects to be taught and the methods of teaching cannot fail to influence public education profoundly. The Normal Schools are just beginning, notably the one at Macomb, a form of Normal School extension whereby the members of the faculties organize classes of teachers in near-by cities and give them instruction along professional lines. It is believed that in this way the Normal Schools can render the State a distinct service by improving the scholarship and the professional training of the teachers who are now in service. With a constant change in the point of view in educational theory and in the practices of education, it is necessary to have in any commonwealth men and women who are able to think clearly in these matters and to direct the lines of instruction and of public school procedure. Just now we are facing a demand for vocational and pre-vocational work. To introduce this into public education will demand the most careful thought of the leaders in education. When it is once established a renewed demand will come for teachers who are prepared in the matter and method of giving instruction in these new forms of education. The Normal Schools and University must be supplied with equipment and with facilities to enable them to meet this large demand which will be placed upon them. Within the last eight years the appropriations for Normal School education throughout the United States have increased two and one-half times; the value of the physical equipment three times, the number of teachers one and two-thirds times the enrollment in these schools one and one-fourth times, the number of graduates three times. In Illinois the appropriations have increased only one and four-fifths times. The value of the plant has increased $929,500.00, the number of teachers one and one-half times, while the enrollment has doubled and the number of graduates has doubled. The cause of public education as well as the interests of the children demand liberal appropriations to these institutions in order that they may prepare a larger percentage of the teachers for the work to be done by the public schools.

ILLINOIS STATE HISTORICAL LIBRARY.

The Illinois State Historical Library, which may properly be called the department of State History, is a division of the State Library. In the eight years from 1905 to 1913, it has made marked progress in the numerical strength of its collections and in its equipment, membership, activities and influence, and is now one of the most important of such societies in the country. The present quarters of the library on the third floor of the capitol building are badly crowded and inadequate, but the rapid growth of this department has caused the congestion.

A series of historical volumes published under the title of Illinois Historical Collections and compiled and edited by special historical students and investigators was begun in 1903 under the editorship of the late Judge H. W. Beckwith, and since 1905 numbers two to seven inclusive have been published. These include volumes on the Cahokia, and Kaskaskia records; two volumes of the Letters of the Governors of Illinois from Bond, 1818, to Matteson, 1853, inclusive; the bibliography of newspapers published in Illinois, 1814-1880, and the authoritative edition of the Lincoln-Douglas Debates of 1858. This last volume, edited by Prof. Edwin E. Sparks, has been one of the most popular volumes ever published by this State. The first edition of five thousand copies was quickly exhausted and the Legislature later made an appropriation for a new edition of 15,000, which was published and is now also out of print.

The last session of the Legislature appropriated $2,500.00 to the Trustees of the Library for the purpose of sending an agent to inspect the records of the several counties throughout the State and to make a report on the condition and care of county and other local records. An historical survey of the State for such material is being made, in the hope of collecting original papers of historical value or copies thereof.

At the Lewis and Clark Exposition held in Portland, Ore., in 1905, this library prepared and placed an exhibit in the Illinois State Building which received a gold medal, the highest award of the exposition. The library also arranged and placed the Illinois State Historical exhibit in the Illinois State Building in 1907 at the Ter-Centennial Exposition at Jamestown, Va.

The library contains the State's collection of manuscripts, books, pictures, etc., relating to Abraham Lincoln. This collection during the past few years has become one of the most noted Lincoln collections in the United States. It is the ambition of the officials of the library that Illinois own the greatest collection of Lincolniana in the world.

As a supplement to this report there is added a tentative list of volumes to be published in the Illinois State Historical Collections, which will give an idea of the plan and scope of the future work of this office:

THE PROPOSED EDUCATIONAL BUILDING.

At the session of the General Assembly a commission was created to procure plans for a suitable State building for the reception and preservation of all State property pertaining to history, science, literature, education and patriotism. At present, a great mass of historical material is scattered through the various State departments, rendering it almost unavailable for the use of the students of or writers upon historical, economic or political subjects. To render it readily accessible to such persons and to the general public, it should be collected and catalogued under competent supervision and placed in charge of a custodian and assistants thoroughly qualified for this work.

Some attempt has been made to provide a place for this historical material in the State Historical Library. Only a part of it, is at present kept there, and even for the limited space occupied by the Historical Library is entirely inadequate. Lack of space for the proper housing of the historical data and material already in their custody has been one of the standing complaints of those in charge of the State Historical Library.

The idea of a central repository for the storing of historical archives and for the filing of public documents for preservation as a record of the State's history and development has been put into extensive use both in this country and Europe. Public buildings for this purpose are to be found in many of the European capitals and in our own country Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Indiana, Texas, Maryland, Kansas, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Oregon, Iowa, Alabama, Mississippi and West Virginia have all made provision for such repositories.

A report of the work and recommendations of the Educational Building Commission will be presented to your honorable body at the present session, together with plans prepared by the State Architect. I think early action upon this matter on the part of your honorable body is of great importance. In 1918, our State will celebrate the centennial anniversary of its admission to the Union, and the completion of the proposed building and the transfer to it of the historical matter contemplated in the act would be a fitting and impressive expression of our appreciation of the significance of that important occasion.

ILLINOIS STATE GEOLOGICAL SURVEY.INTRODUCTION.

The mineral industry of Illinois is important as a basis for commercial and manufacturing strength. The minerals produced in 1911 exceeded $145,524,000.00 in value, placed the State third in rank in mineral production, and gave direct employment to over 100,000 workmen. In my inaugural message of 1905, I recommended the creation of a Geological Survey, which should make an inventory of the developed and undeveloped mineral resources, and act as a free information bureau for landowners and investors. The survey was created, therefore, to conduct research and disseminate information, so that our mineral wealth might have orderly development without unnecessary danger or waste. Since 1905 the value of mineral production has increased as follows:

Mineral Output in Illinois.

1906	121,188,306 00
1907	145,768,464 00
1908	122,900,688 00
1909	143,051,729 00
1910	141,809,121 00
1911	145,524,000 00

A review of the work of the Geological Survey covering the years 1905 to 1912, together with recommendations for the future is presented:

COMMISSIONERS AND EMPLOYEES.

The State Geological Commission, as provided by law is composed of the Governor, as ex officio chairman; the president of the University of Illinois, and one other competent person appointed by the Governor. In 1905, Professor T. C. Chamberlin, head of the Department of Geology at the University of Chicago was appointed by me as the third member of the commission.

Dr. H. Foster Bain, of the United States Geological Survey, was appointed director of the State Survey Nov. 1, 1905, and served until the close of March, 1909, when he resigned to enter private work. Mr. Frank W. DeWolf, assistant State geologist and previously geologist with the United States Geological Survey was selected to succeed Dr. Bain and has remained in charge of the work to the present time.

The staff has been drawn from educational and research centers of the country and its work has proceeded rapidly and with recognized efficiency. Since July 1, 1911, the entire organization has been under the State Civil Service Law. It has been the policy to employ specialists on certain phases of work and to make use of geologists of the various universities of the State during such spare time as they have had to offer. In a few cases it has been necessary to secure experts from outside the State. The large number of employees has been due to the fact that the majority of them were employed for only two or three months of any one year. The scientific members of the survey, excluding clerical help and the large force of topographers furnished in the cooperation by the United States Geological Survey, permanently or temporarily employed, are as follows:

Prof. C. W. Rolfe, University of Illinois, Consulting Geologist in clay investigations.

Prof. R. D. Salisbury, University of Chicago, Consulting Geologist in preparation of educational bulletins.

Prof. U. S. Grant, Northwestern University, Consulting Geologist in lead and zinc work.

Prof. S. W. Parr, University of Illinois, Consulting Chemist in coal investigations.

Dr. Edward Bartow, University of Illinois, Consulting Chemist in water investigations.

Dr. Stuart Weller, University of Chicago, Geologist.

Dr. T. E. Savage, University of Illinois, Geologist.

Dr. W. W. Atwood, University of Chicago, Geologist.

Dr. J. A. Udden, Augustana College, Geologist.

Prof. Ross C. Purdy, University of Illinois, Ceramist.

Mr. F. C. Van Horn, Assistant Geologist.

Mr. A. W. Lewis, Assistant Geologist.

Mr. H. B. Fox, Assistant Geologist.

Mr. F. F. Grout, Assistant Chemist.

 Mr. K. D. White, formerly with Kentucky Geological Survey, Assistant Geologist.
 Mr. D. G. Thompson, University of Illinois, Field Assistant.

SCOPE AND CHARACTER OF THE WORK.

The general program of the survey has included the preparation of maps and reports as follows:

(a) A topographic map, in quadrangle units of 225 square miles each, showing altitude and configuration of the surface of the State, as a base for accurate engineering and geological studies.

(b) Detailed geological maps, by quadrangles, showing depth, extent, and availability of mineral deposits, including water and petroleum.

(c) Preliminary maps and reports covering the whole State as a unit, for each of the following important resources:

Coal.	Cement materials.
Petroleum and gas.	Building stone.
Clay and shale.	Road material.
Underground water.	Lead, zinc, silica, fluorspar, etc.

(d) Educational bulletins, especially prepared for the use of teachers, students, and non-technical readers, to describe the physiography and geology of local areas.

(e) Maps of overflowed lands as a basis for their reclamation.

(f) Reports in cooperation with the University of Illinois and the U. S. Bureau of Mines, regarding coal-mining practices, in order to show means of preventing gas and dust explosions and other dangers and wastes.

PROGRESS OF SURVEYS AND REPORTS.

Topographic Mapping—A topographic map for geological studies, and also for general use by the public, is being prepared in cooperation with the United States Geological Survey, which carries half of the expense and relieves the State of the cost of engraving. This map is surveyed in small units called quadrangles, measuring about 12 by 18 miles and including 225 square miles each. The work has been done in all sections, but has been located chiefly so as to serve our growing mineral industries.

The progress of topographic mapping to the end of June, 1912, is illustrated by the accompanying map, Plate I. Survey has been completed for thirty-five quadrangles, comprising 7,875 square miles. Maps for twenty-eight of these have been published, and the other will be ready in the near future. The entire area, covered by cooperative surveys, comprises over 11,000 square miles, or about one-fifth of the entire State. The distribution of quadrangles which have had attention is shown, commencing in the northwest corner of the State, in the following list:

Detailed Geological Maps and Reports—Colored geological maps of quadrangle units have been published or are in preparation for various parts of the State extending from the northwest corner to the extreme south. They have been made in the coal fields, the oil and gas districts, the lead and zinc region, and other important mineral-producing areas.

Although this work proceeds slowly, surveys have already been completed for twenty-nine quadrangles, comprising about 6,500 square miles. Economic reports have been published by the State for thirteen of these quadrangles, and reports on all of the others will be completed during the year. The first of the colored maps to be published by the government will appear during the winter 1912-13 and will be followed by the others in rapid succession.

Preliminary Maps and Investigations—Investigations of preliminary character have been made rapidly for most of our important mineral resources, so as to supply general information during the period while detailed maps and reports are being prepared. These investigations relate to drill and shaft records, stratigraphic surveys, coal resources, petroleum and gas, clay and shale, underground water, cement materials, stone for ballast and building, lead, zinc, silica, etc.

Records of drill holes and mine-shafts are important because valuable coals, oil-sands, and other strata are more or less concealed by glacial drift throughout most of Illinois. The survey, therefore, has secured records of over 6,000 drills holes in various parts of the State. The number available for general reference of the inquiring public is increasing rapidly. Many records have been given confidentially and not for publication, but they throw light on general problems.

Considerable attention has been devoted to stratigraphic study of the rocks of the State by means of drill records and field examinations. Such work is fundamental, since any investigation of more than temporary usefulness must be founded upon an accurate and adequate study of the stratigraphy.

Since coal is the most important mineral resource of the State, with a production in 1911 amounting to more than 53,679,000 tons, the survey has devoted a large share of its work to the coal field. A study of drill records has shown the general facts regarding the distribution and identification of the various coal beds in the mining districts, and the probable depth and condition of the coal in those territories which are undeveloped. Important information relating to the chemical quality of Illinois coal has likewise been collected and published in coöperation with the University of Illinois. Reliable samples from almost all of the mines of the State have been collected for analysis, with a view to showing the producer and the general public what may be expected from Illinois coals and how the competition with other states may best be met. Coöperative investigations have been made of the manufacture of gas from coal, and also regarding the behavior of coal under conditions of weathering and storage. In general, the mode of occurrence, methods of mining, and manner of market preparation of coal have all been investigated in a preliminary way.

The petroleum resources of Illinois are at present second in importance. In 1911 the State ranked third with a production exceeding 31,300,000 barrels. After preliminary study of the main oil fields of Clark, Crawford and Lawrence counties, the survey announced that the oil accumulation was controlled by the dip of the underground rocks and that its probable location could be anticipated in many cases before drilling. Colored maps have been made to show position of wells, and depth and dip of the various oil sands of the main fields. This is bound to save much loss by drilling in unfavorable territory.

Another report of the survey suggested that the conditions of Carlyle were favorable for the accumulation of oil; and shortly thereafter the first producing well of this important field was drilled. Four oil reports have been published and the most important is now in press. Oil-producers and land-owners of the State have been greatly benefited by the work of the survey.

The investigations of clay and shale have shown that the State is abundantly provided with materials suited to nearly all of our needs in this line. The value of our output exceeds $15,000,000.00 per year and this will doubtless increase rapidly as we come to use more permanent building materials. It has been shown that a valuable bed of fire-clay extends from the vicinity of St. Louis through our western counties to the vicinity of Rock Island, and thence east to LaSalle. It is predicted that a great expansion will follow in the clay industries of the region, and that Illinois will cease importing millions of dollars worth of clay wares from adjoining states. Reports so far issued include papers on fire-clay, paving brick, sand-lime brick, and other subjects of technical character.

Since underground water resources of the State are becoming more and more important, as our municipalities grow and find the surface supplies inadequate for sanitary needs, the Geological Survey has given the subject considerable attention. Public officials and commercial concerns are finding a great stock of information in the survey files. Reports have been published on the water resources of the East St. Louis area and on the artesian supplies of Illinois was published in coöperation with the State Water Survey.

Cement production in Illinois has more than trebled since the organization of the survey and now exceeds 5,000,000 barrels annually. Several hundred samples of materials thought to be suitable for cement manufacture have been selected in various parts of the State for test from time to time, and the results have just been published. Many favorable locations for new plants are pointed out; and the factors which will control the success or failure of such plants are presented. There can be no doubt as to the conclusion of the survey, that the resources within the State will enable Illinois to take front rank as a producer of Portland cement.

The production of other natural building materials have a value each year of approximately $6,000,000.00. This includes sandstone, lime-stone, sand and gravel. The survey has collected numerous samples of building materials for laboratory tests and has announced the results from time to time. In one instance, an examination of available materials in the vicinity of fifteen large towns was made in coöperation with the United States Geological Survey. A number of important quarries of the State are producing building stone despite the general increased use of Portland cement. Promising undeveloped localities in southwestern Illinois offer stone of identical age and similar texture to the famous Bedford stone of Indiana and are believed to be commercially available.

The occurrence of lead, zinc, silica, fluorspar and other miscellaneous materials have been investigated by the survey, and in the case of the first subject, two reports have been issued, and a third complete report on the northwestern lead and zinc district is now ready for printing.

Educational Bulletins—Six educational bulletins have been published by the survey. Their purpose is to put useful information concerning the geology and geography of the State before those who are not special students of those sciences. A second purpose is to place the schools of the various parts of the State in possession of a general account of the principal geographic and geological features of their regions which may serve as a sort of field book. Regions of particular interest and those which are educational centers were selected for the first of the reports. Those published have been devoted to the following areas:

The north-shore region of Chicago.

The DesPlaines valley to its mouth near Joliet.

The St. Louis-East St. Louis area.

The Mississippi valley between Savanna and Davenport.

The middle-Illinois valley, extending from near Peoria to the bend near Hennepin.

The Wheaton area near Chicago.

Reclamation of Overflowed Lands—Millions of fertile acres in Illinois are subjected to overflow of streams, and therefore are not utilized to any appreciable extent. Feeling the need of reclamation of such lands, I recommended to the General Assembly that joint study of the problem be made by the State Geological Survey, the Internal Improvement Commission and the United States Department of Agriculture, and that an appropriation be made therefor.

The special appropriation by the General Assembly for this work was made in 1907 and has been continued in varying amounts by later Legislatures. The original plans contemplated that the Geological Survey should make large-scale contour maps of the Kaskaskia and Big Muddy valleys which would serve as a basis for engineering studies by the Internal Improvement Commission. At the same time the Department of Agriculture arranged to make surveys and reclamation plans for the Little Wabash and Skillet Fork valleys with a view to comparing methods and results with those obtained by the State agencies. The work of the federal department was limited to one season, and its report is already in print. The State Survey's maps of the Kaskaskia valley were made in connection with the coöperative topographic work by employees of the United States Geological Survey, and were submitted to the Internal Improvement Commission in 1909. Their illustrated report on the reclamation problem is now published.

Similar maps have been made by the Geological Survey for the valley of the Big Muddy, Embarrass and Spoon rivers. A report on the Big Muddy is in preparation by the Rivers and Lakes Commission while a similar one for the Embarrass Valley is being prepared under the direction of the Geological Survey. A report for the Spoon River valley has not yet been possible because of lack of funds. Similarly, work is partly completed for the Saline and Sangamon valleys. Approximately 1,000 square miles of overflowed lands have been surveyed accurately at a cost of about 4 cents per acre. It is conservatively estimated that if these bottom lands are reclaimed and protected from overflow, there will be added to our taxable land values more than $100,000,000.00 above the cost of doing the work, besides the resulting benefits to health from improved sanitary conditions throughout the recovered areas.

Coöperative Mining Investigation—The coal production of Illinois places the State third in rank with an output valued at about $59,000,000.00 per year. It engages over 70,000 miners. Under existing conditions which have grown up gradually, there have been a large number of serious mining accidents, and a waste of approximately 50 per cent of the coal in the ground. The causes for losses of life and property in mining are complex, and it is not to be supposed that either operators or miners submit to them willingly. Nor is to be expected that losses of lives and property can be entirely done away with. At the same time experience has abundantly shown that careful impartial investigations of all conditions will point the way to remedies of many of the evils.

Plans were made under which the Geological Survey coöperated with the University of Illinois and the United States Geological Survey in efforts to solve the difficulties. The first efforts were made in the establishment of a mine rescue station at Urbana in the spring of 1909. The results of this station in actual service were so successful that the State has now established three rescue stations for work of this kind.

A coöperative investigation of the mining industry on a larger scale was authorized by the Forty-seventh General Assembly and is now proceeding under the direction of the Geological Survey, the Department of Mining at the University, and the United States Bureau of Mines. Under this arrangement a large number of mining engineers, geologists, chemists, etc., are making a thorough study of present methods and efficiencies of mining in Illinois. Investigation is being made of mining waste, both of human life and of the coal itself. The occurrence of gas, the explosibility of coal dust, the numerous other problems regarding which Illinois operators and miners desire information, are being studied with a view to devising remedies for existing evils.

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR CONTINUANCE OF THE WORK.

Since 1904, the year preceding the creation of the Geological Survey, the mineral output of Illinois exclusive of pig-iron and spelter originating outside the State, has increased more than 100 per cent; the value in 1904 being $56,400,829.00 and in 1911 $114,371,597.00. It is not claimed that this increase is due to the activity of the survey, though the latter doubtless had some influence. It may be pointed out, however, that this increase in production has very greatly increased the work of, and demands on, the survey. At the time this bureau was established and the size of its annual appropriation fixed, there was no oil production in Illinois. We now produce more than 31,000,000 barrels annually and rank third among producing states of the country. This has brought millions of dollars into the State, and has also brought hundreds of requests into the office of the survey for information regarding depth to various horizons, location of anticlines, etc. These facts are cited to illustrate the new and unexpected demands made on the survey, which require additional funds if the work now undertaken is to go forward.

It is further true that the work of the survey has become so well known that more citizens of the State are making demands on the time of the members of the force. It may be expected, therefore, either that additional funds must be provided or the work deliberately cut down. I recommend that the regular appropriation be increased from $25,000.00 to $50,000.00 per annum.

Another matter thought to be to the advantage of the State is the publication of topographic and geological maps on the county unit, planned so as to yield county groups for publication by the State. Material is now in hand, or shortly will be, which should result in very valuable reports and colored maps showing the mineral resources of the various counties. No adequate provision has been made for the expense of this work and since it is impossible for the State Survey to receive an income from the sale of maps and illustrations, contrary to the condition in many of the other states, it is very desirable that the General Assembly should provide liberally for the best form of publication for the results which have been accumulated. I therefore recommend that the annual appropriation for maps and illustrations be increased from $2,500.00 to $6,000.00 per annum.

The Forty-sixth General Assembly appropriated to the Geological Survey $15,000.00 for the biennium to be used in the preparation of maps of overflowed lands. The amount was reduced one-half by the following Legislature and work has proceeded to completion for the Wabash, Skillet Fork, Kaskaskia and Embarrass valleys. Unfinished work remains on the Saline, Sangamon and Spoon rivers, and a few streams bordered by important overflowed lands still remain to be surveyed. It is recommended that the original appropriation to the Geological Survey be restored so that the work of making maps and reclamation reports can be finished during the next biennium.

I am convinced that the cooperative mining investigation, which has been under way during the past two years, is making important contributions to problems of the coal mining industry, and I urgently recommend that the work be continued and the appropriation to the Geological Survey be increased from $4,500.00 to $6,000.00 per annum.

RIVERS AND LAKES COMMISSION.

The Rivers and Lakes Commission was created by an Act of the Forty-seventh General Assembly in 1911 which gave to the commission jurisdiction over all the rivers and lakes of the State of Illinois wherein the people of the State have any rights or interest.

In view of the fact that this commission was so recently created and will submit its first report to the present session of the General Assembly, and because of the great importance of the subject matter with which the commission deals, I have deemed it proper to present to your honorable body a brief summary of the work accomplished since its appointment.

Before entering upon the presentation of the data collected and recommendations made by the commission, the report sets forth the text of the Act under which it was created and also calls attention to the passage by your honorable body of another Act at the same session making an appropriation of $25,000.00 to the Attorney General for special work, the collection of evidence, etc., in relation to investigation and litigation concerning submerged and made lands in connection with the navigable waters of the State of Illinois. In the opinion of the commission, this Act removed from it all power and duty which might be, or might have been, conferred upon the commission by the Rivers and Lakes Commission Act, excepting so far as it is the duty of the commission to respond to the request of the Attorney General for aid in the collection of evidence or in the presentation of surveys. It is important to call your attention to this matter because looking to the provisions of the Rivers and Lakes Act alone, it would be natural to seek in the report of the commission for an account of such investigation and litigation.

Since its appointment the commission has collected a large amount of data dealing with the great variety of subjects coming under its jurisdiction. Its report, which will be transmitted to the present session of your honorable body, has classified the material gathered in such a way as to make it readily available for your use.

The data collected furnishes abundant information upon such subjects as:

1. River profiles giving tables of elevations of the Mississippi and Ohio rivers bordering on our State.

2. Undeveloped water power, showing all undeveloped waterpower within the State.

3. Gazetteer of 500^{*} streams showing the source, direction of flow and drainage areas about the mouths of streams.

4. Drainage areas showing the drainage areas of Illinois streams of any size and in each instance to what drainage basin the stream is tributary.

5. Inventory of the levee and drainage districts within the State, giving such information as location as to township, and county, whether the project is completed and if not in what state of progress and the probable date of completion; the total area of land in the district; annual rain fall; cost of improvement; obstructions met and best means of economical drainage for the district; many maps of levee and drainage districts, etc.

6. An inventory of water power plants within the State, giving the name of the company or corporation; the date of the charter and of construction; the site of dams; the area flooded; whether wheel or turbine method; the location of lines for the transmission of power; the amount of power produced, etc.

7. A water supply and street lighting inventory of towns with a population of over 1,000 within 100 miles of a possible water power development on the DesPlaines and Illinois rivers between Lockport and Utica.

8. Survey maps of the following rivers: Little Wabash and Skillet Fork, Kaskaskia, DesPlaines and Illinois, Big Muddy, Illinois and Mississippi Canal; also a rain-fall map of the State covering a period of 20 years, 1881-1910.

9. Run-off maps of 21 stream gauging stations maintained under a cooperative arrangement with the United States Geological Survey.

10. Precipitation records and evaporation records.

From the data secured the commission has issued for public use bulletins and reports concerning:

1. Survey water supplies of Illinois, central and southern portions.

2. Report upon the prevention of overflow covering the Little Wabash and Skillet Fork rivers.

3. Report and plans for reclamation of land in the Kaskaskia Valley subject to overflow.

4. A general report upon the water resources of Illinois.

This last report, which is now in the hands of the printer, was prepared in cooperation with the United States Geological Survey. It covers all the subjects heretofore mentioned as well as others, and is a comprehensive treatise on stream improvement, water power development, land reclamation and river drainage, embracing the drainages of the Mississippi River, Rock River, Illinois River, Kankakee River, DesPlaines River, Fox River, Sangamon River, Kaskaskia River, Big Muddy River, Ohio River, Wabash River, Embarrass River and Little Wabash River.

In addition to this work the commission has published bulletins as provided in the Act, for the purpose of disseminating information to the people of Illinois. These publications are as follows:

Bulletin No. 13, Dec. 15, 1912—"The Illinois Waterway, A Review," by Isham Randolph.

All of these reports and bulletins have been published in editions of three thousand copies and mailed to a carefully prepared mailing list of persons who have indicated a desire to receive these publications and bulletins.

In addition to the distribution of these reports and publications, the commission has from time to time furnished information maps, plats and data to various sundry persons desiring the same.

DRAINAGE LEGISLATION.

The report of the commission favors the revision and codification of the State drainage laws by some competent authority and recommends that "the entire subject should be gone into by all parties interested and these persons should all be given a hearing before a committee composed of members of both houses of the Legislature."

The commission concludes its report with a declaration in favor of a State waterway policy which will carry out the provisions of the constitutional amendment adopted Nov. 3, 1908, and that the work be commenced and carried to completion with all possible speed.

It also advocates the improvement of the Illinois River to its mouth by the national government by the removal of the four dams at Henry, Copperas Creek, LaGrange and Kampsville.

The Act creating the commission provides for the hearing of all complaints regarding alleged invasions and encroachments upon the rights of the State in its public streams and waters. Numerous complaints have been made to and investigated by the commission, including:

Complaint regarding the pollution of the DuPage River by drainage from the village of Plainfield. The commission held that the pollution and defilement complained of constituted a public nuisance and ordered its abatement.

Complaint regarding the pollution of the north branch of the Chicago River, by sewage from various towns.

The matter was disposed of through communication with the Sanitary District of Chicago and the Board of Local Improvements of the city of Chicago which are taking steps to abate the nuisance.

Complaint regarding the pollution of the DesPlaines River. The hearing upon this complaint led to a tentative agreement between the several towns concerned to create a drainage district to be maintained by a joint tax rate to be expended for the correction of the conditions complained of.

Petition for the removal of obstructions to navigation resulting from the fixed railroad bridge of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Co. across the Illinois River at LaSalle.

After a public hearing upon this petition it was determined by the commission that the railroad bridge constituted an obstruction to navigation and formal complaint was sent by the commission to the Secretary of War, who ordered a public hearing with result that the War Department issued an order for the removal of the fixed bridge and the construction of a movable bridge in its place.

Complaint by the owners of eleven miles of frontage upon the Fox River of the pollution of that stream by the towns of Elgin, St. Charles, Geneva, Batavia, Aurora, North Aurora, the State Training School for Girls and the Kane County Almshouse. The commission found the complaint well founded and having no jurisdiction directly to abate the nuisance recommended the creation of a sanitary and drainage district in the Fox River Valley.

Complaint by the Quincy Chamber of Commerce in reference to encroachment upon the harbor lines of Quincy Bay. Upon the hearing of this complaint a survey was authorized by the commission but could not be made because no funds were available for the purpose.

Complaint regarding the encroachment on the Pecatonica River by the Pecatonica Power Co. After a hearing the commission held that the complaint was well founded; ordered a survey and report and directed that suits be instituted against the power company to compel the removal of the unlawful encroachments.

Petition for the removal of the encroachments at Goddard's Dam in the Pecatonica River in the vicinity of Freeport. After a hearing a survey and the institution of suits were ordered.

The Act creating the commission also directs that all plans for the erection of any structures or improvements in any public bodies of water shall be submitted to the commission for approval. Under this provision plans were submitted to the commission for the improvement of what is known as the Banner Special Drainage District located on the right bank of the Illinois River just below Peoria. The plans for the improvement contemplated by this district were submitted to the commission and after modifications, which were assented to by the representatives of the district, the plans were approved.

There was also submitted to the commission by the engineer for the city of Plano, plans for a sewerage system, which were approved, and a certificate of approval issued by the commission.

Under the provisions of the Act the commission has also erected danger signals at various points along Illinois streams as an aid to navigation and has distributed its bulletin No. 10 as a guide to navigators. This covers the Chicago River, the Chicago Sanitary District and the Ship canals, the Illinois and Michigan Canal, the Illinois River and the Illinois and Mississippi Canal.

The attention of your honorable body is also called to certain defects in the Act and recommendations made by the commission for their correction. These refer particularly to limitations upon the powers of the commission which interfere with the discharge of its duties. It is suggested in this connection that the commission or its representative should have power:

1. To cross all lands within the State and to enter and inspect any water power plants or factories using water power within the State.

2. Also to require farm levee and drainage districts to file one set of plans and information regarding the districts at the office of the commission.

3. The various powers necessary to the discharge of its duties incident to its "jurisdiction and supervision over all rivers and lakes of the State of Illinois wherein the State of Illinois or the people of the State of Illinois have any right or interests." These powers should include certain police powers, the power to summon persons who have encroached upon public rights under the jurisdiction of the commission, etc.

In the performance of its duties to prevent invasion or encroachment upon the public rights in Illinois bodies of water, the commission now must resort to the institution of suits in the courts, which is a right equally enjoyed by any private citizen.

To correct the defects in the Act and to enable the commission to carry out effectively the duties imposed upon it, it is urged by the commission that the General Assembly confer upon it the police powers: power to compel attendance of witnesses; the right of representatives to cross lands for purpose of survey and investigation and the right to enter water power plants for inspection hereinbefore referred to.

This brief and by no means complete summary of the report of the commission will indicate in a general way the importance of the work confined to its care. The commission has performed the survey required of it with zeal, intelligence and success as far as the limitations upon its authority and its appropriations have permitted. Because of the great interest of our State in the conservation of its natural resources with which so much of the work of the commission is directly concerned, I earnestly commend to the favorable consideration of your honorable body the recommendations made by the commission with the purpose of increasing its power and providing it with suitable and adequate appropriations to carry on its work in an effective manner.

VIOLETIONS OF LAW ON LAKE MICHIGAN.

The following resolution has been passed by the congress of the United States:

"Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in congress assembled, that the consent of the congress of the United States is hereby given to the states of Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana and Michigan, or any two or more of them, by such agreement or compact as they may deem desirable, or necessary, or otherwise, not in conflict with the constitution of the United States, or any law thereof, to determine and settle the jurisdiction to be exercised by said states, respectively, over offenses arising out of the violation of the laws of any of said states over the waters of Lake Michigan."

Upon receiving a copy of the resolution, I referred the same to the Attorney General to secure his opinion upon the subject matter of the resolution and a suggestion as to such legislation as might be properly recommended to carry out the object and purpose of the resolution, and I am in receipt of a letter from the Attorney General from which I quote the following for the information of your honorable body:

"From a consideration of the resolution and the correspondence it occurs to me that the most feasible plan to be recommended would be the creation, by joint resolution or otherwise, of a commission to communicate with the proper legislative and executive authorities of the states of Wisconsin, Michigan and Indiana.

"The power, authority and duty of such commission would be defined by the terms of its appointment. The resolution or other legislative act authorizing the commission, would provide, in general, that the commission should meet with like commissions of other states or the agents of other states duly authorized for that purpose, to agree upon some scheme of legislation to be adopted by each of the states respectively providing for an agreement as to jurisdiction over crimes committed on or over the waters of Lake Michigan."

The purpose of the resolution is to permit agreements between the states named which will more effectively secure the punishment of crimes committed on or over the waters of Lake Michigan. This is important. Owing to questions of jurisdiction many such crimes now go unpunished. I trust that your honorable body may see fit to create a commission to confer with similar commissions of the states concerned in respect to this subject.

ILLINOIS AND MICHIGAN CANAL.

For some time past there have been many indications of an increasing use of this canal for commercial purposes, and the steady decline of traffic which has been experienced by the canal during the past twenty years is now giving way to a revival of activity. This is a natural outgrowth of present commercial and transportation conditions. It is in part due to the development of new types of canal boats and barges and in part due to the steady advance in freight rates by rail on slow moving bulky commodities and in part due to the inadequacy of the present railroad equipment to meet the demands of our domestic commerce. Car shortage has become almost a chronic condition confronting shippers and business men, and was more acute in 1912 than at any time since 1902.

During the summer and fall of 1912 the Morton Salt Company of Chicago made extensive experiments to determine the feasibility and profitableness of using the Illinois and Michigan Canal for the transportation of their products and before the close of last season was running boats on the canal at a good margin of profit.

In response to the increased demand for canal transportation, old and disused canal boats were patched up and pressed into service. Even with these the use of the canal was found advantageous to shippers.

The advantages of such use, however, are very limited as compared with what would be possible under improved conditions, and the suggestion is now made by the canal commissioners that the canal be improved and the dimensions of its locks enlarged, a work quite feasible in view of the fact that the locks were originally planned in such a way that they can be doubled in size whenever the traffic conditions warranted the expenditure.

To determine the amount of future Illinois and Michigan Canal traffic available under improved conditions, the canal commissioners have made a thorough canvass of the shippers along Illinois waterways and have prepared a table of traffic estimates which will be found incorporated in the report of the commission which will be made to the present session of the General Assembly.

Summed up this canvass shows that the increase of traffic on the improved canal would be approximately three million tons in 240 days of navigation and would provide a revenue, under toll charges now existing, of about $200,000.00 per year.

The improvements recommended by the commissioners are the enlargement of the eleven locks of the canal to the same size as those of the Illinois and Mississippi or Hennepin Canal.

The estimated cost of this improvement as made by the canal commissioners and appearing in their report is based upon the investigation made by federal government engineers at the request of the canal commissioners. This cost is given at approximately $1,000,000.00, an amount that, it is estimated, would be returned to the State in the form of surplus revenues within seven or eight years, after making liberal allowance for increased cost of operating the improved canal.

The report also deals in detail with the points from which increased shipments would be received and the benefits conferred upon shippers from such points in the shape of reduced transportation charges and more adequate transportation facilities.

Particular attention is given to the benefits which would be experienced by the city of Chicago from the contemplated improvements. Chicago possesses all the conditions necessary for a great trans-shipping point between canal boats, rail and lake carriers. The city of Chicago is now planning for modern harbor facilities with adequate provisions for handling arriving and departing canal, as well as lake traffic, and it is believed that the improvement of the Illinois & Michigan Canal would constitute an important factor in restoring the business of that port which has steadily declined since canal carriers ceased to go into that city.

The General Assembly, at its last session, recognized the necessity for improvement of the Illinois & Michigan Canal by the passage of an appropriation of $10,000.00 for the dredging of the LaSalle Basin. This recognition was accorded largely because of the revival of interest on the part of shippers and their declared intention to use the canal more largely for the transportation of commodities when such improvement had been effected.

The maintenance of the canal as a commercial highway and the improvement of its present condition to meet the requirements of such a highway, has, moreover, recently been the subject of communications from the federal government. The attitude of the federal government upon this subject is clearly shown in the following letter:

“DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
WASHINGTON, D. C.

June 4, 1912.

“The Canal Commissioners, Lockport, Ill.:

“GENTLEMEN—I am in receipt of a communication from the War Department calling my attention to the condition of the Illinois and Michigan Canal and suggesting that some action be taken to enforce the government's rights therein. From this communication it appears that the canal was constructed in pursuance of an Act of Congress approved March 2, 1827, (4 Stat., 234), which made a grant of land to aid the State in said work, and providing that when completed the canal should be and forever remain a public highway for the use of the United States and of all persons in their service. It is further stated that owing to legal complications arising from a decision of the Supreme Court of Illinois, there are not sufficient funds of the State available to keep the canal in condition as a public highway, that it is greatly deteriorated, and that, unless some action is taken by the State within the immediate future, it will have to be abandoned.

“It would appear that, by the acceptance of the said land grant together with the enjoyment of the proceeds of the sale of a considerable portion of the land, the State assumed a contractual obligation to the United States to maintain the canal as a public highway for the use of the United States which would be violated if the canal be allowed to become unfit for use or be abandoned. If, therefore, the facts I have stated above be correct, it would seem to be a proper case for some action by the United States to enforce the performance of the contract or to recover the consideration given.

"With this in view, I write you to learn whether my understanding of the situation is correct and whether there is a possibility of an adjustment of the matter, without the necessity of legal proceedings on the part of the government.

Respectfully,

For the Attorney General,

WILLIAM R. HARR,

"DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
WASHINGTON, D. C.

"The Canal Commissioners, Illinois and Michigan Canal, Lockport, Ill.:

"GENTLEMEN—Referring to the subject matter of your visit to the department on the 5th instant, I beg to advise you that I think it desirable that, in connection with the question whether the Illinois and Michigan Canal shall be improved or abandoned, the attention of the Legislature of the State of Illinois should be called to the fact that the United States appears to have a substantial interest in the maintenance of the canal.

"The Act approved March 2, 1827, c. 51, (4 Stat., 234), granting certain lands to the State in aid of this work, provides that 'the said lands shall be subject to the disposal of the Legislature of the said State, for the purpose aforesaid, and no other,' and also that 'said canal, when completed, shall be and forever remain a public highway for the purpose of the government of the United States, free from any toll, or other charge, whatever, for any property of the United States, or persons in their service, passing through the same.'

"It would seem that the State received and holds these lands subject to the trusts stated, and, as indicated in the department's letter to you of June 4th, the War Department, under date of April 29, 1912, called the attention of this department to the condition of this canal and suggested that some action be taken to enforce the government's rights therein.

Respectfully,

GEO. W. WICKERSHAM,
Attorney General."

Upon the receipt of the first of the above letters the canal commissioners took up the matter with the Attorney General at Washington and he sustained the views expressed in Mr. Harr's communication above quoted.

In effect the opinions expressed in these letters mean that the State of Illinois must restore the Illinois & Michigan Canal to its original condition and usefulness or the federal government will begin proceedings to recover from the State the proceeds of the grant of 1827 together with the canal lands still remaining in possession of the State.

To place the canal in its original condition would require the expenditure of several hundred thousand dollars and would result in giving the State a canal adapted only to the demands of commerce as they existed when the canal was originally constructed.

According to the plans of the commissioners hereinbefore outlined, the expenditure of $1,000,000.00 would not only comply with the demands of the federal government, but would give the State a canal which would meet the demands of modern commerce and navigation and would enable shippers to use barges of sufficient size to compete with railroads and other transportation lines which run parallel with the canal.

As the amount involved in the event of an abandonment of the canal and the enforcement of the demands of the federal government is prohibitive, the alternatives open to the State are improvement costing several hundred thousand dollars, which would be of merely temporary benefit, and an expenditure of approximately $1,000,000.00 for improvements of a modern type and character and of permanent benefit.

In this connection attention may be directed to the contention that in view of the fact that the construction of a deep waterway paralleling the canal is contemplated by the State, the Illinois & Michigan Canal improvement should be only sufficient to save the State's interests which are endangered at present under the federal ruling. This view not only ignores the present demand for an enlarged use of the Illinois & Michigan Canal, but the fact that the engineering work of the proposed deep waterway would take at from five to seven years to make the route usable by carriers, a period which will be indefinitely and no doubt greatly extended, since the State Legislature, the national congress and other boards have yet to act on the deep waterway question. Moreover, the engineering plans already suggested for the construction of the proposed deep waterway, involved the use of the Illinois & Michigan Canal as a means of carrying supplies to various points. The improvement of the canal would not only facilitate this use, but would at the same time, pending the consideration of the deep waterway, enable the Illinois & Michigan Canal to carry a very largely increased tonnage and develop a very profitable business on its own account, as is clearly shown in the tables of estimates contained in the report of the canal commissioners to your honorable body.

In view of the necessity for meeting the federal demands and of the matters herein summarized from the report of the canal commissioners, it is manifest that the General Assembly should give this subject immediate and careful consideration and I urge that in your consideration you avail yourselves of the very complete information and valuable recommendations made in the report of the Illinois & Michigan Canal Commissioners.

LAKE TO THE GULF DEEP WATERWAY.

On a number of occasions I have submitted to the General Assembly information and recommendations concerning the so-called Lakes-to-the-Gulf Deep Waterway with plans for the improvement of the DesPlaines and Illinois rivers between Lockport and Utica. This information and recommendations are to be found in my message transmitted to your honorable body, the Report of the Internal Improvement Commission and in my biennial messages of 1907, 1909 and 1911, as well as in special messages of January 26, April 25, May 31 and June 14, 1911, and I refer you to those messages for fuller information upon this subject than can be given here. These messages deal at length with the various questions which have arisen in the discussion of all matters pertaining to the proposed waterway construction and waterpower development.

With this reference to my former messages, it will be necessary here to state only the present situation of this project.

Under the provisions of the Rivers and Harbors Act of June 25, 1910, a federal commission was appointed to "confer with the authorized agency of the State of Illinois and determine the extent to which the United States may properly cooperate with the State of Illinois in securing the construction of a navigable waterway from Lockport to the mouth of the Illinois River in conjunction with the development of water power by the State between Lockport and Utica."

In view of the failure of the General Assembly to create a commission or agency for this conference, I appointed Mr. Isham Randolph to act as the State's agent in the proposed conference, who was permitted to represent the State through the courtesy of the President and the federal authorities. I was particularly desirous of such a conference because of the contentions of opponents of the waterway project:

1. That the cooperation of the federal government should be secured before the State should enter upon the undertaking.

2. That the sum of $20,000,000.00 provided for by the constitutional amendment would not complete the work, and

3. Because the report of the Federal Commission stated that the federal plans for the improvement of the Illinois River below Utica should not be undertaken "until an equal or greater depth above Utica has been assured by the plans and operations of the State of Illinois."

Pursuant to the federal invitation, therefore, Mr. Isham Randolph, Mr. Robert Isham Randolph, the Secretary of the Illinois Internal Improvement Commission and myself appeared before the Special Board of Engineers at Washington, Dec. 10, 1910, and made an explanation of the policy and plans of the State in connection with the waterway project. Mr. Isham Randolph also filed with the Federal Board of Engineers a letter and plans embodying the State's proposals.

On the 9th of February, 1911, the Federal Board of Engineers made its report and, among other things, stated that:

"In the opinion of the special board the $20,000,000.00 authorized to be appropriated by the State should be sufficient to entirely complete this section of the waterway, including the locks and bridges over the waterway; but if, through unforeseen contingency, this fund prove insufficient, the United States would be warranted in assisting the State by contributing such part of the cost as might be eventually found necessary to complete the construction of suitable locks in the dams below Lockport and all bridges over this section of the waterway."

On April 15, 1911, I also addressed a letter to the President of the United States upon this subject as follows:

THE GOVERNOR'S LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 15, 1911.

The President:

SIR—The report of "A Special Board of Engineers on Waterway from Lockport, Illinois, to the mouth of the Illinois River," published as H. R. Doc. No. 1374, Sixty-first Congress, third session, describes the project of the State of Illinois for a waterway from Lockport, Illinois, via the DesPlaines and Illinois rivers, to Utica, Illinois, and states that after an examination of the plans for said improvement and of the estimates of cost based thereon, it, the said board, considers that the work proposed can be done for the $20,000,000.00 which the people of Illinois have authorized the General Assembly to expend for that purpose. The recommendation of said board for federal aid to the project contains these words: "Should the State of Illinois be unable to complete the locks suggested by the board or the bridges required by navigation, the United States might then properly undertake to complete these parts of the project; but as the authorized appropriation of $20,000,000.00 by the State is considered sufficient for all work above Utica, no estimates are submitted for these parts." The project proposed by the board for a continuation of the waterway from Utica to the mouth of the Illinois River contemplates a retention of the four dams now existing in the Illinois River, erected some twenty years ago to provide slack water navigation therein.

As, during recent years, the introduction of water from Lake Michigan through the Chicago River and the Chicago Sanitary and Ship Canal has provided a volume of flow sufficient, if aided by dredging, to maintain a navigable depth in the river of eight feet or more without the use of dams, it is the desire of the people in the Illinois valley to have these dams removed, because, under existing conditions, they (the dams) hold the surface of the water up to a level much above that which existed before the introduction of this artificial supply of water and cause the overflow of large tracts of land, greatly to the hurt and loss of the owners thereof.

In view of the facts as stated, I urge upon you the propriety of recommending to the congress that the term of service of the special board of engineers be continued, with power to confer with a commission, hereafter to be created by the General Assembly of Illinois, and to agree upon terms under which there may be coöperation between the United States and the State of Illinois, both as to the aid, if any, to be extended to said State in carrying out the project above Utica, and the relief to be afforded the people of the Illinois valley in the matter of removal of the dams when the work of extending the waterway to the mouth of the Illinois River is undertaken.

I am, with high respect,

Yours very truly,

CHARLES S. DENEEN,
Governor.

THE HON. WILLIAM H. TAFT,

President of the United States, Washington, D. C.

On April 17th I received the following reply from the President:

THE PRESIDENT'S REPLY.

THE WHITE HOUSE,
WASHINGTON, April 17, 1911.

Hon. Charles S. Deneen, Governor of Illinois:

SIR—I have had your communication of April 15, 1911, under advisement.

The project for a navigable waterway from Lake Michigan to the mouth of the Illinois River, and thence via the Mississippi to the Gulf of Mexico, is one of national importance and commands my sympathy.

In view of the work already accomplished by the Sanitary District of Chicago, an agency of your State, which has constructed the most difficult and costly stretch of this waterway and made it an asset of the nation; and in view of the fact that the people of Illinois have authorized the expenditure of $20,000,000.00 to carry this waterway sixty-two (62) miles further to Utica, I feel that it is fitting that this work should be supplemented by the government and that the expenditures recommended by the special board of engineers on the waterway from Utica to the mouth of the Illinois River be made upon lines which, while providing a waterway for the nation, should otherwise benefit the State to the fullest extent.

On behalf of your State, there has been no legislative commission with whom the board of engineers could negotiate, and that board has reported a project for the lower river which, I learn from your letter, is not satisfactory to the State.

In view of this fact, I shall recommend to the congress that the term of service of said board be continued and that it be empowered to re-open the question of the treatment of the lower Illinois River, and to negotiate with a commission hereafter to be created by your General Assembly, and to agree with such commission upon a plan for the improvement of the lower Illinois River and upon the extent to which the United States may properly coöperate with the State of Illinois in securing the construction of a navigable waterway from Lockport to the mouth of the Illinois River in conjunction with the development of water power by the State between Lockport and Utica.

Very truly yours,

WM. H. TAFT.

HON. CHARLES S. DENEEN,

Governor of Illinois.

The continued failure of the General Assembly to enact legislation either to carry out the waterway project on behalf of the State, or to create a commission to confer with the federal government, together with the fact that private waterpower companies were active in efforts to secure the waterpower sites necessary to the development of the water power to be created between Lockport and Utica by the expenditure of the State's money led to my suggestion that pending the solution of the other questions relative to waterway construction and waterpower development, a commission be created with power to acquire these waterpower sites by purchase or condemnation, so that the power incident to waterway construction should inure to the benefit of the people of Illinois, as was contemplated in the constitutional amendment, and not pass into private hands. Bills for this purpose were introduced at the special session of the General Assembly but all failed of passage.

In brief the present situation, therefore, is that the State has provided funds which, both in the judgment of the Illinois Internal Improvement Commission and the Commission of Army Engineers appointed by the federal government to investigate the subject, are ample to carry the State's project to completion;

That the federal government is ready to coöperate with the State and provide additional funds should any unforeseen contingency necessitate the expenditure of a greater sum than $20,000,000.00; and that it is unwilling to carry out its own plans for the improvement of the Illinois River below Utica until the State has provided for the improvement of that stream above Utica as contemplated in the constitutional amendment and by the State's plans for waterway construction and waterpower development; and

That in the interim created by the legislative deadlock over waterway legislation, private waterpower companies are seeking to gain possession and control over the waterpower, the acquisition of which by the State would defray the entire cost of the waterway construction and waterpower development which was primary inducement to the adoption by the people of the constitutional amendment.

In this connection it seems to me that one of two things should be done: Either a commission should be created to confer with the federal government and agree upon a plan for going forward with the work and completing it without delay, or steps should be taken to repeal the constitutional amendment.

Power to expend the $20,000,000.00 provided by that amendment, upon the express condition that the waterpower should be conserved for the public benefit, should be withdrawn in the event the waterpower is allowed to pass out of public control. And, furthermore, the State should make a pronouncement defining its attitude toward this whole project, and in the event it abandons it, an opportunity should be afforded the federal government to take such action as it may deem proper in view of such abandonment.

One other matter in connection with this subject should be mentioned, that is the present condition of the suit against the Economy Light and Power Company. This matter was dealt with at length in my special message of April 25, 1911. Since that message was submitted to your honorable body the appeal of the case to the supreme court of the United States has been perfected and it is now pending before that court.

I have heretofore pointed out to your honorable body the situation of our State with relation to the improvement by the national government of our domestic waterways. Three-fourths of our State is bounded by water courses and all around us the federal government is expending large sums of money for their improvement. A continuing appropriation of $60,000,000.00 is being expended in this way for a 9-foot channel in the Ohio River from Pittsburgh to Cairo; a continuing appropriation of $12,000,000.00 for a 6-foot channel in the Missouri from its mouth to Kansas City, and a continuing appropriation of $20,000,000.00 for a 6-foot channel in the Mississippi from the mouth of the Missouri to St. Paul. A conditional appropriation has also been made by the national government of $1,000,000.00 and $40,000.00 per year for the improvement of the lower Illinois from Utica to Grafton, provided our State does its share of the work above Utica.

The Sanitary District of Chicago has also expended $66,000,000.00 in the construction of the Chicago Drainage and Ship Canal, extending from Chicago to Lockport, and, in addition the city of Chicago has made provision for the improvement of its harbor and of the Chicago River for modern navigation purposes.

The federal government has, for a number of years, been insisting that the city of Chicago shall lower its tunnels under the Chicago River and remove its center pier bridges. The city has asked the federal government to appropriate $7,000,000.00 toward the building of an outer harbor when this work has been carried out, and in November, 1911, the people of Chicago voted on a bond issue of $4,665,000.00 to remove the bridges. The city council has passed an outer harbor ordinance and a proposition to issue bonds for harbor construction purposes is to be submitted to the people of Chicago at the coming spring elections.

This great work of waterway improvement is going on at the present time with the exception of that upon our own stream, the Illinois River, whose improvement awaits action by our State. Within a short time the Panama Canal is to be completed. Its opening to navigation will undoubtedly be followed by a great increase of water-borne commerce in the United States. In view of this situation and of the advantageous position of our State with reference to the navigation of the Great Lakes, the Atlantic Ocean, the Mississippi River and its tributaries and the waterways connecting that river with the Great Lakes; in view also of the preparations which are being made by the national government and the states of the Gulf, Atlantic and Pacific seaboard, as well as by South American governments, to take advantage of the commercial opportunities afforded by the impending opening of the Panama Canal, it is manifest that our State should no longer delay taking such action as will place it in harmony with this movement for waterway improvement. The attitude which we have so far maintained toward this subject is not consistent with our position and advantages nor creditable to us as a great industrial State.

LAWS FOR SOCIAL BETTERMENT.

There will be submitted for your consideration various measures for improving the conditions of employment. The great changes which have been brought about in our industrial methods in recent years have created conditions which have called for the passage of legislation dealing with new problems of employment. The industrial states and countries have found it necessary to enact a large amount of legislation designed to protect the health and safety of those engaged in industrial occupations.

For your guidance in the consideration of measures of this character which will be submitted to you, I have deemed it desirable to bring to your attention what Illinois has done in recent years along the lines of adapting our industrial legislation to modern conditions, as indicating the policy of our State and as a guide to you in reference to the general direction which our industrial legislation is now taking:

1. Child Labor Legislation.

Laws have been passed providing for compulsory education and for the prevention of truancy; prohibiting employment in coal mines and regulating employment in sweat shops and factories. The enforcement of these and other laws affecting children has reduced child labor in our State to the lowest percentage found in any state in the United States.

2. Employment of Women.

A woman's ten-hour law was passed in 1911.

A question having arisen as to the constitutionality of the law regulating employment of women, the General Assembly of our State enacted a law similar to the one enacted in the state of Oregon whose constitutionality had been upheld by the supreme court of the United States. Our own Supreme Court has upheld this law and thus established the right to regulate the hours of employment of women in Illinois under our present constitution.

A law has also been enacted providing for a pension fund to enable poor mothers to keep their children at home instead of sending them to charitable institutions.

3. The Health, Comfort and Safety Act.

This Act relates to employment in shops, mills, factories, foundries, stores and mercantile establishments, and other places of employment. It is far reaching in its scope and is regarded as the model of its kind in this country.

4. The Hazardous and Dangerous Machinery Act.

This law is designed to lessen the risks of accident and afford better protection to those engaged in occupations using such machinery.

5. The Safety Appliance Act.

This affects employment on railroads, requiring the use of safety appliances, automatic couplers and other devices for the protection of railroad employees and the traveling public. It also created the office of Inspector of Safety Appliances to enforce compliance by railroads with the terms of the Act.

6. Structural Iron Workers' Law.

This law relates to the erection of buildings and requires the use of various means for the safety of those engaged in the building trades, and especially those engaged in structural iron work.

7. Mining.

The mining laws of the State have been completely revised and are now considered the most advanced either in this country or elsewhere. The revision relates to such subjects as ventilation, safety, gas explosions, shot-firing, regulation of the use of blasting powder, miners' qualifications, prevention of the employment of women and children in mines, the examination of mine superintendents, provisions for the inspection of mines by county and State inspectors, the erection of mine rescue stations at LaSalle, Springfield and Benton to furnish prompt aid in case of mine accidents.

8. Occupational Diseases.

This includes the appointment of an Occupational Diseases Commission and the passage of an Occupational Diseases Act, the first of its kind in the United States.

9. Vocational Training and Education.

This subject was investigated by the Educational Commission, which has been engaged in its study for about six years, and will submit its report for your consideration.

10. Workmen's Compensation Law.

The enactment of this law has provided for the speedy adjustment of claims and the payment of compensation for injuries suffered in the course of employment.

11. Laws regulating employment and conditions in the so-called sweat shops.

These have been of great benefit to those engaged in this employment, and also to the general public.

12. The creation of Free Employment Agencies in cities of over 50,000 population.

This classification is not exhaustive. It is meant to indicate only the general subject matter with which industrial legislation is concerned and not to recite the many laws which have been passed by our State in reference to industry. Neither has any attempt been made to detail the beneficial results which have followed their enactment and enforcement. This information will be found in the reports of the various departments concerned.

Our State has taken an advanced position in all matters relating to industry and employment, and is fully abreast of the times and conditions in dealing with the problems of our new industrial development.

The laws enacted have stood the test of experience because, for the most part, they were passed after they had been carefully investigated and considered by commissions appointed for that purpose. These commissions represented all interests concerned and their investigations and conclusions have therefore avoided the theories of those who are not familiar with the practical conditions which confront industry. On account of the preliminary care which has been bestowed on these questions, these laws, although they represent a radical departure from old theories of industrial relations and their regulation, have been put in operation and have been administered without disturbing industrial conditions. We have not been hampered in the development of our industrial legislation by the passage of laws based simply upon theoretical opinions or considerations which would not meet the test of practical operation and administration.

I recommend that this policy be pursued in the future consideration of measures for social and industrial betterment which may be submitted to your honorable body.

STATE FACTORY INSPECTION.

The State Factory Inspection Department has had to do with the enforcement of a great many of the laws above referred to and its work has been greatly increased by their enactment. During the past eight years, the department has made 487,562 inspections as against 128,327 inspections during the entire previous history.

The laws now under its jurisdiction have been faithfully administered and in addition to its administrative work it has been constantly studying conditions in other states and countries and has presented reports in reference to its investigations and formulated bills for submission to the General Assembly in connection therewith.

The department will submit to you a number of measures which have been under consideration in relation to enlarging the scope of laws of this character in our State and also for increasing the facilities for discharging the duties imposed upon the department, and these should receive careful consideration at your hands.

STATE FOOD COMMISSION.

The present State Food Law went into effect in 1907 and is modeled upon the provisions of the national food law, which went into effect the same year. The resulting uniformity of standards has been most beneficial in securing greater simplicity and effectiveness in the administration of both laws in this State. As most of the other states have followed closely the lines of the federal enactment in the enactment of food laws, substantially one set of labels will now suffice for the various food products in every state and territory in the Union.

During the past two years, under the confiscation and condemnation sections of our new State Food Law, such unwholesome food has been condemned and destroyed. The work of seizure, confiscation and condemnation has been frequently extended to carload lots of illegal foods which were destroyed under the provisions of this Act, so that the food markets of the State have been greatly purified by these provisions in the law.

A further requirement necessary to secure more complete control over the purity and wholesomeness of food products in this State is a law regulating the cold storage of all food products.

In the last General Assembly, a cold storage bill was introduced and passed in the Senate and went to third reading in the House, but owing to the crowded calendar, in the last day of the session, it was not reached. Such a law has been enacted by nearly every other state and I urge that the matter receive the consideration of your honorable body at the present session.

I would also urge upon your attention, the necessity of revising the State Pharmacy Law and placing the inspection of drug stores and places where drugs are sold under the Inspection Department of the State Food Commission as under the present law there is no provision for the inspection of drug stores and drugs and this condition should not exist.

The federal government has placed the enforcement of laws pertaining to both of these classes of merchandise in the Department of Agriculture. No laws controlling the sale of merchandise and requiring chemical examination for their enforcement can be equitably and justly enforced throughout the State without the administration of the law being placed in the hands of an executive provided with the proper inspection force and proper laboratory force. The Food Department is so provided. The Board of Pharmacy, which is at present empowered to enforce the Drug Law has never been so equipped. Forty of the other states of the Union, following the lead of the Department of Agriculture, have seen fit to place the administration of both of these laws in the hands of a single state department. In the interest of economy in the administration of the law, and effectiveness in its enforcement, I would suggest that these two laws be placed under the same administrative body. The Food Department with little added expense to the State could enlarge its force and effectively administer both the Food and Drug laws of the State.

The conservation of our State and national wealth depends on maintaining the richness and fertility of our soil, and more adequate provision should be made for the enforcement of laws pertaining to the sale of commercial fertilizers. This, like the Food and Drug acts, requires the assistance which can come only from the chemical analysis and expert testimony based thereon. From experience in other states I believe that this law could best be enforced by the State Food Commission which is equipped with a body of chemists and inspectors who are gathering and analyzing samples as they are offered for sale. I would accordingly recommend that the law with reference to commercial fertilizers be so amended as to place the enforcement of the Act in the hands of the Food Commissioner and that he be vested with power to appoint such additional assistants and chemists as may be necessary.

BOARD OF PHARMACY.

With a general scope of the work of this board the General Assembly is familiar but with a view to subsequent recommendations your attention may be directed to some of the more important changes in the law which have been introduced during the present administration. In that period laws have been enacted:

1. Providing a penalty for manufacturing, compounding or offering for sale in the United States Pharmacopoeial or National Formulary, medicine or preparation which differs from the strength or purity required by these standard publications.
2. Providing a penalty for substituting drugs, medicines or chemical preparations without direct notification to the purchaser.
3. Limiting the sale by wholesale druggists of cocaine or eucaïne and their compounds or derivatives to registered pharmacists, licensed physicians, licensed dentists and licensed veterinarians.
4. Prohibiting registered pharmacists from refilling prescriptions containing cocaine or eucaïne or their compounds or derivatives.
5. Making it unlawful for physicians to prescribe cocaine, eucaïne or their compounds or derivatives for any person addicted to the habitual use of these drugs.
6. Requiring registered pharmacists to keep on file for a period of five years the original of every prescription filled so that it may be produced in court when necessary.
7. Requiring all moneys received by the Board of Pharmacy to be paid into the State treasury.

From the organization of the board, in 1881, until July 1, 1911, it was self-sustaining. During all that time the General Assembly did not make any appropriation for its maintenance. Since July 1, 1911, all moneys received have been paid into the State treasury. From July 1, 1911, to Oct. 1, 1912, $28,826.50 was paid into the State treasury and in the same period the board had expended $19,938.76 of the $31,560.00 appropriated to maintain the office until July 1, 1913. By that date it is estimated that the board will have paid into the State treasury $45,000.00. As its work has been limited by lack of sufficient appropriations, the Board of Pharmacy requests that the General Assembly appropriate for its support at least as much as it pays into the State treasury, a suggestion which I submit for the consideration of your honorable body.

In order to aid the Board of Pharmacy in its efforts to elevate the standard of requirements of applicants for examination; to administer more effectively the cocaine and eucaïne provisions of Pharmacy Law; to provide better facilities for conducting examinations in compounding prescriptions which is a necessary part of its examinations; and to keep pace with the growth of its work and the changing conditions it is required to meet, I recommend:

(a) The law should provide that every applicant for examination as registered pharmacist must be a graduate from a school or college of pharmacy that is recognized by the board.

Any law which should be enacted along this line should protect the young men who have recently become registered as apprentices and assistant pharmacists and are now preparing themselves for examination as registered pharmacists under the present law, which does not require graduation from a school or college of pharmacy.

At its last annual meeting the Illinois Pharmaceutical Association went on record as favoring the above graduation requirement and instructed its legislative committee to have a bill for such a law introduced at the coming session of the General Assembly. This action was taken following a referendum vote by the registered pharmacists of Illinois, the result of which was in the ratio of approximately four to one in favor of such a legal requirement.

The law in regard to the sale of cocaine and eucaïne and their compounds and derivatives cannot be made too drastic. I further recommend:

(b) The present minimum penalty for their illegal sale should be made larger.

Fines of from $25.00 to $200.00, which have been imposed upon notorious sellers of these drugs, will not stamp out the traffic in them.

(c) A penalty should be provided for a person not a registered pharmacist, licensed physician, licensed dentist or licensed veterinarian having in his possession at any time more of these drugs than can be obtained by means of a prescription.

There is no law against unauthorized persons having in their possession cocaine and eucaïne undoubtedly held for sale. Neither is there any provision in the United States Statutes which in any way regulates the interstate traffic in these drugs.

Investigation shows that during the year 1911 a wholesale druggist in Chicago sold to a retail druggist just across the State line in Indiana 150 ounces of cocaine, a large proportion of which found its way back into this State to supply the needs of illicit sellers. In a raid upon the home of one of the largest illicit sellers of cocaine in Chicago there were found over thirty ounces.

(d) A penalty should be provided for a registered pharmacist, licensed physician, licensed dentist or licensed veterinarian having in his possession at any time more than an extremely limited amount of these drugs. It should also provide the maximum amount that may be sold or prescribed by authorized persons in a given time.

(e) A limitation should be placed upon the amount of these drugs that may be sold by wholesalers to a single purchaser within a given time.

(f) An appropriation of not less than $7,500.00 annually should be made for investigating the illegal sale of cocaine and eucaïne and other habit forming drugs.

(g) An appropriation should be made for a laboratory where Pharmacopœial and National Formulary preparations may be analyzed.

(h) An appropriation of $1,500.00 should be made for two new prescription cases, one in our office in Chicago and one in the Springfield office.

(i) An appropriation of $4,000.00 per annum should be made for expenses of the members of the board and its officers.

I direct your attention to the recommendation that the analysis of medicines, drugs, etc., should be made by the State Food Commission, which you will find in that part of this message dealing with the work of the State Food Commission.

THE STATE BOARD OF HEALTH.

The needs of this important department are increasing yearly. Created originally in 1877 as a public health organization and charged with the general supervision of the interests of the health and life of the citizens of the State, and with general duties concerning the control of the quarantine and the registration of births and deaths, its powers and duties have been so increased by subsequent acts that, at present the State Board of Health performs functions which in other states devolve upon two, three and often four separate boards of seven to nine members, with a secretary to each.

Within the province of the State Board of Health at the present time are to be found the following departments of service, all conducted with the same general aim and purpose—the protection of the lives and health of the people:

I. The protection of the public health; the supervision of sanitation and sewage disposal; the investigation as to the causes of contagious and infectious diseases and the suppression of epidemics; the framing of rules and regulations for the protection of the public health and the enforcement of such rules and regulations; the establishment and maintenance of quarantine; the control of epidemics in cities, villages and townships when local authorities fail to take proper steps for their suppression; the maintenance of laboratories for the diagnosis of communicable diseases and the free distribution of antitoxin.

II. The supervision of the transportation of dead bodies and the examining and licensing of embalmers.

III. The supervision of the cubic air space and certain general sanitary conditions in lodging houses, taverns, inns and hotels in cities of 100,000 population or over.

IV. The maintenance of a department of vital statistics for the registration of all births and deaths occurring within the State and for the compilation of statistical data essential to the proper and intelligent supervision of the public health.

V. The enforcement of the Act (1899) regulating the practice of medicine; the examining and licensing of physicians, midwives and other practitioners; the licensing of physicians through reciprocity with the examining and licensing boards of other states; the investigation of the standards of literary and scientific schools and colleges; the enforcement of standards of preliminary education in medical colleges; the investigation of the courses and curricula of medical schools; the prosecution of unqualified physicians, midwives and other practitioners.

Up to July of this year, the State Board of Health acting in conjunction with the State Water Survey, made provision for the examination of public and private water supplies, free of all charge—this particularly for the purpose of pointing out sources of danger and preventing the invasion and spread of typhoid fever and other water-borne diseases. This work is now carried on by the State Water Survey, which received an appropriation for the purpose from the Forty-seventh General Assembly.

The laboratory of the State Board of Health, created and maintained for the early diagnosis of communicable diseases, offers service without cost to the people of the State, and affords early and accurate diagnoses in cases of diphtheria, typhoid, tuberculosis and other contagious or infectious diseases.

In my opinion, there should be material increase in the appropriations of the State Board of Health for sanitary work. As an illustration of the needs in this connection, I will call your attention to the fact that the board has available for the purpose of sanitary investigations and investigating the cause and preventing the spread of contagious and infectious diseases throughout the State, less than $15,000.00 per annum, which sum is barely one-third that appropriated to the State Board of Health of Massachusetts for similar purposes. Of this amount, the Illinois State Board of Health expended over $1,000.00 per month during the summer and autumn of 1912 in the inspection of dairies in the State for the purpose of insuring a better quality of milk supply and continuing the work begun in the summer of 1911.

I repeat my recommendation originally made to the Forty-fifth General Assembly that a law be enacted providing for better methods of registration of mortuary statistics, such as shall be in conformity with the methods adopted by leading states and the requirements of the Census Bureau. The value of such statistics is lost unless they are accurate and complete, and uniform with similar data with which they are constantly subject to comparison. Under the present law, the reporting of deaths in Illinois may be said to be voluntary except in cities having ordinances requiring a death certificate as a prerequisite to the issuance of a burial permit. Reports should, in my opinion, be compulsory everywhere throughout the State. While the State Board of Health is able through an effective administration of the present inadequate Act to obtain about 80 per cent of the reports, Illinois is not classed by the Census Bureau with the registration states.

I once more call the attention of the General Assembly to the need for revision of that section of the Medical Practice Act of Illinois that enables the board to revoke certificates of physicians for unprofessional or dishonorable conduct. In accordance with a decision of the Supreme Court, the jurisdiction of the board is limited to those physicians who were licensed subsequent to July 1, 1899. This decision deprives the board of power to discipline for unprofessional and dishonorable conduct the large majority of those now in practice in the State, however justifiable such action might be. Bills amending the defect in the Act were introduced in the Forty-fifth, Forty-sixth and Forty-seventh General Assemblies at the instance of the State Board of Health, but failed to become laws. I recommend that the desired amendment be now enacted, so that the people may be adequately protected against charlatanism and fraud and that the authority of the State Board of Health may be uniform in its application to all practitioners.

I would further repeat my recommendations to the General Assemblies of 1909 and 1911, that the appropriation for the free distribution of diphtheria antitoxin for the treatment and prevention of diphtheria, originally granted by the Forty-fifth General Assembly, be continued—this distribution to be among all classes of people for the sole purpose of preventing the spread of a dangerously communicable disease which has cost the lives of many thousand children. The free distribution of antitoxin in Illinois has become the most effective means not only for the treatment, but the prevention of diphtheria. There can be no doubt that during the past five years, free antitoxin has saved the lives of many hundreds of children. In my opinion, it is necessary that the present appropriation of $23,000.00 ($8,000.00 for the city of Chicago, and $15,000.00 for the State at Large) should be increased, as during the past year the fund appropriated was not sufficient, and the Secretary of the State Board of Health was required to make private arrangements with the contractors whereby the distribution could be continued until another appropriation became available.

As stated in my message to the Forty-seventh General Assembly, the State Board of Health for several years past has recommended the creation of a State Sanatorium for Consumptives in Illinois, and this recommendation has been repeated in its annual report for 1912. The recommendation has been made not as a charity measure alone, for the purpose of caring for the consumptives who are unable to care for themselves, but with a view of protecting the public against the ravages of a dread disease which causes between eight and ten thousand deaths every year in Illinois. State sanatoria have been created, in over twenty states, including all those bordering on Illinois. The experience of these institutions shows that a majority of the patients admitted in the incipient stages of the disease, completely recover. These institutions have been a success in other states. Massachusetts which was the first to create a sanatorium, in 1898, passed an Act, in 1907, providing for the establishment of three additional sanatoria and appropriating $300,000.00 for the purpose. It seems indeed significant that a State which has given this movement fourteen years of critical study and nine years of trial, felt justified in making this expenditure to quadruple its facilities for the care of its consumptives.

I recommended a State sanatorium in my message to the Forty-fifth General Assembly, but hesitated to do so in 1909 as I believe that municipalities and counties should be given time to create local sanatoria under laws enacted in 1908 and 1909. Finding, however, in 1911, that no counties and but one or two cities had availed themselves of the opportunity given them, I suggested that the matter be given consideration by the Forty-seventh General Assembly. As no further steps have, to my knowledge, been taken by cities or counties to create local sanatoria, and as several counties have voted adversely on the proposition, I feel as does the State Board of Health that the consumptives problem is one which must be solved by the State, and I therefore recommend to your consideration whether the State, which for years have provided for those whose weaknesses and ailments are far less dangerous to the public at large than is consumption, should establish a suitable sanatorium for the care of consumptives. As stated in the report of the State Board of Health, the people of the State of Illinois are obliged to pay a far greater sum annually for the present unsatisfactory methods of caring for these unfortunates than would be required for the maintenance of a hospital. Through the influence of such a sanatorium, much sickness would be prevented, hundreds of lives which are now sacrificed would be saved, and men who under the present conditions can look forward only to invalidism and almost certain death, would become bread winners and useful citizens.

STATE GAME DEPARTMENT.

Prior to 1905, the salary of the State Game Commissioner was paid from the general appropriation fund for State officers. Since that time the strict enforcement of the game law has so greatly increased the revenue of the department from the increased sale of hunters licenses and from fines secured from violations of the game law, that the department has become entirely self-supporting, no appropriation being made from the general fund from taxation until in 1911, when the Legislature passed a law that all funds of the department should be paid over into the general fund. The amount appropriated in 1911 for the maintenance of the game department was $149,380.00.

Under the present administration the first game propagating farm in the United States was established. It comprises approximately a section of land devoted to the rearing of all kinds of upland game birds and water fowl. Approximately one hundred thousand dollars have been expended by the department for game birds and their eggs since 1905. Among the birds purchased by the department were 26,000 quail which were purchased from other states and distributed throughout Illinois, greatly adding to our native stock of quail.

The number of game birds produced annually at the State game farm depends greatly upon the season. During a favorable hatching season between eighteen and twenty thousand upland game birds and water fowl are produced, and from one hundred thousand to one hundred twenty-five thousand eggs of the various species of game birds are distributed throughout the State.

From the information obtainable from other states, Illinois does more in the way of purchase, propagation and distribution of game birds than all the other states combined.

Nearly 400 prosecutions are made annually by the department and from 12,000 to 15,000 complaints are investigated.

The sale of hunters licenses has increased from 100,000 to 200,000 for the year ending June 1, 1912.

The Game Department is at the present time securing large tracts of land in various portions of the State on which to establish game preserves or refuges that will be posted, patrolled and stocked with wild game birds and animals. The object of this work is to rear in their wild state the game birds that are especially adapted to this climate. The game and animals will be trapped yearly from these preserves and distributed to other parts of the State where a scarcity of them exists. The department believes, and the sportsmen generally are in accord with the idea, that this is one of the most practical means of increasing game in this State.

It has been proved beyond a doubt that pheasants are the only game birds that can be reared in large numbers in captivity. They are doing well wherever they have been distributed throughout the State. The imported Hungarian partridges are also doing well, and are the only game birds that will in any way approach our native Bobwhite quail—from a sportsmen's standpoint.

Much time and money have been expended by the department in the last few years in feeding the native game birds in the winter time. Farmers throughout the State are taking great interest in the protection of these birds and are assisting the department in every way possible by protecting them against unlawful hunters and in feeding them during the severe winter weather.

It is recommended that the General Assembly appropriate a sufficient amount of money for the leasing of 50,000 acres of land in tracts of 10,000 acres each, located in different parts of the State where the country is suitable for propagation in their wild state of the various species of native and foreign upland game birds, animals and water fowl. Heretofore a sufficient appropriation has not been made to maintain the deputy game wardens on full pay. The present appropriation was only sufficient to place the deputies on an average of 15 days per month each. It is thought best that the deputy game wardens be placed on a per diem of $3.00 per day and necessary expenses, allowing them full time each month and turning over one-half the fines which now go to them from convictions for violating the game law into the general fund. The district wardens should receive at least $125.00 per month and expenses. The maintenance of the deputies on full time would, without doubt, increase the revenue from the sale of hunters licenses to such an extent as to supply the extra amount of money expended.

It is also recommended that the Legislature amend the game law so as to allow the shipping of game birds and animals by sportsmen from their hunting grounds to their homes. It is further recommended that the law be amended to allow corporations or private persons under the supervision of the State Game Department to rear in captivity all kinds of native and foreign game birds and animals and sell them on the open market. It is further recommended that the protection of fur-bearing animals be placed under the jurisdiction of the State Game Commissioner.

FISH COMMISSION.

The protection and propagation of food fishes in our State is of great importance to all citizens and great advancement has been made in the method of carrying out the work under the supervision of the Illinois Fish Commission.

Owing to the conversion of a large area heretofore used as spawning ground in the levee districts, the output of coarse fish has been greatly reduced during the past seasons, and in order that this may be overcome and large commercial interests protected it would be necessary to arrange to preserve some of the water not as yet taken up, by acquiring such either by lease or purchase, and making reservations of some of the valuable ground and water yet outside of levee districts and to avoid practical depletion of the waters.

I would recommend such legislation as would enable the commission to purchase or lease such breeding grounds as may yet be controlled with provisions for their absolute protection.

The hatcheries at Havana and Meredosia will engage in the artificial propagation of wall-eyed pike and buffalo and several hundred millions of fry of these species will be turned into the waters of the State. Coöperation of the United States Bureau of Fishes has been assured in this work and will offset to some extent the unusual draft made upon the fish cultivation areas by the drainage districts as noted.

An extensive and effective system has been put into operation by the Fish Commission for the extermination of the gar, one of the greatest enemies known to the fry of other fishes, with most favorable results.

Such work should be State-wide and I would recommend that careful consideration be given the matter of providing for their complete extermination.

I would also recommend such license measures as would fully protect the industry.

THE STATE REFORMATORY.

In my last biennial message the attention of the General Assembly was directed to the fact of decreasing population in this institution and the causes to which the decrease was attributable. The present report of the General Superintendent of the reformatory shows that the population is now almost stationary, the number of inmates in the reformatory on July 1, 1910, being 698, the number on June 30, 1912, 681.

The reformatory was built to accomodate a population of approximately 1,000 and, if the law remains as it is now, it is thought by the superintendent that the population will continue to decrease until it reaches about one-half of the capacity of the institution. As stated in my previous message, the principal cause of this decrease is the sentencing of boys found guilty of crime by the municipal court of Chicago and the criminal court of Cook County to Cook County institutions, and the creation of the juvenile courts throughout the State from which boys between the ages of ten and sixteen years are sent to the St. Charles School for Boys. A further cause of decreasing population is the improvement of the conduct of inmates of the reformatory themselves with the result that "good time" entitles them to earlier release than formerly. All of the changes noted which have led to decrease in population are commendable, but the report of the superintendent suggests that certain changes in the law will be of benefit to the community and afford the benefits of this institution to a larger number of those needing them. The law as it is at present fixes the age limitation at ten to twenty-one years. It also limits admissions to first offenders or those with no serious criminal record and excludes capital offenders. As a change which will secure the utilization of the reformatory to its full capacity and at the same time be of great benefit in extending the reformatory idea of punishment to a larger number of those found guilty of crime, it is suggested that the age limit of admission be made sixteen to twenty-five years.

Among the benefits resulting from this change, it is suggested that it would keep out of the reformatory boys from ten to sixteen years of age and at the same time, extend its benefits to a large class of offenders who are now sent to the penitentiaries.

As this change relates solely to the question of admission to the State Reformatory, it would in no way interfere with the administration of the Juvenile Court Law or with the Act relating to delinquent children.

With its purpose to extend the operation of the reformatory principle to first offenders over the age of twenty-one and not over twenty-five years of age, of which there are a large number who must now be sent to the penitentiaries, I am in entire sympathy; and as this purpose is sufficiently guarded from abuse by present legal limitations relating to those guilty of repeated, serious or capital offenses, I think the suggestion is well worthy the consideration of the General Assembly.

The character of the work done at the reformatory will further indicate the importance of utilizing the opportunities afforded at this institution to such offenders as can be benefited by a course of educational and industrial training. Manual training schools have been established, consisting of foundry, work shop, forge shop, machine shop, wood working shop as well as departments for clay modeling, raffia work, sloyd work, mat weaving, etc. The instructors of these departments are mechanics and men of excellent character. The mechanical training schools and the trade school furnish an abundance of healthful work adapted to fit the inmates for useful occupations after they have left the reformatory.

An extensive printing plant has also been established in which the greater part of the printing for other State institutions is done.

The Reformatory School for the teaching of the common school branches of education has also been much improved recently by the employment of high grade teachers. Eleven teachers are at present employed, all of whom have had either normal school or college training.

In connection with the proposal to extend the modern idea of reformation to a larger number of inmates of the penitentiaries, it is suggested that a step in this direction would be taken if a better classification of prisoners was adopted, especially with a view to the removal of first offenders from the association and tutelage of prisoners who have served two, three or more terms in State penitentiaries. To secure such classification would necessitate a radical change in our present method of administering the State penal institutions and the enactment of legislation changing one of our present penitentiaries into an institution for first offenders, not eligible to admission to the State Reformatory or other correctional institutions, and the other into an institution for the imprisonment of those guilty of repeated offenses with perhaps certain limitations as to those guilty of serious and capital offenses.

Another matter of great importance to the most beneficial administration of the State Reformatory is that of acquisition of additional land for farming purposes. There is a general consensus of opinion among those familiar with reformatory work that the best work for the average young man is out-of-door employment and that this acts as the best of all correctives for vicious or criminal tendencies. The State now owns at the State Reformatory 279 acres, 243 of which are in cultivation. In addition about 300 acres are rented. The superintendent of the institution recommends the purchase of adjacent land, if it can be bought for a reasonable figure, and says that 1,500 acres can easily be used in connection with the State Reformatory.

The limits of this message will not permit consideration of these questions at length, but a very full discussion of all matters affecting this institution will be found in the report of the superintendent of the State Reformatory and I urge that the General Assembly take up these questions in the light of this discussion and of the recommendations there made with a view to the improvement of this branch of the public service.

NATIONAL GUARD.

During my administration our military and naval establishment has progressed rapidly and now conforms to the standards of the regular army. Advance has been made not only in equipment, but in the matter of better organization and care for stores and other equipment.

As a result of this policy the State troops are now accustomed to service in the same camps with soldiers of the regular army and have been so aided by this contact that the standard of efficiency in the National Guard has been very effectually raised.

Moreover, the advantage of joint participation in the manoeuvres on the Great Lakes has proved of great service in the training of the Naval Reserve.

During the past eight years, the funds appropriated for the National Guard and Naval Reserve have been so wisely expended that the soldiery of Illinois is now equipped and drilled so that at a moment's notice all could take the field prepared for any emergency.

PRISON LABOR.

In addition to the industries established at the State penitentiaries for the supplying of the various State institutions and departments with furniture, clothing, books, stationery and other things for which the State institutions and departments furnish a constant demand, with which your honorable body is familiar from the reports of the State penitentiaries and of the State Board of Prison Industries, there are two industries of comparatively recent establishment which call perhaps for special mention. These are the manufacture of crushed stone for road-making purposes, now carried on at the State penitentiaries at Joliet and Chester, and the manufacture of limestone dust for fertilizing purposes, first established in 1906 at the Southern Illinois Penitentiary.

These industries I deem of great importance because they furnish employment to a very large number of prisoners in a class of work which brings them less into competition with outside labor than would ordinarily be the case. They are also important because in both there is a very great and growing demand for these products, which can be met with great advantage to the penal institutions as well as to the welfare of the State generally.

The crushed stone manufactured at the penitentiaries is furnished free to the State Highway Commission for distribution, upon application to the commission by the local road authorities. Since the installation of this industry, 703,865 cubic yards of this product, with a market value of $457,512.25, has been produced and shipped; material sufficient to construct 295 miles of roadway 12 feet wide and 10 inches thick, a distance equal to that between Chicago and St. Louis.

The production of limestone dust has also been steadily increasing as the following table will show:

Year.	Tons.
1908	2,461
1912	21,849

For both these productions the demands far exceed the supply. The present capacity of the machinery is estimated by the penitentiary authorities at 45,000 to 50,000 tons. In all probability this demand will be a permanent and increasing one. The fertility of six million acres in twenty-three counties in southern Illinois is greatly diminished by the acidity of the soil, and for its correction the application of limestone dust has been found most effective. The material is furnished to farmers, upon application, at the cost of distribution.

The employment of prisoners in such a way as to prevent, as far as possible, their competition with outside labor, has always been one of the perplexing problems of penal administration, and the manufacture of crushed stone and limestone dust seems to solve this problem in an exceptionally satisfactory way. At the same time the benefits conferred by an improvement of the public highways and by an increase in soil fertility of so extensive an area are matters of first importance to the State at large.

In this connection I would also call the attention of the General Assembly to the reports of the State penitentiaries which deal generally and at large with the employment of prisoners. These show in greater detail than can be given here the work and products of their industrial departments. The reports of both penitentiaries show the earnings from this source, and the report of the warden of the State Penitentiary at Joliet shows that during my administration the productive industries there located, employing only a part of the inmates, have produced a sufficient amount so that that institution will be able to return at once to the State treasury $225,000.00, exclusive of the capital investment and after leaving an ample working fund.

These reports also contain statements of appropriations received for the maintenance of the penitentiaries; of the receipts and disbursements of the institutions in the course of the last two years administration, and many recommendations for appropriations for the ensuing biennial period. I refer your honorable body to these statements and recommendations for the information necessary to your intelligent consideration of the question of maintaining and improving their service.

STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSION.

This commission, established in 1905, was created to investigate the subject of highway improvement. The need of such a commission was great.

Rural taxpayers in Illinois have been spending upwards of $6,000,000.00 per annum without securing benefits at all commensurate with so large an expenditure.

The commission now enjoys the full confidence of our citizens in all parts of the State, although only so short a time ago as 1906, there was a very widespread opinion in many parts of the State adverse to its establishment and to its work.* It was felt at that time by those entertaining this opinion that with such soil conditions as exist in Illinois it was impossible to build roads at any reasonable cost. A campaign of education was necessary to change this adverse opinion to the favorable one which is now entertained.

As shown in another part of this message, mills for the manufacture of crushed stone for road making purposes for distribution under the supervision of this commission were installed in the State penitentiaries at Joliet and Chester, and with the material thus placed at its disposal, the commission was expected to inaugurate a system of experimental road work designed to demonstrate the practicability of durable road construction in various parts of the State.

In furtherance of this purpose several thousand dollars was expended by the State Highway Commission in the purchase of heavy road machinery with which to build the most approved types of road.

Besides the building of experimental roads, the commission has also been of great service to local road authorities in the designing and supervision of construction of durable and economical types of bridges, particularly concrete bridges, which are now so rapidly displacing the old abandoned wooden type of bridge.

In this branch of work the commission has examined for local road officials 1,324 bridges and has made designs and supervised the construction of 632 such bridges, 533 of which were of concrete.

The total value of the roads and bridges constructed under the supervision of the commission is shown by its records to be $2,840,000.00.

The creation of a public sentiment favorable to the improvement under State supervision of our public highways has been one of the most important benefits resulting from the work of this commission. The commission has sent speakers to no less than 779 public meetings, held in every county in the State, to discuss the possibilities and best methods of local road improvement and what could be practically accomplished with the small sums of money which are usually all that are at the command of local road officials.

One of the results of this work has been the improvement of many thousands of miles of earth roads which are today in far better condition than ever in the history of the State. The importance of dragging such roads at a proper time has been urged and its benefits demonstrated and full directions given for this most simple, inexpensive and effective method of earth road improvement.

The appropriations for the maintenance of the department have been comparatively small. They were at first $25,000.00 and are now $100,000.00 per year. With the limited funds at its disposal the amount of work accomplished by the department has been surprising. With the coöperation of this department there have been constructed over 400 miles of stone road, of which 142 miles were built with the machinery furnished by the department. In the 142 miles so constructed, there are included several miles of the latest type of bituminous construction as well as concrete work. Plans and specifications have also been prepared for the construction of brick roads.

The information gathered by the commission, both in regard to physical conditions and the sentiment in relation to improved highway construction in different parts of the State, will be of great advantage in encouraging the further prosecution of the work. In other words, the work of the department has laid the foundation for the introduction of a comprehensive system of highway improvement which will secure a vastly greater return per dollar for expenditure than has heretofore been secured in this State and will be a boon to all classes of citizens who use our public highways either for pleasure or for business purposes.

The method of road improvement work at present conducted by the State Highway Commission has commended itself to some of our sister states which have followed the plan adopted here. Two features of this work in particular have attracted wide attention; the designing and supervision of bridge construction afforded to the local authorities by the State Highway Department and the use of convict labor in the manufacture of road-making material.

In this connection I would call the attention of your honorable body to the present situation of the automobile license fund. The amount of this fund now in the public treasury is $439,260.62 and it is estimated that by the first of July next there will be on deposit to the credit of this fund $850,000.00. Some disposition should be made of this fund by the present General Assembly and I am sure that the State Highway Commission will be pleased to offer its services to your honorable body in the consideration of this matter and in the framing of a law which will be in harmony with public sentiment and be adapted to meet the needs for the improvement of our public highways.

AGRICULTURE.

Public works for the improvement of agriculture are chiefly under the supervision and direction of the Agricultural College and Experiment Station of the University of Illinois. The service rendered by them has witnessed a remarkable development in recent years. During the eight years covered by my administration, the combined faculty of the college and experiment station has increased from 37 to 101, and the number of students registered from 406 undergraduates with no graduate students to a total of 825 undergraduates and 17 graduate students.

As this service has been improved and extended it has been necessary to pay much larger salaries to instructors than heretofore, or else place second-class instruction before students in these departments. Increased appropriations made by the last General Assembly prevented the recourse to the latter alternative and it is to be hoped that the present satisfactory classroom and laboratory work may be maintained.

The benefits of the work done at the Agricultural College and Experiment Station have been extended through our farming communities generally and through the farmers' institutes at which about 600 addresses were delivered last year.

In addition to the agricultural instruction and experimental work done at the University, twenty-six experimental fields have been purchased or leased in various parts of the State. All of these are now in operation and out of the total area of 533 acres, 370 acres are held by deed. In this connection it is important to state that all the land held by deed has been donated to the University without a dollar of expense to that institution.

The following tables give the location and amount of land used for experimental purposes, the first showing those acquired previous to the year 1904; the second those acquired since that time:

Besides the experiment fields above mentioned, there are in use for horticultural purposes the following:

Lying one and one-half miles east of town of Olney is a farm of eighty-six acres secured by purchase and used for orchard and vegetable investigations.

About five miles west of the city of Flora are the fertilizer experimental plats, covering some sixteen acres in what were known as the Hanon Orchards, and immediately to the west are thirty acres where spraying experiments have been in operation for a number of years.

Near the village of Anna investigations for spraying and orchard heating are being carried on in fourteen acres of orchard owned by F. P. Anderson.

At Kinmundy melon and tomato investigations are in progress on the farm of W. B. Lloyd.

At Neoga are twenty acres of experimental orchards on the farm of H. A. Aldrich, where spraying experiments are in constant progress.

Near Griggsville are twenty plats, of nine trees each, devoted to spraying experiments.

The Agricultural College and Experimental Station is also engaged in making a soil survey of the State. This survey is made by counties and the following table shows the progress of the work:

The foregoing will give some idea of the practical character of the work of the agricultural department of the State University. This work is regarded as of vast importance to the agricultural interests of the State and plans are under way for its further extension through the introduction of short courses in agriculture at the five State normal schools and through the introduction of elementary branches of agricultural education in the public schools.

This is also in harmony with the recommendations of the Educational Commission created to revise and codify the school laws of the State and to offer suggestions for the improvement of our public school system. Among the recommendations made was that of the introduction of vocational training in normal schools, high schools and country schools where it is suggested that courses in instruction adapted to the conditions in such schools be introduced in agriculture, manual training and domestic science.

Agriculture is the basis of industrial prosperity. Our State is one of the great agricultural states. Attention of the entire country is being directed more and more to the placing of agriculture upon a permanent scientific basis. The soil, the seed, the live stock, the machinery, diversification of farm productions and their transportation to market, and the broadening of farm conditions generally, are matters of the first importance to the State. And facilities should be afforded by the State to promote research, experiments and teaching, as well as for the dissemination of information regarding all phases of agricultural work and life.

I have given this detailed information regarding the work of the Agricultural and Experiment Station because there will be presented to you recommendations for a considerable increase in the appropriations for the support of these departments. The work already done has been approved by the people of our State and will serve as the best guide to your honorable body in determining its character, scope and value and the necessity for its extension.

ILLINOIS STATE FAIR.

In the number and excellence of its exhibits the Illinois State Fair is one of the best in the country. These exhibits embrace agricultural productions including domestic animals, the domestic arts, labor saving machinery and other inventions connected with agriculture.

At the 1911 State Fair, the value of the exhibits aggregated $2,528,848.00 and considerable difficulty was experienced in providing space and facilities for their proper accommodation and display. For a number of years the live stock exceeded the accommodations provided. A new horse barn is now being erected. It will be ready for the fair of 1913 and will take care of all the horses. Additional cattle barns are badly needed. Last year about 300 head of cattle had to be accommodated in tents temporarily erected for the purpose.

The State Fair Grounds are over-crowded with exhibits for which accommodations are now provided and in this connection the attention of the General Assembly is directed to the necessity for the purchase of additional land. During the session of the last General Assembly an effort was made to pass a bill for an appropriation for the purchase of 160 acres of land between the State Fair Grounds and Oak Ridge Cemetery, immediately north of Lincoln Park for relieving the congestion of the fair and increasing its facilities.

The State Architect and Mr. Jens Jensen, landscape gardener of the West Chicago Park System made a preliminary survey of this land and a tentative sketch of his plan for its improvement. The plan included, the creating of an agricultural experiment station of twenty acres; an athletic field for athletic contests of high schools, colleges and universities of the State; concrete buildings for stock and buildings for permanent improvement so that the fair might become in a measure a permanent exhibition place for the agriculture and other industries of the State.

It was understood at that time that should the appropriation be made, the citizens of Springfield would enlarge Lincoln Park by condemning a tract of land immediately east of it for park purposes. The enlargement of the fair grounds and the extension of Lincoln Park would preserve for public purposes a large area of land which would furnish a fitting site and surroundings for a fair of such growing importance as would be worthy of a great agricultural and industrial State. The fair is a great educational feature and I commend this matter to your careful consideration.

The important place held by agriculture among the industries of this State warrants a continuance and enlargement of the liberal support which has been accorded to the State Fair in recent years by the General Assembly.

LIVE STOCK COMMISSION.

The work of this commission has been prosecuted vigorously with great advantage to the live stock interests of the State. Within the last year a large veterinary barn and laboratory have been erected on the laboratory grounds, near Springfield, for the manufacture of hog cholera serum. The erection of this building has permitted the manufacture of more and better serum and other laboratory products; but, as was the case when I last had the honor of addressing your honorable body on the subject, the supply of this product falls far short of meeting the demand. Hog cholera, which has been the bane of this branch of the live stock industry, has not prevailed so extensively during the present year as formerly, owing to the use of the serum and the adoption of what is known as the simultaneous method of treatment, the records disclosing a loss of 4 per cent out of a total of 132,000 hogs treated. I recommend that appropriations be made for the continuation and extension of this work and for the proper care of the buildings and grounds of the State Laboratory.

I would also again call the attention of the General Assembly to the necessity for legislation for preventing the importation into this State of dairy and breeding cattle affected with tuberculosis. Practically all of the states in the Union have laws in force protecting their people against such menace. The result of the absence of such legislation in our State, one of the great live stock states of the country, is that infected animals from other states are sold to our citizens indiscriminately. The consequence is not only deleterious to the public health but is of great detriment to the live stock industry itself in losses consequent upon the purchase of infected cattle and in the infection of healthy herds as well.

In view of the rapid growth of the dairy interests of the State, this is a very serious matter. The number of dairy cows approximates 1,500,000 with an estimated value of $60,000,000.00. State and local agencies are coöperating in an effort to enforce the establishment and maintenance of sanitary conditions in the operation and equipment of this industry. Under these agencies progress has been rapidly made in the protection of dairy products against insanitary conditions, but these are handicapped to a large extent by the failure to enact the restrictive legislation asked for. Its work is of such importance to the public health that the Live Stock Commission should receive proper encouragement and support and such legislation as is necessary to aid it in the successful prosecution of its duties.

STATE MINING LAWS.

The general revision of our mining laws prepared by the Mining Investigation Commission created in 1909 and enacted by the General Assembly at the 1911 session, has been one of the principal features of an endeavor to place the mining legislation of this State abreast of that of any state in the Union in the protection afforded to those engaged in this dangerous occupation.

The Mining Investigation Commission was composed of miners, operators and experts upon mining questions, so that the revision was as thorough and complete as the united effort of all interested in the proper management of this industry could make it.

The Mine Rescue Station Commission, also created at the 1909 session of the General Assembly, has erected mine rescue stations at LaSalle, Springfield and Benton. These stations are fully equipped with apparatus and men trained in the service for the rescuing of miners in cases of accident. All applicants for appointment to positions in this service are required to pass a rigid examination and up to Jan. 1, 1913, no less than 675 applicants passed successfully the examinations held for these positions.

Illinois is the first of the States to protect its miners by the erection of mine rescue stations under State control.

In addition to these stations the Mine Rescue Commission has procured three rescue cars which are equipped with apparatus and men and constantly kept in readiness for the carrying of rescue parties upon telegraphic notice to the scene of any mine accident.

The general administration of the State mining laws is placed under the jurisdiction of the State Mining Board and in recent years this has been one of the most active departments of the State Government. Since 1905 this board has held 39 examinations for mine managers, mine examiners and hoisting engineers.

In 1906 the board adopted a resolution governing the granting of certificates to local mine managers, and these are now required to go before the board for examination as to their knowledge and ability to manage mines employing less than 10 men. In this way the standards of efficiency required in all classes of mines have been gradually raised and the loss of life in coal mines in comparison with the tons of coal produced has constantly decreased.

The general revision of the mining laws enacted in 1911 provided for an increase in number of State mine inspectors from 10 to 12, one for each of the twelve districts into which the State has been divided.

Since these enactments also the board has introduced a uniform system of inspection reports and requires their filing, at the end of each month, in the office of the State Mining Board at Springfield.

Every effort is made to secure the immediate inspection of a mine concerning which complaint is made and more prompt inspections have been followed by a great reduction of accidents, losses and complaints. Other laws of comparatively recent enactment which have been of special benefit to miners are:

The Shot-firers' law;

The Miners' Qualification Act;

The Act establishing miners' and mechanics' institutes for the training of men engaged in the coal mining industry, which are to be conducted at every local mining center following the plan adopted for the benefit of agriculture by the State farmers' institutes;

The Act regulating the use of black blasting powder;

The Act in relation to oil and gas wells in the vicinity of coal mines, providing for the keeping of a record of each of these by the State Mining Board;

And the law providing for the keeping of a permanent record of all mining investigations made under State authority.

Altogether our State mining service has been placed upon a very high plane by these enactments and will now bear favorable comparison with that of any other state.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT.

This law, enacted by the last General Assembly, did not become operative until May 1, 1912.

With the general provisions of the law and with its general purpose to eliminate the element of uncertainty of compensation in cases of industrial accident, which has always been found incident to litigation of such cases, you are familiar.

The law is automatic in its operation and no means has been provided for its administration. It requires employers of labor, belonging to the classes included in its provisions, to file notice of their election not to accept its provisions with the Bureau of Labor Statistics. In the absence of such notice such employers of labor are deemed to have accepted it as a condition of the contract of employment.

From May 1 to Dec. 1, 1912, inclusive, 5,384 employers of all kinds filed notice rejecting the law. During this period of seven months 1,213 employers requested the withdrawal of their notices of rejection, leaving a total of 4,171 employers now operating outside of the law. This number represents but a small per cent of those engaged in the industries covered by the Act and includes many whose business probably is not affected by its provisions. Of employers now under the law fifty-five have served notice that, commencing Jan. 1, 1913, they will discontinue compensation payment. A total of 126 fatal accidents have thus far been reported and complete settlements effected in thirty-three cases, for which $82,967.12 has been paid. A total of 5,909 non-fatal accidents have occurred and recovery in all but 572 cases reported, involving an expenditure of time lost of $132,911.60, or a cost of nearly $25.00 per accident exclusive of medical service.

While this record covers over 6,000 accidents, in only fifteen cases was it found necessary to resort to the arbitration provisions of the law to determine the amount to be paid on account of injury. Considering that no provision is made for administering the law, the limited number of cases brought under its arbitration provision indicates a general acceptance of its terms and a willingness both on the part of the employers and employees to observe and comply with its requirements.

In this, like all new legislation, a little actual experience develops defects and emphasizes the need of amendments which in time will be submitted for the consideration of the General Assembly.

I desire to call your attention, however, to the tentative draft of a uniform Workmen's Compensation Act adopted by the conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws held at Milwaukee, Wis., in 1912 as prepared in cooperation with the legal committee of the National Civic Federation and with the assistance of the special committee on workmen's compensation of the American Bar Association and of the Legislative Drafting Association.

An objection which has been constantly urged to laws safeguarding employment by imposing conditions upon employers is that they interfere disadvantageously with domestic employment in competition with employers of other states which do not impose such legal burdens. It is an advantage, therefore, to maintain conditions as nearly alike in competitive fields which embrace more than one state, where such conditions are satisfactory to all our people. I therefore direct your attention to the provisions of the tentative Act in so far as they meet the conditions and sentiments of the people of our State.

STATE ARCHITECT.

During the past eight years, almost every type of buildings, structure and improvement has been erected under the supervision of the State Architect. The total outlay made by the State for these purposes in that period has been approximately ten million dollars.

In order to secure the fullest competition possible, due notice of all work was given to constructors by advertisement in local and contractors papers and in other ways. The result has been that the State has, in every instance, received very satisfactory bids and the public work has been done at less cost than could reasonably be expected and again and again at less cost than similar work done for private owners.

The greatest care has been exercised in preparing specifications in such a manner as to give all concerns dealing in building materials an equal opportunity and not limit the general contractors to special makes or brands of material. Aside from its fairness to all parties concerned, this policy has secured free competition between the building material dealers and building contractors, at the same time lessening the cost and insuring the high quality of the public work. Public work of this satisfactory character is possible only when the contracting bidders and material men are assured that the lowest responsible bidder will receive the work. In not a single instance has a contract been let on account of favoritism or influence.

It will be evident to any one who visits our public institutions that the buildings erected in recent years are of a higher type than those formerly constructed. These buildings compare well with the best work undertaken by other states and are recognized as models of their kind. Many plans of our State buildings are in demand for other communities and have been sent to and approved by experts in all parts of the world.

The work of the State Architect in making the survey of the buildings of our State charitable institutions previous to the physical rehabilitation of those institutions which has been going on for some years and is still in progress, is alluded to in this message in the discussion of the public charities. It may be further said that our State now builds its hospitals and similar buildings of fire proof construction and allows them to be only two stories high thereby lessening to a minimum the danger from fire to the inmates and buildings.

The work of the State Architect's office has been moreover improved along other lines than those of practical utility. All the work of this department must now receive the full approval of the State Art Commission which is made up of eminent specialists in architecture. This is a requirement which insures a certain artistic merit in the architectural design of our future public buildings. The large number of public buildings erected in all parts of the State for a great variety of public purposes makes this a very important consideration, a fact which is apparent from the effort now being made by many cities and municipalities to remodel their public buildings and thoroughfares with a view to artistic effect as well as convenience.

The following partial list of buildings constructed and improvement work done during this administration as well as those at present under way, under the supervision of the State Architect's office will give an idea of the importance of this department and of the activity of the State in this class of work during the period of my administration:

One of the undertakings of the office on which the department is to be congratulated, is the laying out and definite establishment of a general or group plan for the University of Champaign.

The State Architect had the help and advice of experts and specialists in this undertaking, who gave their services to the State gratis and worked conscientiously on this problem for a number of years.

In the future all new buildings at this great institution will be placed in proper relation to each other, from a practical as well as an aesthetic point of view.

I earnestly recommend that a similar work be undertaken for our State Capital City. New State buildings for different departments are a necessity today, and others will become such in the near future.

In addition to the buildings and improvements listed in the foregoing tabulation, the State Architect has been employed by the New Penitentiary Commission to prepare plans for the new penitentiary at Joliet.

Full preliminary plans have been prepared for the new Hospital for the Insane, for which a partial appropriation was made by the last Legislature.

The Architect assisted by members of the Board of Administration, gave the plans a thorough study and, after visiting some of the most modern institutions of this kind in this country and Europe, has laid out a scheme and plan, which on account of its ingenious arrangement seems to assure for the State and its wards the model institution of its kind.

The State Architect has completed the plans and specifications for all of the work he was directed to do, and for which appropriations were made by the last Legislature. Some of these new State buildings are occupied, a number are nearing completion, and most of the others are well under way.

It is to be pointed out that this immense amount of work was executed with no serious accidents and that it was carried along with practically no friction with Labor Unions and similar organizations. This offers a remarkable and gratifying contrast to the experience of the building world in general.

COMMISSION ON UNIFORM STATE LAWS.

The report of the Illinois Commission on Uniform State Laws contains an account of the work done at the twenty-first and twenty-second national conferences of state boards of commissioners for the promotion of uniform legislation. In these conferences every state in the Union and the island possessions are now represented and five uniform commercial acts have been adopted by the conference for recommendation to the general assemblies of the several states. They are:

The Negotiable Instruments Act. This Act is now in force in forty jurisdictions, including Illinois.

The Warehouse Receipts Act; in force in twenty-four states, including Illinois.

The Bills of Lading Act; in force in nine states, including Illinois.

The Sales Act; in force in nine states, not including Illinois.

The Stock Transfer Act; now in force in five states, not including Illinois.

I have already recommended for the consideration of the General Assembly the enactment of the Sales Act and the Stock Transfer Act and again submit the matter to your attention.

In addition to the above acts recommended by the national conference, seven states have adopted a uniform act relating to wills executed without the United States and four states have adopted a uniform Family Desertion Act.

At its last session the conference recommended for adoption by the states uniform acts on marriage, child labor and workmen's compensation. The advantage of uniform legislation upon these subjects is obvious and has so long been discussed by the public press and by legislative bodies and commissioners that no discussion of the subject is necessary here.

I would again call the attention of the General Assembly, as I did in my biennial message of 1911, to the question of the expenses of this commission. These have always been borne personally by the commissioners but it seems to me that the State of Illinois, which has so vital an interest as a great industrial commonwealth in the subject of uniformity of legislation upon industrial and commercial questions, should at least bear the actual expenses of the commission and pay its proportionate share of the expenses of the national conference.

At the annual session of the Illinois State Bar Association held in 1910 the following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved, that this association hereby express its deep appreciation of the excellent work performed by the Illinois Commission on Uniform State Laws, work performed not only without remuneration for time but without reimbursement for expenses.

"Resolved, further, that it is the sense of this association that an appropriation be made by the Legislature to pay the actual expenses of the commission in the prosecution of such duties."

For a fuller discussion of all the questions herein mentioned I refer the General Assembly to the report of the commission, but I strongly urge that the General Assembly at the present session make the necessary appropriation to meet the expenses incurred by the commission in the prosecution of its important duties.

NEW PENITENTIARY.

The New Penitentiary Commission, appointed to select a site for a penitentiary to take the place of the State Penitentiary at Joliet, reports that the commission has completed the purchase of 1,810 acres of the site, the title to which is now invested in the people of the State of Illinois. The site selected contains in all 2,193 acres, 382 acres of which are yet involved in condemnation proceedings, brought to acquire title to the same. This condemnation case was heard at the March term, 1912 of the circuit court of Will County and resulted in an award of $269.00 per acre, which the commission regarded excessive, and failing to secure a new trial in the circuit court took the case to the Supreme Court for review, where it was heard at the October, 1912, term, and at the December term following an opinion was handed down reversing and remanding the case for another trial.

The commission has made various surveys, including topographical surveys as far as necessary, to select the building site. The work of sinking a well to provide a water supply necessary for carrying forward the work of construction is now under way.

The plans for the new penitentiary proper are practically completed and the work on the plans for the asylum for the criminal insane is well under way. They have been prepared after the most careful study and investigation by the commission and by Mr. W. Carby's Zimmerman, the architect for the commission, assisted by Prof. C. R. Henderson, U. S. Prison Commissioner, President of the International Prison Congress and President of the International Prison Association, both of whom have visited all of the modern penal institutions in this country and Europe. These plans have been examined by the most noted criminologists, penologists and students of prison reform in this country, and many in Europe, and have been pronounced by them almost without exception, as representing the last word in prison construction.

Thus far the appropriations have not been sufficient to enable the commission to begin actual work of construction; besides the appropriation act of the last Legislature provides in terms that the plans shall be submitted to the Forty-eighth General Assembly for approval.

The land still involved in the condemnation proceedings mentioned is not included in the building site; therefore that litigation will not delay the work of beginning the construction of the penal institutions in question as soon as an appropriation is available for that purpose. Everything is in readiness to carry forward that work as soon as an appropriation to meet the cost of it is made.

As above stated the site consists of 2,193 acres. It is located three miles northwest of the city of Joliet. This selection was made after the most careful personal examination by the commissioners of all tracts near the city of Joliet supposed to be suitable as sites. The commissioners were assisted by agronomists who examined and tested the soils, and by geologists who examined and tested the stone with a view of determining the quantity and quality. About 500 acres of the site consists of a light clay loam, beneath which there is a bed of gravel, which geologists conservatively estimate at 5,866,666 cubic yards of gravel or enough to cover an eighteen foot road for a distance of 1,666 miles at a depth of one foot. Beneath the gravel there is an inexhaustible supply of Niagara lime stone, locally known as Joliet lime stone. The soil of the tract underlain by gravel is not the best agricultural land, but it has all been profitably used for that purpose for a great many years. The remainder of the site, almost 1,700 acres, is splendid agricultural land, most of which is unsurpassed by any found in Illinois.

The purchase price of the 1,810 acres already acquired, the title to which is now vested in the people of the State of Illinois, averages $206.23 per acre, together with certain concessions as to the use of the property by the former owners, subject however, to the right of the State to use all or any part of the property at any time in the construction of the penal institutions in question.

Of the original appropriation for the purchase of land and general expenses incident to the work of the commission, there remains $93,102.95, and of the appropriation of $100,000 by the last General Assembly, the use of which is limited to the preparation of plans, the making of surveys, etc., and matters incidental thereto, there remains $99,326.95. Out of these appropriations the land yet to be acquired and the plans must be paid for.

PRACTICE ACT.

In my biennial messages of 1905, 1907 and 1911 I called the attention of your honorable body to the advantage of a revision of our Practice Act and the rules governing our court procedure so as to simplify them and expedite the trial of cases. During the past eight years substantial progress has been made in these matters. Prior to 1907 the law governing practice in courts of record was embodied in a statute whose existence dated from the year 1872 and in a number of independent statutes relating to the same general subject. The statute of 1872 had been subject to frequent amendments and this, together with the passage of kindred statutes to supply the deficiencies of the original law, necessitated at the time of the passage of the new law in 1907 the repeal of no less than 21 acts that had previously been in force. Matters which had been dealt with in this disconnected way were grouped together in this one statute.

The Act of 1907 has been amended infrequently but carefully. In 1908 the manner of perfecting appeals to the Supreme and appellate courts was altered by amendment; and in 1909 the provisions of the Act relative to taking a case from the appellate court to the Supreme Court were simplified and the judgment of the appellate court was made final in all cases in which their jurisdiction was invoked pursuant to law, except those wherein appeals and writs of error are specifically required by the Constitution to be allowed from the appellate courts to the Supreme Court, and except:

- (1) Where a certificate of importance is granted by the appellate court.
- (2) Where a writ of certiorari is granted by the Supreme Court in proper cases as provided by the amendment.

The method of preserving correctly for review rulings of the court in the trial of a case was covered by an amendment in 1911, and during the same year the manner of obtaining service of legal process upon non-resident persons and co-partnerships was covered by another amendment.

Not only has there been an attempt to reduce the problems of practice in our courts to a system, but attempts have been made to secure the disposition of cases with dispatch. To this end two acts were passed in 1911 to secure a more speedy disposition of business in the appellate courts.

The same year the Employers' Compensation Act was passed, which provides a system of compensation for injuries received by employees in certain cases and determine the amount due in a particular instance in such a way as to lessen the likelihood of litigation and the attendant expense.

I am informed that measures will be presented to the General Assembly at this session which have been endorsed by the Bar Association of this State and other organizations providing for a further revision of practice and procedure in courts of record. Your honorable body is, of course, familiar with the discussion which is actively going on regarding this subject. The matter of simplification of procedure of our courts with a view to the more prompt disposition of judicial business, on its merits, is of such public importance and has been so widely discussed that there is no occasion for reviewing the arguments in its support.

It is a matter of such importance to the State, however, that I earnestly urge that you give it your favorable attention at the present session.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

The improvement in the administration of the State charitable institutions which followed the creation of the State Board of Administration, warrants an investigation of the question how far the policy can be extended with beneficial results. I therefore would recommend the creation of a commission to make an investigation of all places of the problem of dealing with the insane, defective, delinquent and criminal classes in a way which will secure the best results in treatment, care, custody and reformation and permit of the work being done with the greatest attainable economy.

The burden imposed by the care of the defective and delinquent of our State is one which can neither be escaped nor minimized. It is bound to grow, both with the increase of population and with the constant tendency to extend its benefits.

There is already an urgent demand and need for the care of epileptics, consumptives, crippled children, a new institution for the feeble-minded and two new institutions for juvenile offenders. The State now supports 18,749 wards, 7,574 of whom were added to the population of the State institutions during the last eight years. In the near future the State will be supporting double or treble the number it supports today. We are soon to have a large standing army of defective, delinquent and ailing persons, and the haphazard policy under which State institutions are now located and erected prevents their most economical and beneficial administration. Because of this increasing burden of expense, I recommend that a commission be appointed to serve without compensation, to make an investigation and report regarding plans for the present and future State institutions with a view to making them as nearly self-supporting as possible.

The work of this commission should include the investigation of such subjects as the purchasing of land, farms, live stock, the selection of sites for State buildings where building material can be prepared by the wards of the State, and related subjects. It should also investigate the feasibility of coördinating all of the institutions in such a way that each may serve the others wherever that can be done with advantage.

Because of the large initial cost that will be necessary to erect new plants and put them in operation, I deem it advisable that the commission should represent the different sections of the State and the several political parties and be composed of persons who are widely known and in whose character judgment and sympathies the people have confidence.

The commission could supplement the report of its investigations with plans and estimates for the guidance of the General Assembly and the creation and direction of a proper public sentiment upon this subject. A survey similar to the one suggested has been made of the University of Illinois by its trustees, and plans have been made to take care of its growth for many years to come, and it seems to me wise that the State should undertake such a survey with a view to meeting the needs of the defective, delinquent and ailing members of the State as a guide to succeeding legislatures, so that as new institutions are erected from time to time hereafter the work may be done according to a harmonious scheme of development.

The adoption of such a plan as the one suggested would, in my judgment, go far toward making many of the State institutions nearly, if not quite, self-supporting.

A similar commission could, in my opinion, serve the State advantageously in an investigation of plans for the coördination of existing boards and commissions whose duties overlap or are so similar as to permit of unification and reduction in number while improving their methods and the economy of their administration. The commission could be composed of the State officers and representatives of the University of Illinois. There would be no occasion for any additional expense on the part of the State for the conduct of the work of such a commission.

In view of the successful operation of the law creating the State Board of Administration, and the relation which the penal institutions bear to the charitable institutions so far as their business management is concerned, as well as the manufacture of materials by the penal institutions for the use of the charitable institutions, I recommend that the jurisdiction of the State Board of Administration be extended to include the penal institutions which are not already within its jurisdiction.

AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION.

The necessity for constitutional amendments has been recognized by all political parties. No less than four constitutional amendments were advocated in the last platform of the Democratic party and nine in that of the Progressive party. The Republican party platform advocated the amending of the clause of the Constitution relating to constitutional amendments which now prohibits the amendment of more than one article of the Constitution at the same time, and suggested that the amendment should provide for the submission to the people of amendments to not more than three articles of the Constitution at the same time. The Republican suggestion grew out of conditions which confronted the last General Assembly, when four constitutional amendments were presented for consideration, namely: the short ballot; the initiative and referendum; the reform of our system of taxation; and the abolition of the system of cumulative voting.

So great was the diversity of opinion as to the relative importance of these amendments that the General Assembly was unable to decide between them and none was submitted to the people. An effort was later made at the special session of the General Assembly to secure the submission of an amendment to the amending clause, making it more liberal, but it also failed to secure the necessary legislative support.

Many persons are now contending that a constitutional convention should be called for the framing of a new State Constitution. My own impression is that, should such a step be taken it should be preceded by the creation of a commission to investigate all subjects calling for constitutional amendment, and I would suggest that this work can best be done under the direction of the University of Illinois.

Such a commission should make a survey of each unit of the State Government and each branch of the State's activities. Its report should give a complete history of the conditions, laws and administration of each unit of our government and of each branch of the State's service. It should show the relation of each unit of government to others of like kind and should point out overlapping and conflicting jurisdictions and service and make recommendations wherein administration could be simplified and made more economical.

The report of the commission should also point out how similar conditions in laws and administration have been met and improved in other states and countries, and should make such recommendations along lines of coördination as will enable the State to perform its work more simply, easily, promptly, economically and usefully.

Efforts in this direction are at the present time hampered by lack of information and by misinformation regarding the different departments and also by lack of a comprehensive view of the work of the State as a whole. Such a survey would not only be of advantage in pointing out defects and furnishing a basis for the intelligent discussion of all questions involved, but would likewise perform a useful service in enlightening the people of the State as to the great efficiency and economy with which the government as a whole is at present conducted.

The University of Illinois has the facilities for organizing a work of this kind promptly and efficiently and selecting a corps of officials well qualified to conduct it.

In my opinion it would be wise to engage in this preliminary work before the calling of any convention for the general revision of our State Constitution or for the framing of a new one. There is at present too much evidence of a willingness to enter upon such work without due preparation.

CORPORATION LAW.

I have heretofore directed the attention of your honorable body to the necessity for the general revision of our law affecting corporations. Such a revision was passed at the 1909 session of the General Assembly, but owing to the provisions of section 31 of the Act conferring upon corporations power to own stock in other corporations, I felt constrained to veto the bill because in my judgment it did not surround this power with proper limitations. The Bar Association of our State and other organizations have favored a revision of our corporation laws and there can be no doubt that it would be an advantage so to amend the law as to permit corporations to meet modern requirements and conditions in the conduct of their business, whilst giving to the State adequate power to regulate and control them. Their organizations under the laws of our State would bring a large revenue into the public treasury.

STOCK GAMBLING.

I would also recommend the enactment of legislation protecting the public against losses from the purchase of stocks and bonds of bogus stock gambling companies.

BANKING.

The recent failure of a number of private banks has attracted attention to the subject of making more adequate provision for their public regulation, so as to prevent a recurrence of conditions revealed by these failures. In my biennial message of 1907, I discussed the subject of bank regulation and I renew the recommendations there made.

UNIFORM LEGISLATION.

A subject of great interest to our State is that of uniformity of legislation in relation to certain matters of business affecting the public welfare. Our State maintains a permanent commission on uniform State laws and upon its recommendation we have already enacted a uniform Negotiable Instruments Act, a uniform Warehouse Receipts Act and a uniform Bills of Lading Act with great advantage to our business interests. Two other acts have been recommended by this commission; a uniform Sales Act and a uniform Transfer of Stock Act, which I again recommend to your favorable consideration.

UNIFORM ACCOUNTING.

I have already spoken of the creation of a commission to make a general survey of our laws and their administration with a view to their revision and amendment and the coördination and better organization of State commissions, boards and departments. Pending such a comprehensive survey I would recommend the adoption of some uniform system of public accounting for the State, the counties and municipalities which will make it possible for the citizens to compare expenditures and income of similar political bodies and furnish a basis for judging of their efficiency and economy.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL CASE.

I would also direct your attention to the present status of the case against the Illinois Central Railroad Company. In my biennial message of 1911, beginning at page 2, will be found a general discussion of the findings of the Supreme Court and of the condition of the case at the time that message was submitted to your honorable body. Since that time, various court proceedings have been had which have led to a decree in favor of the State referring the case to a master in chancery to take evidence and determine the basis of the accounting between the State and the company. When that question is determined by the master in chancery and approved by the court, an accounting will be stated in accordance therewith. Commenting upon this decree the report of the Attorney General says:

"The decision of the court, which was made after a vigorous and stubborn resistance on the part of the attorneys for the company, was a most important one for the State. A contrary decision would have resulted practically in defeating the right of the State to an accounting from the defendant as to its gross receipts since Oct. 31, 1904, and would likewise have made it extremely difficult, if not impracticable, for the State to secure a proper accounting in the future."

The importance of this case warrants me in urging that its prosecution receive the liberal support of your honorable body. Its successful prosecution will for the first time secure a judicial determination of the terms of the contract between the State and the Illinois Central Railroad Company and result in a large increase of revenue to the State thereunder.

THE ELECTION LAW.

I recommend the revision of the General Election Law, so that the service of judges and clerks of election may be made compulsory and that courts and boards of election commissioners may have power to appoint such judges and clerks (when such may be deemed necessary by the county court) to act in precincts where they do not reside.

I have noticed as an observer of the work of the State Canvassing Board that a large number of mistakes are made in the counting of ballots and it is apparent to me that our election laws and their administration might be greatly improved.

PRIMARY ELECTION LAW.

I also recommend an amendment to the Primary Election Law allowing every candidate to have challengers and watchers at the polls. The present law permits of collusion between the judges and clerks and committees with a purpose of defrauding candidates. The Election Law contains such a provision.

I also recommend that provision be made for the amendment of the law relating to the filing of nomination petitions by candidates. Several plans for such amendment have been suggested including the printing of the names of candidates in alphabetical order. A method should be adopted whereby the voter could easily ascertain the name of the person for whom he desires to vote.

CORRUPT PRACTICES ACT.

I again recommend the enactment of an effective corrupt practice act. This matter was included in the call for the special session on Dec. 14, 1909, and was called to the attention of your honorable body in my special message of that date and in my last biennial message. Corrupt practice bills were introduced at both sessions but failed of enactment. I reiterate the views expressed in my previous messages as to the importance of this enactment and again urge it upon the favorable consideration of your honorable body.

ANTI-PASS LAW.

I also repeat my recommendation of the enactment of an anti-pass law governing steam and electric railroads and of anti-frank law governing telegraph, telephone and express companies and of a law prohibiting gas and electric companies from furnishing service without charge to public officials.

RULES OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

I direct the attention of the General Assembly to the necessity for such an amendment of the rules governing both branches of the General Assembly as will take from the presiding officers thereof the power to control the course of legislation and prevent the discussion of bills and vote thereon. The great powers exercised by such officers under the present rules are not sufficiently defined or limited. The rules should be so amended as to give greater publicity to legislative proceedings and afford to the legislative majority greater control over them. Our legislative machinery should be simplified so that its operation may be easily understood and the work of the General Assembly should be conducted in such a manner as to inspire confidence on the part of the public that full opportunity is afforded for the proper consideration of legislative measures and that all measures of public importance are certain to have a fair opportunity to be discussed, considered and voted upon.

Such a change in our legislative proceedings would tend to increase respect for the law and conduce to its successful administration. On the contrary the knowledge or opinion on the part of the people that legislation may be manipulated by a minority or in private interest, inevitably impairs confidence in laws in general and weakens the forces of government.

DIRECT ELECTION OF UNITED STATES SENATORS.

The General Assembly of our State in 1909 passed a joint resolution in reference to the election of United States Senators directly by the people. Since that time the federal congress has submitted to the states an amendment to the federal constitution providing for the direct election of United States Senators by the people.

In view of the favorable judgment already expressed by the General Assembly of our State on this subject and of the fact that there is no substantial difference of opinion among our people in relation to it, I suggest that it receive the prompt consideration of your honorable body.

EXECUTIVE EXPENDITURES.

For a statement of the expenditures made by me for this department from funds subject to my order, your attention is directed to the Biennial Report of the Auditor of Public Accounts for the period ending September 30, 1912. Vouchers for all such expenditures have been filed in the Auditor's office. Vouchers for expenditures subsequent to September 30, 1912, are on file in that office and will be presented in his following report.

I have also appended hereto a statement of the funds appropriated by the federal government in payment of the services of soldiers who enlisted from Illinois in the Spanish-American War, showing the disposition of such funds.

CHARLES S. DENEEN,

Governor.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The President of the Senate presented the following communication, which, under the rules, he ordered to be printed and referred to the Committee on Canals and Rivers:

JANUARY 17, 1913.

SUBMERGED AND SHORE LANDS; EAST ST. LOUIS RIVER FRONT.

To the Forty-eighth General Assembly of Illinois:

GENTLEMEN—By virtue of a joint resolution of the Forty-sixth General Assembly, a committee consisting of six members of the House of Representatives and four members of the Senate, was appointed "to make a careful and complete investigation of the rights of the State of Illinois, in land lying along, in and upon Lake Michigan, the rivers and lakes and other navigable bodies of water of this State, and to report its conclusion to the next General Assembly of this State and to the Governor of Illinois, as to the rights of the State and its people in and to the same."

That committee made its report to the Forty-seventh General Assembly.

In regard to that report, the Forty-seventh General Assembly passed a joint resolution which, omitting the preamble, is as follows:

"Resolved, by the House of Representatives, the Senate concurring herein, That the report of said committee and all of the accompanying documents and data, above referred to, be transmitted to the Department of Justice of the State of Illinois and there filed for the use of the Attorney General of this State, and that the Attorney General be requested to examine said report and to investigate the same and that wherever in his judgment and the judgment of his department the interests of the State of Illinois require protection or action either to regain lands wrongfully occupied or to compel restitution of the same or to inquire into or call in question the charter powers and rights of companies occupying such lands and assuming to exercise exclusive privileges and franchises in connection therewith, that the same shall be instituted by him in any court or courts of competent jurisdiction upon behalf of the State of Illinois.

"And the Legislature of the State of Illinois pledges itself to support such official action of the Attorney General of this State in prosecution of all claims and actions which in his judgment should be advanced, and for that purpose we commit ourselves to making sufficient appropriation for his use to enable the Attorney General of this State to institute a department of his office for the purpose of protecting and asserting all the rights of the State of Illinois with reference to this subject-matter." (Session Laws, 1911, p. 549.)

A portion of the report of the committee pertains to the accretions and made lands adjoining shore land on the Mississippi River from Venice to a point below the city of East St. Louis, on the Illinois side of the river.

This opinion is confined to the rights of the State of Illinois to those accretions and made lands.

In the year eighteen hundred, the physical situation of the Mississippi River in front of the territories now occupied by the cities of St. Louis and East St. Louis, respectively, was materially different from what it is at the present time. The change has been wrought through the persistent struggle of the United States Government and the city of St. Louis with the natural action of the river, to preserve the harbor of St. Louis.

A few miles above St. Louis is located the chain of rocks. In 1800, Cascarot Island was located just below the chain of rocks. At this point, the water of the river divided, and the larger volume of it passed to the west of the island. The action of the water wore away the Missouri shore in front of the island, and made quite a bend in the river extending to the foot of the island. As the water left this bend, the current, by reason of the curve in the shore, was projected toward the Illinois shore above the point where Bloody Island formed. Just below the foot of Cascarot Island, the river was very narrow for considerable distance. This formed a gorge, the lower end of which was a short distance above the point where Venice is now located. From the lower end of the gorge, the river widened, and, from that point to a point just below St. Louis, was very wide. The water from the channels on the east and west of Cascarot Island entering the gorge increased the velocity of the current throughout the length of it, and the current in that reach of the river was very swift. The current scoured out the bed of the river in that reach, and when the water reached the wider part of the river below, the current slackened, and the silt carried in the water from the bed of the gorge, was deposited throughout the reach of the river below. By this process Bloody Island was formed. It made its first appearance in 1798 as a small sand bar, and increased rapidly in size. In 1818, it was surveyed by the federal government, and comprised several acres. At that time, the head of Bloody Island was about opposite to the present location of Lebaume street in the city of St. Louis, and the foot of the island was about opposite the present location of Franklin avenue. The width of the channel between the island and the Missouri shore was about fifteen hundred feet at the narrowest place, and the width of the channel between the island and the Illinois shore was about eleven hundred feet at its narrowest place.

The direction of the flow of the water from the foot of Cascarot Island, continued toward the Illinois shore. At a point above the head of Bloody Island, the flow divided and the larger part of it passed to the west of Bloody Island, and the rest passed on the Illinois side. But the stronger current passed through the east channel. The action of this current rapidly wore away the Illinois shore. And from the year 1803 to 1849, the shore from a point a short distance below the location of the head of Bloody Island in 1818, down to the point where the Pittsburg Dyke was located, was worn away for approximately a thousand feet back of the shore line of 1803. As the channel encroached on the Illinois shore, accretions formed on the east shore of the island, and on the south end, so that in 1849, the width of the channel between the Illinois shore and the island, at its narrowest place, was about nine hundred feet.

The same action of the river that caused Bloody Island to form, operated to obstruct the channel of the Missouri side, just below the city of St. Louis. Duncan Island was located at that point. The water deposited its silt in the channel near that island, and a bar was formed extending from Duncan Island toward the foot of Bloody Island. As, through the course of years, the volume of water passing through the channel on the Illinois side of Bloody Island increased, the flow of the water, in the channel on the Missouri side, was less swift. This resulted in the rapid increase of the extension of the bar at the head of Duncan Island, and tended to form obstructions in that channel above that island and opposite the city of St. Louis. This situation became the cause of alarm to the city of St. Louis, as to the preservation of its harbor, as early as 1830. It applied to the federal government to take such action as might be necessary to preserve the harbor. Surveys of that reach of the river and plans were made by the government to remove the obstructions in the channel west of Bloody Island to preserve the harbor. Nothing further was done, however, towards accomplishing those ends, until during the period between 1837 and 1839. During that period, it seems that the federal government and the city of St. Louis were acting in conjunction. Captain Robert E. Lee was in charge of the work. The plan was to contract the width of the river, from Venice down to Bloody Island, and thus force the whole volume of water through the channel west of Bloody Island. It was thought that, if that plan were carried out, the flow of the water in that channel would be swift enough to scour out the channel and remove the existing obstructions. The plan was to make the Illinois shore line conform to a line drawn from Venice to the head of Bloody Island, thence through the Island to its foot, and thence prolonged to a point opposite Market street. (Senate Ex. Doc. No. 20, 46th Congress, 2nd Session, p. 23.) In the execution of this plan, a dyke was built from Venice extending toward the head of Bloody Island to the length of 3,800 feet in 1839, 1840 and 1841, and a dyke was built from the foot of Bloody Island to the prolongation of Market street, about 3,400 feet in 1839. The dyke from Venice that was built did not, however, extend to the head of Bloody Island. The portion of it that was built had the effect to divert to some extent the current flowing from the foot of Cascarot Island, that struck the Illinois shore in the vicinity of Venice, from following the Illinois shore, and toward the Missouri shore. While the result was that the bars and obstructions in the channel west of Bloody Island were to some extent removed, the plan had not been sufficiently executed to arrest the growth of the channel east of the island, and prevent further obstructions from forming in the future in the channel west of the island. From 1840 to 1847, the channel east of Bloody Island was rapidly becoming the main channel of the river. During that period the city of St. Louis and the federal government exerted their efforts to relieve the situation, without obtaining satisfactory results.

In 1848, the city of St. Louis provided an extensive plan for the preservation of its harbor. This plan provided for building a dyke from Venice to the head of Bloody Island, two dykes from the Illinois shore to connect with the dyke from Venice, one of which to extend from Brooklyn, and the other from the boundary line between Madison and St. Clair counties; a dyke extending from the Illinois shore to Bloody Island at a point about opposite Locust street in St. Louis, and another dyke at a point a short distance above the lower mouth of Cahokia Creek, extending from the Illinois shore toward Duncan Island. The plan also provided for the treatment of the west shore of Bloody Island. The purpose to be accomplished by this plan was to close the channel east of Bloody Island, and make the Illinois shore line parallel with the Missouri shore line, and conform to a line drawn from Venice to the head of Bloody Island and with the west shore of that island.

The city of St. Louis commenced the construction of the dyke from the Illinois shore to the island, and was enjoined from building it by the State of Illinois. The Supreme Court held that the channel east of Bloody Island was a navigable stream and could not be closed or obstructed without the consent of Illinois. (People v. City of St. Louis, 5 Gilm. 351.) The city of St. Louis then appealed to the General Assembly of Illinois for consent to carry out the plan above stated. The General Assembly, by joint resolution passed in February 1849, consented to the project. That resolution is as follows:

"WHEREAS, A suit has been pending in the St. Clair County circuit court, on the equity side thereof, wherein the people of the State of Illinois were plaintiffs and the city of St. Louis and others were defendants, the general object of which said suit was to restrain and prohibit the said defendants from obstructing the navigation of the Mississippi River by the construction of works designed for the improvement of the harbor of said city; and,

"WHEREAS, The General Assembly of the State of Illinois is desirous of interposing no objections to any improvements of the harbor of St. Louis which can be constructed without injury to the general navigation of the main channel of the Mississippi River; be it, therefore

"Resolved, by the House of Representatives, the Senate concurring herein, That upon a compliance with the conditions and terms hereinafter mentioned, the city of St. Louis is hereby authorized and empowered to proceed with and complete the works now in progress of construction within the limits of this State, designed for the improvement of the harbor of the said city of St. Louis, in the Mississippi River, according to the ordinances of said city, heretofore passed by the city council of St. Louis, for that purpose.

*"Second—*The city of St. Louis shall cause to be filed in the office of the Secretary of State for this State, a bond or other instrument in writing, good and valid in law, to be approved by the Governor of this State, binding the said city of St. Louis, as soon as practicable, to complete and construct a road or highway over the dam or dyke now in progress of construction by said city, opposite the town of Illinoistown, from Bloody Island to the main land on the Illinois shore; said road to be so constructed as to afford a safe and commodious highway from the Illinois shore to and upon Bloody Island; and further, that the owners of the property on the Illinois shore and of Bloody Island, to and on which said road is to be constructed, will grant the right of way, and undisturbed to the public forever, over said road or highway, without any toll or tax therefor; but this easement or right of way shall not extend to any incorporated or chartered company, except the St. Clair County ferry and the St. Clair County Turnpike Company, saving to the owners of said land, commonly known as the Wiggins Ferry Company, all rights granted, and now vested in them under and by virtue of the laws of this State and their acts of incorporation.

*"Third—*That all the rights and privileges to a ferry landing are hereby reserved to the St. Clair County ferry to which they are entitled under the provisions of an act of the General Assembly of this State, approved March 2, 1839; and the city of St. Louis shall file or cause to be filed with the county commissioners' court of St. Clair County, such an instrument in writing, as shall be adjudged sufficient by the Governor of this State, as will secure to the said St. Clair County ferry, either a landing for said ferry on Bloody Island on the Mississippi River, running out from and fronting as near as may be the landing which said St. Clair County ferry had on the main land of the Illinois shore before the making of said improvements. Or, that if said St. Clair County ferry shall be compelled to condemn a road and ferry landing, according to the provisions of her said act of incorporation, that then the city of St. Louis will pay the amount of damages that may be assessed in such proceedings, and the costs thereof. But said city of St. Louis shall be obliged to secure to said St. Clair County ferry, the rights she now has, and such as may be determined to belong to said ferry by a suit now pending in the supreme court of the United States between the said St. Clair County ferry and the Wiggins Ferry Company.

*"Fourth—*The city of St. Louis shall, in accordance with the general plan of said works, construct the two dams or dykes from the main Illinois shore to the dam or dyke running from Venice to the head of Bloody Island, and which dams or dykes are designated on the map of said works, compiled in January, 1849, by Henry Keyser, superintendent of said works, as W. and V., one running from Brooklyn and the other from the line dividing Madison and St. Clair counties, to said main dyke from Bloody Island to Venice. Said two cross dams to be constructed simultaneously with such main dyke and cross dykes, to be completed within two years from the adoption of these resolutions; and the owners of the Madison County ferry are authorized to construct a road or highway on said cross dam marked V., and the Illinois Coal Company are authorized to construct a road or highway on said cross dam marked W.; but said roads shall be constructed so as not to injure said works, and are to extend to the river and be free to the public forever as highways. And the said Illinois Coal Company may use said road on said dam marked W. as a highway, for the passage of persons and property, by railroad or otherwise to and from the main shore to the said main dyke. And said Madison County ferry may use said road on said dam marked V., as a highway for the passage of persons and property to and from said shore on the Mississippi River; and any arrangement which the owners of said ferries shall respectively make with the city of St. Louis, respecting said cross dams, or the road thereon, as to their construction and the time thereof, shall be good and valid; Provided, said arrangement does not interfere with the navigation of the main channel of the Mississippi River, or private rights.

"Fifth—That nothing in the foregoing resolutions shall be so construed as to authorize the city of St. Louis to impede, obstruct, or in any manner injure the navigation of the main channel of the Mississippi River, nor to impair the sovereignty or jurisdiction of this State, where said improvements are to be made within the territorial limits of this State, nor to invalidate any claim which any citizen of this State may now or hereafter have against the said city of St. Louis for damages sustained by reason of the construction of said works, or the overflow of water caused by the same. And the Governor of this State is hereby authorized to modify the terms contained in the foregoing resolutions, or either of them, if in his judgment such modification shall promote the public interests, or that harmony and good feeling which the General Assembly desires to cultivate, and which should subsist between the people of the states of Illinois and Missouri."

Under this resolution, the project was substantially carried out to completion. The dyke was built across the east channel; the dykes at Brooklyn and at the Madison and St. Clair County line were built to their full length, and the dyke just above the lower mouth of Cahokia Creek was built and extended six hundred feet into the river. The dyke from Venice to the head of Bloody Island was not built to the head of the island. The construction of that dyke to the head of the island was abandoned, because its construction was not deemed necessary to accomplish the general purpose of the project. The abandonment seems to have been acquiesced in by the State of Illinois. (Laws 1851, page 150.)

The Pittsburg Dyke was built in 1865 by the Illinois and St. Louis Railroad Company. It was located a short distance below the south line of survey number 579. It was located mostly on a dry bar, but extended into the river.

Bowman's Dyke which is now part of Missouri avenue in East St. Louis, was built across the channel in 1869, and Vaughn's Dyke which is now a part of Trendley avenue, was built across the channel between 1873 and 1875. Between 1854 and 1875, the railroads entering East St. Louis, extended their tracks across the channel to the river front, on structures built for that purpose. The result of all of these structures was to exclude the river from the channel east of the island, and through the course of the years, by both natural and artificial means, that channel has become almost filled up.

Lee's Dyke extending from Venice, and the various cross dykes built from the Illinois shore into the river, and the closing of the channel east of Bloody Island, caused accretions to the Illinois shore from Venice down to East St. Louis, to form rapidly, and the shore line to encroach on the river to a considerable distance, resulting in the formation of a large area of "made land" in this region. But the forming of accretions in this region was not sufficient to extend the shore line out to the line contemplated by the general scheme of harbor improvement undertaken by the city of St. Louis, hereinbefore stated. That is, the shore line thus formed did not conform to a line drawn from Venice to the head of Bloody Island. There was quite a bend left in the Illinois shore from Venice down to the point which marked the head of the island at the time the channel was sufficiently filled up to make a continuous shore line from Venice to the head of the island.

Some twelve years ago, the federal government built twelve dykes between Venice and the point which was formerly the head of Bloody Island. The dykes extended from the Illinois shore into the river far enough so that when the shore line would be advanced to the ends of the dykes by the formation of accretions, the bend above mentioned would be eliminated, and the shore from Venice to that point would be straight. The result of building these dykes has been to cause additional "made land" along the shore, in that region, to form.

Lee's Dyke, built at the foot of Bloody Island in 1838-1839, caused the island to extend to the south by the formation of accretions until, in 1849, the foot of the island was about five hundred feet north of the south line of survey number 579 extended. The extension of the island to this point, and the closing of the channel east of the island, and the dyke just above the lower mouth of Cahokia Creek, and the Pittsburg Dyke, caused accretions to the shore to form between the point that marked the foot of the island and the dyke just above the lower mouth of Cahokia Creek, and also below that dyke for some distance, so that a large area of "made land" has been formed in that region.

For some time prior to 1763, the territory which now comprises St. Clair County, was under the dominion of France. In 1764, it passed under the dominion of Great Britain, and, during the War of the Revolution, it was wrested from the British by Virginia, and was ceded to the United States by Virginia. Claims to land in that territory were made by persons claiming under the authority of the respective governments of France, Great Britain, and Virginia. To settle those claims, to place the title to lands in that territory on a stable basis, and to provide for granting lands to occupants of the Kaskaskia and Cahokia settlements, as well as of the settlements of Vincennes and of other portions of the Illinois Country, the congress of the United States passed an act of 1791 (U. S. Statutes at Large, Vol. I, p. 221). Under the provisions of that act, a grant of not exceeding one hundred acres of land was authorized to be made to each person who had not obtained any donation of land from the United States, and who, on the first day of August, 1790, was enrolled in the militia at Vincennes or in the Illinois Country, who had done military duty, and also where land had been actually improved and cultivated in said territory, under a supposed grant of the same by any commandant or court claiming authority to make such grant, authority was conferred to confirm to the person who made such improvements, his heirs or assigns, the land supposed to have been granted, not exceeding four hundred acres.

Under the authority to make military grants, survey number 766, in St. Clair County, was, by act of congress of May 6, 1810, confirmed in Nicholas Jarrott, under the claim of Joachim Couillard, number 100. (2 Amer. State Papers, p. 141; 2 U. S. St. at Large, 607); survey number 624, was, by act of congress April 16, 1814, confirmed in the heirs of James Piggot, under claim number 489. (2 Amer. State Papers, 206; 3 U. S. Statutes at Large, 125); and survey number 579 was, by act of congress May 1, 1810, confirmed in Nicholas Jarrott, under claim of Jean Dumochell, number 99, (2 Amer. State Papers, 141; 2 U. S. Statutes at Large, 607). Under the authority to make grants based on claims of actual improvement and cultivation of land, under a supposed grant, survey number 786, was, by act of congress April 16, 1814, confirmed in the heirs of Pierre Condaire, under claim of Pierre Condaire number 2667, (2 Amer. State Papers, 613-615; 3 U. S. Statutes at Large, p. ...).

Surveys 766, 624 and 579 joined each other and abutted on the Mississippi River. The north line of survey 766 is a short distance above Winter av., extended, in East St. Louis, and the south line of survey 579 is four or five hundred feet north of the line of the municipal free bridge, extended. Survey 786 includes surveys 766, 624 and 579. The north line of survey 786 is identical with the north line of survey 766, and the west line is identical with the west line of surveys 766, 624 and 579. The south line of survey 786 is a few feet below the south line of survey 579. When these surveys were laid out, their western boundary was the Mississippi River. (Lovington v. People, 64 Ill., 56.)

In 1849, Bloody Island occupied a position in the river, directly in front of these surveys and extended from a point considerably north of the north line of survey 766, to a point about five hundred feet north of the south line of survey 579, extended.

Samuel Wiggins became the owner of these surveys prior to the year 1830, and they were by him conveyed to the persons who comprised the co-partnership of Wiggins Ferry Company, and, when the Wiggins Ferry Company incorporated, it acquired title to these surveys.

The Illinois shore from Venice down to survey 766, was occupied by fractional sections 11 and 2, township 2, north, of range ten west of the third principal meridian, and surveys 764, 623 and 618. The fractional sections and surveys ran to the river. These surveys were military grants. Survey 764 was, by act of congress, May 1, 1810, confirmed in Jacob Trout, under claim of John Moredock, number 610. (2 Amer. State Papers, 145; 2 U. S. Statutes at Large, 607.) Survey 623 was, by the same act of congress, confirmed in John Biggs, under claim of John Lisle, number 484 (2 Amer. State Papers, 144). Survey 618 was, by act of congress April 16, 1814, confirmed in Etienne Pencennoe, under claim of Jean Baptiste Becket, number 548, (2 Amer. State Papers, 204; 3 U. S. Statutes at Large, 125). Fractional sections 2 and 11 were granted by patents by the United States to private individuals and through mean conveyances were acquired by Samuel Wiggins prior to the year 1831, and, when the Wiggins Ferry Company became incorporated, were acquired by it.

Patents for Bloody Island as parts of fractional sections 2 and 11 were issued to Samuel Wiggins by the United States in 1825, and when the Wiggins Company was incorporated, it acquired the title to the island.

The Illinois shore from the south line of survey 786 down to the village of Cahokia was occupied by survey 759. Two surveys of that tract were made—one May 8, 1808, and one May 12, 1808. According to the first survey, survey 759 joined survey 786. According to the second survey, the north line of survey 759 was over three thousand feet south of survey 786. By both surveys, however, the tract extended to the river. This tract was one of two appropriated under the authority of section 5 of the act of congress, March 3, 1791, to the use of the inhabitants of the village of Cahokia, as a common field "until otherwise disposed of by law." (2 Amer. State Papers, 167; 1 U. S. Statutes at Large, 221.) It has been generally regarded that this tract lies immediately south of survey 786. This tract was the subject of the consideration of the constitutional conventions of 1818 and 1848, of Illinois, and the constitutions of those dates contain provisions applicable to it. It has also been the subject of legislation by the General Assembly of Illinois. Under the authority of the Constitution of 1848 and subsequent legislation, this tract, or at least a part of it, has been subdivided into lots, and those lots have been disposed of to private individuals, so that the portion of the tract abutting on the river, and included within the portion of the shore covered by this opinion, became the property of private individuals.

So far as I have been able to ascertain, none of the surveys and fractional sections above described and along the shore from Venice down to below the limits of East St. Louis, has ever been conveyed to the State of Illinois, by any one claiming title to them, or by any other person. It is apparent, therefore, that the State of Illinois was never, and is not now, a riparian owner along the reach of the shore above described, unless it became so as owner of the accretions which formed and attached to the shore.

The present shore line throughout the reach of the shore lands covered by this opinion, is about one thousand feet further west, than it was at the time the surveys above described were laid out.

The Wiggins Ferry Company was incorporated by special charter granted by the General Assembly of Illinois in 1853. (Sess. Laws 1853, p. 193.)

Among the powers granted to the company by its charter are the following:

"First—To acquire by purchase or otherwise, and hold any lands or interest in lands, in fee simple or less estate, in the counties of St. Clair and Madison, or either of them, and on or near the Mississippi River, and not exceeding twelve hundred acres and also other lands further from the Mississippi River, for coal mines, not exceeding three hundred acres, and also to purchase, hold, use and enjoy the ferry franchise heretofore granted to Samuel Wiggins, his heirs and assigns, by the act referred to in the preamble of this act.

"Sec. 2. To construct a levee and other works calculated to improve the harbor and ferry landing, to construct a wharf on the Mississippi River, and grade and pave the same, or any part or all of said lands fronting on said river, and after the same shall be graded and paved, shall have the right to charge, collect and receive wharfage at such rates as may from time to time be fixed by the by-laws of said company, not exceeding the rates of wharfage charged in St. Louis, Mo., on boats, vessels and rafts landing or lying at such wharf.

"Sec. 4. To survey and lay off said lands or any part thereof, into blocks, lots, streets and alleys and grade and pave said streets and alleys, or any part thereof, and to lay off and dedicate to public use, grounds for market places, schools, churches and parks, and to sell, lease and donate any part of said lands, in such manner and upon such terms as said company may deem proper, and execute conveyances for the same, and to subscribe for, take and buy and hold and sell stock in any railroad, or plank or turnpike road company and issue bonds bearing such rate of interest and payable at such times and places as the company may think proper, not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars.

"Sec. 5. To keep a ferry or ferries at and from any point or points on said lands, across the Mississippi River, to St. Louis, in the state of Missouri, and to remove the same from place to place on said lands as necessity or convenience may require, and use boats or other crafts propelled by steam, heat or other power, and possess, use and enjoy all the rights, privileges, franchises and emoluments recited in the preamble of this act as having been heretofore granted to the said Samuel Wiggins, his heirs and assigns, on and from the lands to be purchased as herein provided for, and generally to do and perform all things in reference to the ownership, control, management, use and disposition of said ferry franchise, ferry and lands, and of the business carried on thereat, which a natural person might or could do."

The charter also contains the following provisions:

"Sec. 7. This act shall not be construed to interfere with any ferry now established by law, and is hereby declared to be a public act, and shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage: Provided, that nothing in this act contained shall be construed to create any private right so as to interfere with the powers of any existing municipal corporation, or with the right of the Legislature at any time hereafter, to create municipal corporations within the limits herein specified and to confer upon said corporations all such powers of police and also all such powers to open and extend streets, lanes, and alleys, and to improve, manage and control the same, and also such powers to enter upon and condemn land within the limits aforesaid, for public wharves and to improve, control and fix the rates of wharfage for the same as may be usually or properly confided to a city corporation under the Constitution of Illinois.

"Sec. 8. Whenever a town or city shall be established on said land or on the adjacent and contiguous land, it shall be lawful for the corporate authority of such town or city to own and possess the said wharves and landing on paying to the proprietors thereof, hereby incorporated, the cost of the same—from and after which time the said wharves and landings shall be dedicated to the use of such town or city, and said town or city shall have the right to establish and charge reasonable wharfage for the use of the same: Provided, that the same shall not exceed the wharfage dues charged and collected by the city of St. Louis.

"Sec. 9. The cost of said wharves, landings etc., shall be ascertained by petition filed with the county court of St. Clair County, on notice to anyone of the persons named as corporators in this act, of at least five days before presenting the petition, and the said court shall on presenting said petition, appoint three disinterested persons, who, after being sworn before some judge or justice of the peace, faithfully and impartially to examine the premises, shall proceed to estimate the cost of said wharves and landings and make a written report of the same to the said court, which shall be filed and recorded in said court, and on payment or tender of the amount so assessed and found, the said wharves and landings and all estate in them, shall be transferred to the said corporation petition as aforesaid: Provided, however, that either party may appeal to the circuit court and to the Supreme Court as in other cases."

In 1819, the General Assembly of Illinois granted to Samuel Wiggins a franchise to establish a ferry on the waters of the Mississippi, near the town of Illinois, and to run the same from lands at the said place that might belong to him, provided that he should not use any boat, or water craft, except such as should be propelled or urged through the water by steam, horses, oxen or other four-footed animals, and provided also that he, his heirs or assigns, should have the said ferry in actual operation within eighteen months from and after the passage of the act granting the franchise. (Laws 1819, p. 104.) The act also provided that, except as to ferries already established in that locality, no ferry other than that of Samuel Wiggins should be established within one mile of his, and prescribed as a penalty for a violation of this exclusive privilege, the forfeiture to said Wiggins, his heirs and assigns, of any boat or boats that might be run within the mile limit. The act also provided that this provision making the franchise exclusive, might be repealed if it should be made to appear to the General Assembly, that it was injurious to the public. The provision that no ferry should be established within one mile of the ferry of Samuel Wiggins was repealed in 1833. (Sess. Laws 1833, p. 310.)

This ferry franchise together with the land hereinbefore described as belonging to Samuel Wiggins, was acquired by the Wiggins Ferry Company, under the authority conferred upon it by its charter.

Before Bloody Island was connected with the Illinois shore by the Broadway Dyke in 1854, it was practically a wilderness and uninhabited except occasionally a fisherman built a shanty and took up a temporary abode there. After the dyke was built and a sufficient roadway was made on it, the ferry landings were moved from the main shore, to the west shore of the Island, and the ferry business was done from that shore. The first landing afterwards known as the lower landing was established a short distance below the dyke. Between 1854 and 1857, the Ohio and Mississippi Railroad Company extended its track across the channel and the island and established its depot on the river front. Afterwards, and before 1865, other railroad companies did likewise. These depots were located between Broadway Dyke and the upper end of the island. Most of them were located at the upper end of the island, the Ohio and Mississippi depot being in the vicinity of what is now Winter avenue. Freight and passengers destined for St. Louis and carried on these railroads were unloaded at these depots and ferried across the river. To accommodate this business, a ferry was established near what is now known as Winter avenue and was called the upper landing. For the accommodation of the business with these depots and this ferry landing, a road extended along the shore from Broadway Dyke as far north as the depots were located. This road was not right on the shore. Its distance from the water's edge, when the river was at ordinary stage, varied from one hundred to three hundred feet. At its nearest point to the river, it was at least one hundred feet from the water. This road was not maintained by any public authority. It was kept in condition by the Wiggins Ferry Co. I have not been able to ascertain definitely at what period there was a well defined road from the head of the island across the channel to the main shore. From the best information that I have been able to get, it did not exist prior to 1865, although at times between 1862 and 1865, when the river was quite low, teams crossed from the shore to the head of the island. It seems, however, that in 1869 and 1870, there was a well defined road leading from the upper ferry across the head of this island to the main shore. This road was used to considerable extent by persons who crossed the river at Brooklyn to St. Louis, with loaded wagons, and as a matter of convenience returned with empty wagons by the upper ferry. This road, however, did not follow the shore. It was cut through the growth of willows and such timber as grew on the island. Prior to 1869, there was no occasion for any roads on the island above Broadway Dyke, other than the one from that point to the depots and the upper ferry. There were no means of crossing the channel above the Broadway Dyke, until Bowman's Dyke was built in 1869, and there was no business on the upper part of the island, other than the business of the railroads, and possibly of some lumber concerns at the head of the island, and the road along the shore was for the accommodation of that business, and was sufficient to accommodate it. That road was not made and maintained to provide a public highway from East St. Louis to Brooklyn, to take the place of the old road that in 1839 and 1843 ran near the main shore from Illinoistown to Brooklyn and thence to Alton.

Below Broadway Dyke, there were no means for teams to cross from the main shore to the island, until Vaughn's Dyke was built, which was not built until after 1873. There was no business on the island below the lower ferry, and with only a very few exceptions, no persons lived there, until the St. Louis, Alton and Terre Haute Railroad Company extended its road to the river front and established its depot in the vicinity of where Pratte avenue is now. That was done in 1862-5. Prior to that time there was no wagon road on the river front below the lower ferry. To accommodate the business transacted at that depot, a roadway was extended from the Broadway Dyke, along the river shore, to the depot, and, as business required it, that road was extended on down the shore.

Illinoistown was incorporated in 1859, and in 1861 the General Assembly granted it a new charter, under which its name was changed to the town of East St. Louis. (Sess. Laws 1861, p. 659.) Under these charters, the corporate limits of Illinoistown or the town of East St. Louis did not extend west of Cahokia Creek and did not include any part of the territory which formerly comprised Bloody Island. The city of East St. Louis was incorporated by special charter granted by the General Assembly, Feb. 16, 1865. Under that charter the west boundary of the city was the river, and the corporate limits of the city included all of the territory then popularly designated as "the Island." (Sess. Laws 1865, p. 344.) Prior to granting that charter, the "Island" was not included within the limits of any incorporated town, village or city.

After the city of East St. Louis was incorporated, and in May, 1865, the Ferry Division of East St. Louis was laid out by the Wiggins Ferry Company and accepted by the city council. This division commenced at a point about one hundred feet south of where Winter av. is now, and extended to the south line of survey 624, extended, and fronted on the river. The plat of the division contains this certificate:

"STATE OF ILLINOIS,
"County of St. Clair.

"This plat represents a piece of ground which has been laid out into blocks and lots, under the authority and direction of the Wiggins Ferry Company and is called Ferry Division, East St. Louis. The streets and alleys as presented thereon between the western edge of Front street on the west and the eastern edge of Fourth street on the east, and the south line of land leased by the said Wiggins Ferry Company to the Chicago & Alton Railroad on the north and the north line of the land conveyed by the parties to the Alton & Terre Haute Railroad on the south, are hereby dedicated to the public for public highways and as such to be forever kept open. With this condition, however, that whereas the said Wiggins Ferry Company, the owner of said property, have heretofore and upon the laying of said property in lots and blocks, given leases for pieces or parcels of land within the said limits, which in many cases cover and run over said streets or alleys as now laid out. Now it is expressly understood that the dedication to the public of said streets and alleys is to take effect only after the expiration of each of the leases so given by said Wiggins Ferry Company and in the meantime that buildings and improvements erected on the lots so leased are to remain without being subject to any molestation whatever, and, further, it is expressly understood that the strip or piece of ground lying between the western edge of Front street as marked on said plat and low water mark of the river Mississippi also as represented on said plat, is reserved to the Wiggins Ferry Company, owners of said grounds, as private property, to be used by them, their lessees or grantees for a private wharf, the erection of elevators and for such other purposes, as they, their lessees or grantees, may think proper and reserving to themselves, also the exclusive ferry right to and on the said property and of using the same for ferry purposes. To all of which the said Wiggins Ferry Company binds itself forever."

This certificate was executed by the president and secretary of the Wiggins Ferry Company, May 20, 1865. The plat was acknowledged by the president of the company, as such, and for and on behalf of that company, on May 20, 1865. The plat also contains the certificate of the county surveyor of St. Clair County under date of May 9, 1865, pursuant to the requirement of the statute then in force. The plat was approved by the city council of East St. Louis, May 15, 1865, and was recorded May 22, 1865. The plat shows that Front street was sixty feet wide and extended the full length of the division. It also shows a strip of land between Front street and the river, extending the full length of the division. On this strip appears the following: "Reserved for Private Wharf and Other Purposes." The plat contains no figures or statement indicating the width of this strip.

When the Ferry Division was laid out, Front street was laid out on the road that then ran along the shore, and was identical with it, except here and there slight deviations resulted from making the street straight and of uniform width. The street occupied the old road from the upper end of the division down to a point about one thousand feet below Broadway Dyke. From what has already been said, there can be no question but that there was, at the time the division was laid out, a strip of land between the street and the river, varying in width from one hundred to three hundred feet, extending from the head of the division down to the point above mentioned. But whether from that point down to the lower end of the division, Front street actually existed, as laid out on the plat, at the time the division was laid out, is a question of serious doubt. The map of the "plan submitted by Ohio and Mississippi Railway Company accompanying an application to enjoin the Chicago and St. Louis Railroad Company from crossing the tracks of the Ohio and Mississippi Railway Company, compiled June, 1864," shows the location of the shore line from Broadway Dyke to a point about twelve hundred feet south of the south line of survey 624, extended, with reference to the west line of that survey and survey 579. From the date appearing on this map, as the date of the compilation, I assume that the map was based on a survey made in 1864. This map, taken in connection with the location of the Ferry Division, seems to show that, at a point about eleven hundred feet below Broadway Dyke, the short cut in back of Front street, as shown on the plat of the division, and, about seventeen hundred feet below the dyke, curved out to the west line of the street, and then, at that point, cut in again about one hundred and fifty feet back of the east line of the street, and then curved out beyond the west line of the street, crossing the west line of the street about one hundred feet below the point where it cut in. This second indenture in the shore occupied the entire area now occupied by the Kehlor Mills and is directly opposite the site that was occupied by the East St. Louis elevator. The shore line then again cut in back of the street, at a point about two thousand feet south of the dyke and curved out beyond the west line of the street at a point about twenty-four hundred feet below the dyke and from that point to the lower end of the division, the shore line was west of the street. It would seem, therefore, that, in front of the first indenture, Front street, when it was laid out, extended across an arm of river for about six hundred feet and in front of the second and third indentures extended across arms of the river, for about one hundred feet, and about four hundred feet, respectively. The written statements of persons who were familiar with river front at East St. Louis, at the time the Ferry Division was laid out, confirm the situation above described. But the written statements of other persons equally as familiar with the river front, and who had just as good opportunities to know the situation of the water front at that time, as the persons just referred to, are to the effect that, at the time the division was laid out, the shore line was not at any point below Broadway Dyke to the lower end of the division, back of Front st., as laid out on the map, and that throughout that distance there was some land between the west line of Front street and the river at the ordinary stage of the water. These persons say that the shore land below Broadway Dyke was lower than the land above the dyke, and that rises in the river, that did not overflow Front street above the dyke, did sometimes overflow parts of the street below the dyke, and, when the water went down, pools and ponds of water were left just east of where the street was located, and that looking at the situation from the viewpoint of forty-five years later, it is probable that these ponds and pools seem to some people to have been arms, or indentures in shore, of the river and that they were parts of the river. To ascertain what was the real and true situation in regard to this matter, will require a thorough investigation of old maps and surveys, if there be any, showing the location of the shore line in 1865, and a further and exhaustive search for witnesses who were familiar with the water front situation in 1865, and whose memories are clear and precise regarding it. That is a task to be undertaken by the city of East St. Louis, if it deems it advisable to undertake it. Whatever that situation might be, it would not affect the question of the rights of the State of Illinois, in the land on the river front. It might have some bearing, however, on the rights of East St. Louis, to the land between the river and Front street, below Broadway Dyke. Under the joint resolutions heretofore referred to, I am charged only with the duty to ascertain the rights of the State of Illinois, if it has any, in the water front of East St. Louis, and, if it has any, to protect and enforce them. I have, therefore, not deemed it advisable to incur the expense and spend the time that would be necessary to ascertain with certainty, whether Front street below Broadway Dyke, when it was laid out, did or did not extend across any portion of the river.

It appears from the statements of old persons familiar with the matter, that the Wiggins Ferry Company did a great deal of work on the river front, in front of where Front street is located, as well as back of it, both before and after the Ferry Division was laid out. It established ferry landings along the shore, and when it was necessary to wharf out into the river to reach sufficient depth of water for its boats to make the landing, it did so. When it was necessary to protect the shore from washing away, adequate precautions were taken. At some places, small dykes were built from the shore into the river for eight or ten feet, to protect the shore from the wash of the river. The natural result of these structures was to cause accretions to form on the shore out to the end of the dykes. But it does not appear that these structures ever interfered with the navigation of the river. The East St. Louis Elevator was built entirely out in the river. It was built on piling and was connected with the shore by a roadway built on piling driven in the river. It was built into the river so as to reach a sufficient depth of water for boats to land at it. The piling of this structure caught the debris floating in the river and in the course of time land formed from the short out to the end of these piling. Between Front street and the river, throughout most of the length of the Ferry Division, earth and other material have been dumped to make that area conform to the general level of the territory back of the street, but these fills were made on land that had already formed. So far as I have been able to ascertain, no "made land" has been made by filling up the river along the shore, by dumping earth and other material into it, except in instances where rock has been dumped into the river to protect the shore, and instances where it has been filled in, out to a point where sufficient depth of water could be obtained for the landing of boats.

In 1903, the federal government established the harbor lines for the harbor of East St. Louis. There are now no structures in the river, extending beyond the outer harbor lines, except such as are authorized or permitted by the federal government.

In 1839, the General Assembly of Illinois authorized St. Clair County to establish a ferry across the Mississippi River. The first section of the act granting the authority required the persons therein named "after having taken an oath faithfully to execute and discharge the duties imposed on them by this act, to examine the ground and locate a road and ferry landing between Cahokia Creek and the Mississippi River opposite St. Louis, and said road and ferry landing shall be located three hundred feet wide, on the most eligible ground for said purpose, doing as little damage as possible to any buildings or improvements on said ground, and said road and ferry landing when so located, and the report of said commissioners filed in the office of the clerk of the county commissioners' court of St. Clair County, shall be and remain a public highway forever." The second section of the act provides in part:

"That the county of St. Clair shall cause to be paid into the State treasury, at the end of each year, thirty per cent on all profits arising from said ferry established under this act, after deducting the expenses for carrying on and conducting the same; and every omission of said county faithfully and punctually to pay over said thirty per cent of such profits shall work a complete forfeiture of all the rights herein vested, and the State shall have power to resume and take possession of the same as by due course of law in similar cases." (Laws, 1839, p. 175.)

In 1851, the General Assembly repealed that part of the said act of 1839 that required the county to pay into the State treasury 30 per cent of the net profits arising from the ferry, and released to and vested in St. Clair County "all interest of the State of Illinois in the profits accrued or to arise from said ferry." (Pr. Laws, 1851, p. 130.)

Under the authority conferred by said act, St. Clair County condemned a strip of land three hundred feet wide extending to the Mississippi River, and established a ferry landing on it, and leased the ferry right and franchise conferred upon it, to private parties. It seems that the strip of land condemned commences on the east line of survey 579, at a point about fifty or seventy-five feet south of the north line of that survey, and about three hundred and sixty feet south of the intersection of the south line of Trendley avenue, with the west line of Main street, and strikes the present shore line of the river about seven hundred feet below the said north line, extended. The ferry was put in operation in 1843 or 1844. In 1849, it was leased to The Wiggins Ferry Company by the county commissioners' court of St. Clair County, for the term of five years. (County Court Record "A," p. 469.)

In 1852, a new charter was granted to the Belleville and Illinoistown Railroad Company. Section 14 of the charter provides in part as follows:

"The said company is also empowered to lease or purchase of the county of St. Clair all the ferry right and franchise which said county now has for a ferry across the Mississippi River opposite St. Louis, or such an interest therein as said county may, by an order of the county court entered upon their records, agree to sell or lease to the said company, and to be paid for by said company in money, bonds or stock of said company, as the same may be agreed upon; and the said county court are hereby authorized so to sell or lease said ferry for any period they may agree upon with said company."

This act was approved June 21, 1852. (Pr. Laws, 1852, p. 119.)

In December, 1852, St. Clair County sold to the Belleville and Illinoistown Railroad Company, "all the ferry right and franchises which said county now has for a ferry across the said Mississippi River opposite St. Louis, and all the rights, privileges and easements, conferred upon and granted to this county by the Legislature of Illinois by the act of said Legislature of March 2, 1839, or by any other act or by joint resolutions in relation to the said ferry or to the ferry landing, thereto belonging," and assigned to the company the lease of the ferry to the Wiggins Ferry Company. (County Court Record "B," p. 288.) The deed and assignment of the lease were executed Dec. 9, 1852, and were on that day recorded in Book D2, page 428, of the recorder's office of St. Clair County.

It seems that the St. Louis, Alton and Terre Haute Railroad Company took over the Belleville and Illinoistown Railroad Company, and acquired the rights of that company in the said ferry, ferry landing and strip.

On the fourth day of February, 1864, the St. Louis, Alton and Terre Haute Railroad Company and the Wiggins Ferry Company entered into an agreement for the purpose of securing to the former "proper facilities and advantages for the profitable operations of the business of their road at its western terminus on the Mississippi River opposite the city of St. Louis," and for the purpose of securing to the Wiggins Ferry Company, "the ferrying business between the Illinois and the Missouri shore opposite the city of St. Louis of all the freight and passengers carried or to be carried" by the said railroad company. Pursuant to this agreement, a tract of land was conveyed by the Wiggins Ferry Company to the St. Louis, Alton and Terre Haute Railroad Company. The said three hundred foot strip was a part of that tract. The said railroad company covenanted with the Wiggins Ferry Company "that the said railroad company will not use the public ferry right by them purchased from St. Clair County, nor suffer any other person or party to use the same, and that no other ferry than that of the Wiggins Ferry Company shall ever or at any time be run or worked to or from any landing on the above described grounds [the tract conveyed by the Ferry Company to the railroad company] with the permission, consent or approbation of the said railroad company, nor shall the said railroad company at any time permit any passengers and freight coming or going on its road to cross the river on any other ferry running from said grounds." (Book M4, p. 221, of the Records of Recorder's Office, St. Clair County.)

This agreement was abrogated and another one, designated to accomplish the same purposes as the former one, was substituted. The last agreement was made Oct. 4, 1865. By the last agreement, the tract of land conveyed to the railroad company was reconveyed to the ferry company and the only reservation made to the railroad company was a strip of land in the tract aforesaid "one hundred feet in width over which the Belleville tracks are located," and the St. Clair County ferry right and franchise was conveyed and assigned to the Wiggins Ferry Company. In regard to the conveyance of the ferry franchise, the language of the agreement and conveyance is as follows:

"In consideration of the above, the said railroad company also assigns, transfers and conveys its rights, title and claim to the St. Clair County Ferry right or ferry franchise to the said Wiggins Ferry Company or its assigns. The said railroad company hereby covenanting that it will not use the said ferry right bought by or from St. Clair County, Illinois, or otherwise acquired, nor suffer any other person or party to use the same with their consent, but the Wiggins Ferry Company or its assigns."

This three hundred foot strip, or any part of it, has not been used for a public road for a period of thirty years last past. It has since that time been devoted exclusively to such private uses as the grantees of the ferry right and franchise conferred on St. Clair County by the act of 1839, have deemed most suited to their interests. The road and the ferry landing have been abandoned for many years. So far as I am informed, the Wiggins

Ferry Company has never used or exercised the ferry right and franchise sold to it by the railroad company, since it was conveyed to it, by running and operating ferry boats from any landing on the strip aforesaid.

On this statement of facts, has the State of Illinois any title or interest in the "made land" referred to?

When the American colonies acquired their independence as the result of the war of the Revolution, they became the owners of the beds of the navigable streams and lakes, as well as of the public domain in their respective territories. In creating the federal government and adopting the federal constitution, the original colonies did not thereby or by any other act, cede to the federal government the ownership of the beds of such streams and lakes. That ownership was reserved to the original states. Subsequently, when new states were formed out of the territory ceded to the federal government by the original colonies, they were admitted to the Union on the same footing as the original states, and on their admission became the owners of the beds of the navigable streams and lakes within their respective boundaries. (Pollard's Lessee v. Hagan, 44 U. S. (3 How.) 212.) The western boundary of the State of Illinois is the center of the main channel of the Mississippi River. (Buttenth v. St. Louis Bridge Co., 123 Ill., 535; St. Louis v. Rutz, 138 U. S., 226; Iowa v. Illinois, 147 U. S., 1.) It follows, therefore, that when Illinois was admitted to the Union, it became the owner of the bed of the Mississippi River to the middle of its main channel of navigation. (St. Clair v. Lovington, 23 Wall., 64, 68.)

What disposition a state will make of the beds of its navigable rivers and lakes, is a question in regard to a rule of property, which the state must determine for itself. If it choose to relinquish to the riparian owners, the bed of the stream on which their land abuts, it is at liberty to do so, and it is not for others to raise objections. (St. Louis v. Rutz, 138 U. S., 226, 242; Shively v. Bowlby, 152 U. S., 1, 40.) Illinois has adopted rules of property in regard to the disposition of the beds of its navigable rivers and lakes. But the rule in regard to the disposition of the beds of its navigable lakes is not the same as the one that controls the disposition of the beds of its navigable rivers. A grant of land bordering on a navigable lake carries the title of the grantee only to the water's edge, and the ownership of the bed of the lake is in the State in trust for all the people, for the purpose of fishing, boating and the like. (Fuller v. Shedd, 161 Ill., 462; People v. Kirk, 162 Ill., 138; Revell v. People, 177 Ill., 468; Cobb v. Commissioners Lincoln Park, 202 Ill., 427; Trustees of Schools v. Schroll, 120 Ill., 509; Schulte v. Warren, 218 Ill., 108.) While a grant of land bordering on a navigable river, which contains no language indicating an intention to limit the extent of the grant to the margin of the stream, carries the title of the grantee to the middle of its main channel. (Middleton v. Pritchard, 3 Scam., 509; Cobb v. Lavalle, 89 Ill., 331; Rutz v. Kehn, 143 Ill., 558; City of Chicago v. Ward, 169 Ill., 392; Hauck v. Yates, 82 Ill., 179; Braxton v. Brissler, 64 Ill., 488; Ballance v. City of Peoria, 181 Ill., 29; Chicago v. Laffin, 49 Ill., 172; Canal Trustees v. Haven, 11 Ill., 554; Chicago v. Van Ingen, 152 Ill., 624; Schulte v. Warren, 218 Ill., 108; People v. Economy Co., 241 Ill., 290.) Where the government has not reserved any right or interest that might pass by the grant, or not done any act showing an intention to reserve anything, such as making a plat or a survey which contains an indication to make a reservation, the grant is construed most favorably to the grantee and is taken to pass all that might pass by it. (Middleton v. Pritchard, 3 Scam., 509; Trustees of Common v. McClure, 167 Ill., 23.) The presumption is that the grant carries the title to the middle of the main channel of the river and to limit the extent of the grant to the margin of the stream, the terms of the grant must clearly indicate that it was the intention of the grantor to do so. (Canal Trustees v. Haven, 11 Ill., 554; Chicago v. Van Ingen, 152 Ill., 624; People v. Economy Power Co., 241 Ill., 290, 318.) The rule in regard to the policy of Illinois concerning its disposition of the beds of navigable rivers and lakes within its boundaries, is clearly stated in Schulte v. Warren, 218 Ill., 108. At page 117, the court says:

"Where land is conveyed extending to a river and bounding upon it, the center of the stream is the line of the boundary, but in case of a natural lake or bed of water meandered by the government, the grant extends to the water's edge, while the ownership of the bed of the lake is in the State in trust for all the people for the purpose of fishing, boating and the like. * * * As appellant took title to the water's edge, he also acquired title to any land which might be added by accretions, and if the waters of the lake, by gradual and imperceptible progress, should encroach upon the surrounding land, he would lose the title to the lands so encroached upon."

In People v. Economy Power Co., 241 Ill., 290, the Supreme Court very clearly states the rule in regard to the ownership of the beds of navigable streams. For the purpose of a statement of that rule, a quotation from that case will suffice. At page 318, the court says:

"Under well established rules of law, these several conveyances carried the title to the bed of the stream, in the absence of any language clearly denoting an intention of stopping at the edge of the river. (Braxton v. Bressler, 64 Ill., 488; Davenport Bridge Co. v. Johnson, 188 Ill., 472.) There is no difference in the application of this rule between navigable water courses and those which are not navigable. In grants upon navigable waters above tide waters, the riparian owner takes to the thread of the stream, subject to an easement in the public for the purposes of navigation, while as to waters not navigable, the title to the bed of the stream passes absolutely free from any burdens in favor of the public. (Washington Ice Co. v. Shortall, 101 Ill. 46.) Where a riparian proprietor owns land on both sides of a river, he is the owner of the whole of the bed of the stream to the extent of the length of his land upon it. (Angell on Water Courses, Sec. 5.) This is the rule of the common law which has been adopted in this State and applied by this court to the Mississippi River in Middleton v. Pritchard, 3 Scam. 510; to the Rock River in Braxton v. Bressler, supra; to the Chicago River in City of Chicago v. McGinn, 51 Ill. 266; to the Calumet River in Washington Ice Co. v. Shortall, supra, and to the Des Plaines River in Board of Trustees v. Haven, 5 Gilm. 548; and Druley v. Adams, 102 Ill. 177. The general rule is that when riparian estates are conveyed, the owner may reserve the land under the water, but the general presumption is that the purchaser's title extends as far as the grantor owns in both tidal and fresh waters. (Gould on Waters, Sec. 195.)"

The general rule is that the owners of riparian estates, owning the bed of the stream to the center of its main channel, own all the islands, structures or formations that form in the river opposite their estates and between them and the middle of the channel, and if the river should fill up, the bed thus reclaimed would belong to the riparian owners. (St. Louis v. Rutz, 138 U. S., 226, 247; Middleton v. Pritchard, 3 Scam., 509, 519; Trustees of Commons v. McClure, 167 Ill., 23; Hauck v. Yates, 82 Ill., 179; Cobb v. Lavalley, 89 Ill., 331.) The riparian owners owning the bed of the river, have the right to wharf out into the river to the point of practical navigability, and to build structures on the bed out in the river, to protect their shores from the wash of the river, and to build such other structures on the bed as they may deem convenient and necessary to any lawful use they may desire to make of the river, provided always, that such wharfing out, structures and use of the river, do not interfere with the public easement of navigation, or conflict with the regulations of the federal government in regard to the use of navigable streams. (McCartney v. C. & E. I. R. R. Co., 112 Ill., 611, 634; Chicago v. Laffin, 49 Ill., 172; Chicago v. Van Ingen, 152 Ill., 624, 633; Revell v. People, 177 Ill., 468, 486; Braxton v. Bressler, 64 Ill., 488; Ensminger v. People, 47 Ill., 384.)

Applying these principles to the situation under consideration, I think it is clear that the State of Illinois has no title or interest in the "made land" described. An examination of the plats and descriptions of the private surveys and fractional sections above referred to, which occupied the shore of the Mississippi River, at the time the surveys were made, from Venice to below the present limits of the city of East St. Louis, discloses, that those surveys and fractional sections extended to and were bounded on the west by the Mississippi River. The grants of those surveys, therefore, carried the title of the grantees to the middle of the main channel of the river. The grant of fractional sections two and eleven, in front of a part of which Bloody Island was located, carried title to the middle of the channel between the island and the shore, to the bed co-extensive with the length of the island, and the grant of the island carried title to the remaining part of the bed from the east shore of the island to the middle of that channel, and also carried title to the bed of the river from the west shore of the island to the middle of the main channel of the river. The ownership of the island and the main shore of the river on the Illinois side, opposite the island, having passed to the same persons, before the east channel was filled, those persons became the owners of the entire bed of the river east of the island, co-extensive with the length of the island. The "made land" between Venice and the head of Bloody Island and the filling of the channel between Bloody Island and the Illinois shore and the "made land" between the lower end of the island and the point which marks the present southern limit of the city of East St. Louis were all caused by the building of the dams, dykes and other structures hereinbefore described. All of those structures were sanctioned by the State of Illinois and the government of the United States and some of them were built by the federal government, and some were built under the supervision of the federal government. Those structures were, therefore, lawful structures. The "made land" that formed as a result of those structures on the bed of the river, and from the filling of the channel east of Bloody Island, was therefore lawfully formed, and, under the authorities above cited, belonged to the owners of the shore lands on the Illinois side of the river.

After the current of the river had been shut out of the channel east of Bloody Island, the dykes and dams built above the head of the island and the land that had formed as a result of those dykes and dams, on the Illinois shore, caused the current to flow toward the Missouri shore. This current gradually wore away the head of Bloody Island and tended to affect the west shore of the northern part of the island below its head. But the west shore of the island, below the present location of Eads Bridge, encroached on the river by reason of accretions which formed from natural causes, and as a result of the dykes and structures, before referred to, which had been built south of the island and from the "made land" which had formed south of the island. The forming of this "made land" on the lower part of the island was accelerated to some extent by structures which the shore owners had built into the river, to protect their shores, and to make landings for boats and to reach navigable water for shipping purposes. But these structures did not interfere with the navigation of the river by the public, and they did not violate the federal regulations in regard to the use of the river. Under the authorities above cited, they were, therefore, lawful structures. It results, therefore, that the "made land" that formed on the west shore of the island was lawfully formed, and, under the cases already referred to, it belonged to the persons who owned the west shore of the island.

But even if the owners of the riparian estates did not own the bed of the Mississippi River on which the "made land" described was formed, that land would nevertheless belong to them or their grantees, by the law of accretions. The law is that if a person owns land bounding on navigable waters, he shall gain the alluvion that gradually and imperceptibly forms on his shore, and shall lose the land that is gradually and imperceptibly worn away from his shore. And it is immaterial whether the accretions form from natural or artificial causes. (Lovington v. St. Clair County, 64 Ill., 56; St. Clair County v. Lovington, 90 U. S. (23 Wall.), 46, 66; Cobb v. Lavalle, 89 Ill., 331; Rutz v. Kehn, 143 Ill., 558; City of Chicago v. Ward, 169 Ill., 392; Hauck v. Yates, 82 Ill., 179; Schulte v. Warren, 218 Ill., 108.)

In St. Clair County v. Lovington, supra, the supreme court of the United States, on page 68, says:

"In the light of the authorities, alluvion may be defined as an addition to riparian land gradually and imperceptibly made by the water to which the land is contiguous. It is different from reliction and is opposed to avulsion. The test as to what is gradual and imperceptible in the sense of the rule is, that though the witnesses may see from time to time that progress has been made, they could not perceive it while the process was going on. Whether it is the effect of natural or artificial causes makes no difference. The result as to the ownership in either case is the same. The riparian right to future alluvion is a vested right. It is an inherent and essential attribute of the original property. The title to the increment rests in the law of nature. It is the same with that of the owner of a tree to its fruits and of the owner of the flocks and herds to their natural increase. The right is a natural not a civil one. The maxim 'qui sentit onus debet sentire commodum' lies at its foundation. The owner takes the chances of injury and of benefit arising from the situation of the property. If there be a gradual loss, he must bear it; if a gradual gain, it is his. The principle applies alike to streams that do and to those that do not overflow their banks, and where dykes and other defenses are and where they are not necessary to keep the water within proper limits."

This was an ejectment case commenced in the circuit court of St. Clair County, to recover the alluvion that had formed and attached to survey 579, hereinbefore described. It was contended in the Illinois Supreme Court that the calls of the survey carried the title no further than the margin of the river, and that the grantee had no title to the bed of the river, and consequently none to the alluvion that had formed. That court, in Lovington v. St. Clair County, supra, at page 62, says:

"A large number of cases have been cited by one of the counsel for the county, to establish that a grant is not carried to the center of the stream but stops at the bank, if the grantor describes the line as upon the margin, or at the edge or shore, and that these terms become monuments and that they indicate an intention to stop at the edge or margin of the river. This may be good law and not affect the right of the defendants. They do not claim the bed of the stream, and the proof shows that the river does not run over the land in dispute at ordinary stages of water. Their claim, if established, does not obstruct the river or interfere with its free navigation and use by the public."

The opinion then proceeds and holds that the title to the alluvion belonged to the shore owner.

It was further contended both in the Supreme Court of Illinois and in the supreme court of the United States, in that case, that the forming of the alluvion was caused by artificial structures placed in the river, that is, by the dykes, dams, and other structures hereinbefore described, and that for that reason the shore owner could not acquire title to alluvion under the law of accretions. Both courts held otherwise. The Supreme Court of Illinois in Lovington v. St. Clair County, supra, at page 63, says:

"It is further contended that the lands are not accretions as they were made by artificial and not natural means. It is not at all certain, from the proof, that the accretions were entirely the result of artificial structures, or that they would not have been formed without them. The construction of coal dykes facilitated the formation and the soil was prevented from washing away by the expenditures of money by the ferry company. * * *

"Concede, however, that the dykes, to some extent, caused the accretions; they were not constructed for such purpose, and appellants had nothing to do with their erection. They were built for the accommodation of the public and to secure an approach to the ferry boats and the city of St. Louis did some work to preserve its harbor. Improvements were also made by the United States to throw the channel of the river towards the city.

"The fact that the labor of other persons changed the current of the river and caused the deposits of alluvion upon the land of appellants can not deprive them of a right to the newly made soil. * * *

"If portions of soil were added to real estate already possessed, by gradual deposition, through the operation of natural causes, or by slow and imperceptible accretion, the owner of the land to which the addition has been made has a perfect title to the addition. Upon no principle of reason or justice should he be deprived of accretions forced upon him by the labor of another without his consent or connivance, and thus cut off from the benefits of his original proprietorship. If neither the State nor any other individual can divert the water from him, artificial structures, which cause deposits between the old and new bank should not divest him of the use of the water. Otherwise, ferry and wharf privileges might be utterly destroyed and towns and cities built with sole reference to the use of the river might be entirely separated from it."

On this point, the supreme court of the United States, in the county of St. Clair v. Lovington, supra, at page 66, says:

"It is insisted by the learned counsel for the plaintiff in error that the accretion was caused wholly by obstructions placed in the river above, and that hence the rules upon the subject of alluvion do not apply. If the fact be so, the consequence does not follow. There is no warrant for the proposition. The proximate cause was the deposits made by the water. The law looks no further. Whether the flow of the water was natural or affected by artificial means is immaterial."

All of the "made land" hereinbefore described was formed in the same manner and resulted from the same causes, as the alluvion or accretion which was the subject of litigation in the Lovington case. Those causes were the natural action of the water as affected by the dams, dykes and structures placed in the river and along its shore, hereinbefore referred to. For the reasons stated in that case and in the other cases above referred to, it must be held that the title to the "made land" described belongs to the riparian owners onto whose estates it formed, or to their grantees.

The shore owners being the owners of the accretion, the question arises, have they done anything to divest themselves of the right to present shore of the river and vest it in the public? There is no contention that they have, with reference to that part of the shore from Venice down to the point that marked the head of Bloody Island in 1853, and that part of the shore from Trendley avenue down to the southern limits of the city of East St. Louis.

But it appears from the report of the proceedings had before the sub-merged and shore lands investigating committee before referred to, which has been submitted to this department together with the report of that committee, that it was contended that at a very early day a public road ran along the shore of the river, from about where Trendley avenue is now, to Brooklyn and thence to Alton, and that when Bloody Island was connected with the shore by the Broadway Dyke, the road was transferred to the west shore of the island and extended from Broadway Dyke north to the head of the island, thence to the original shore, and thence on to Brooklyn, and that by virtue thereof the shore owners divested themselves of the right to use and occupy the shore of the river and vested that right in the public. There is no merit in this contention.

During the time of the existence of this road on the west shore of the island, that territory was not included in any incorporated city, town or village. The road was not maintained or kept up by any public authority. It was merely a way leading from Broadway Dyke along the shore to the depots on the upper end of the island and the ferry landing located there, and to the depots and ferry landing located just below the dyke. It was not laid out or established by any statutory proceeding, or by express dedication. There was absolutely nothing to indicate its width or lateral territorial extent, except the track or way that was actually used for travel, in going to and from the depots and ferry landings alluded to. From the statement of facts hereinbefore made, it appears that this traveled way or road was not at any point nearer to the river than one hundred feet and at some points it was more than three hundred feet from the river. The law is that a public road which exists by virtue of common law dedication or prescription is merely an easement of passage which the public has over the land on which it exists, and the title of the bed of the road remains in the owner of the land, and when the width of the road is not fixed by the dedication or by physical monuments, its width is determined and fixed by the territorial extent which is actually used by the public for the purposes of a highway, because the easement can be no broader than the user. (1 Elliott's Roads & Streets (3 Ed.), Sec. 193; 9 Am. & Eng. Enc. (2 Ed.), 76; 13 Cyc., 488; Miller v. Commissioners, 125 Ill. App., 431, 435.)

In 9 Amer. & Eng. Enc. of Law, at page 76, it is said:

"The extent of a dedication is a question of fact to be ascertained in the same manner as the fact of the dedication itself. All the surrounding circumstances are to be considered to determine the extent to which the owner intended to grant rights to the public and also to determine whether there has been an acceptance by the public of all that the owner intended to dedicate."

In 13 Cyc., 488, it is said:

"Where the right to a highway depends solely upon user by the public, its width and the extent of the servitude imposed on the land are measured and determined by the character and extent of the user."

It follows, therefore, that the width of this road did not extend to the river. There was a strip of land from one hundred to three hundred feet wide between the road and the river, which was not burdened with the easement of a highway. The owners of this strip were not divested of their legal title to it, nor of their riparian rights which attached to it, by reason of the existence of the road referred to. Being the owners of this strip, all of the alluvion or accretion that formed against it, belonged to them. (1 Farnham on Waters, pp. 537, 328, 305.)

It was further contended that the Wiggins Ferry Company, by laying out and platting the Ferry Division to East St. Louis, made a statutory dedication of Front street, and thereby passed the fee of the street to the city, and that Front street extended to the water in the river, by virtue whereof the street extended to the middle of the main channel of the river, and that consequently the fee simple of the street to that boundary, vested in the city of East St. Louis, and the city became the owner of the shore and of all riparian rights that attached thereto, including the accretions that might form against it. Numerous authorities were cited to sustain the proposition that if the owner of a riparian estate plat it into blocks, lots and streets, and on the plat mark a street next to the river, which extends to the water's edge, the street will extend to the middle of the main channel, and if the dedication be pursuant to the statute, the fee co-extensive with the street, vests in the municipality, if there be one, and, if there be none, is held in abeyance until one be incorporated, and then vests in it. This is good law, but it has no application to the situation under consideration. In the cases cited before the committee and relied on to support the contention, the plats showed that the street extended to the edge of the water. There was nothing on the plat or in the instrument of dedication that evinced an intention on the part of the dedicator to reserve anything between the street as marked on the plat and the stream. The territorial extent of the dedication of a street, like the question whether there has been any dedication at all, depends upon the intention of the dedicator. That intention is a question of fact to be determined by all the facts and circumstances bearing upon the situation. If those facts and circumstances show that the dedicator did not intend to dedicate as part of the street the land, between the street as marked, and the river, that land will be reserved and will not become a part of the street. On the other hand, if the facts and circumstances including the plat itself, show that the street extends to the water, and do not show any reservation of land next to the water, then it must be taken that the dedicator intended the dedication to extend to the river. The plat of the Ferry Division of East St. Louis shows that the land between the western line of Front street, as marked on the plat, and the river, was reserved from the dedication, and retained by the dedicator as private property. The certificate of dedication appearing on the plat, and as well as the plat itself discloses that this strip of ground was reserved to the Wiggins Ferry Company, the owners thereof, as private property, to be used by them, their lessees or grantees for a private wharf, the erection of elevators, and for such other purposes as they, their lessees or grantees may think proper. It is clear, therefore, that the strip of land between the western line of Front street, as marked on the plat, and the river, was not a part of the street, and did not pass to the city of East St. Louis by virtue of the laying out of the Ferry Division. The strip and the riparian rights incident thereto, including the right to the accretions that might form against it, remained the property of the Wiggins Ferry Co. (City of Duluth v. St. P. & Duluth R. Co., 49 Minn., 201; Laughlin v. Stevens, 18 Ohio, 94; 1 Farnham on Waters, 670.)

However, as before suggested, there may be parts of the land on which Front street is now located, below Broadway, which were at the time the Ferry Division was laid out and platted, parts of the bed of the river. If this be true, then there may be some question as to whether the city or the Wiggins Ferry Company would own the accretions that might form against the outer line of the street, when the shore had advanced to that line. It is settled by the authorities that the owner of a riparian estate may sell the bank and shore, and reserve the bed of the stream, or may sell the bed and reserve the bank and shore. (People v. Economy Power Co., 241 Ill., 290, 318; Hanford v. St. Paul & Duluth R. Co., 43 Minn., 104.) But whether he may sell the shore to the water's edge, reserving nothing between the boundary of the shore sold and the edge of the water, and reserve the bed of the stream, and thereby prevent the ownership of the accretions that may form against the shore, from attaching to the shore owner, and claim the accretions himself because of his ownership of the bed is a different question, and I think an important one. As I have already suggested, this is a question that concerns the city of East St. Louis and one which does not affect the rights of the State and is beyond the province of investigation fixed by the resolutions hereinbefore referred to, for this department. I have accordingly not devoted the time or incurred the heavy expenses necessary to a thorough investigation of the question whether Front street, when it was laid, did at any points south of Broadway, extend over the river. Until that question shall be certainly determined, it cannot be known whether the other question, in regard to the ownership of the accretions, in case the street did extend over the river, will arise. The last question may not be presented at all, by the situation that actually existed. I therefore do not desire to express any opinion in regard to it. I have suggested the question as one that might possibly arise, so that the city of East St. Louis may consider it, if it deems it worthy of consideration.

It was also suggested before the investigating committee, that the State, or county of St. Clair, or the city of East St. Louis acquired some interest in a part of the water front, by the location of the St. Clair County ferry. The State authorized St. Clair County to establish a ferry and to condemn a strip of land three hundred feet wide for a road and a ferry landing between Cahokia Creek and the Mississippi River opposite St. Louis. A strip of that width was condemned and the road and ferry landing were established and a ferry was put in operation. The county was required to pay to the State a certain per cent of the net earnings from the ferry. In 1851, the State relinquished all of its interest in the earnings of the ferry, to St. Clair County. In 1852, the General Assembly authorized the Belleville and Illinois Railroad Company to buy from St. Clair County, its ferry right and franchise, and authorized the county to sell its ferry and ferry rights, franchises and privileges. In the same year, the county sold its ferry right and franchise and all easements, privileges and rights connected therewith, granted to it by the General Assembly. The company took possession of the ferry right and franchise, and of the easement connected therewith, being the ferry landing and road aforesaid. The ferry right and franchise and the easements and privileges referred to by conveyances and agreements already described, passed into the hands of the Wiggins Ferry Company.

It follows, therefore, that whatever interest the State of Illinois had in the St. Clair County ferry, it relinquished to the county, and conferred upon the county the power to dispose of the ferry, ferry franchise and rights and easements pertaining thereto. It results, then, that the State has no right or interest in said strip. Under the resolution heretofore referred to, I am not charged with the duty to determine what right or interest St. Clair County or the city of East St. Louis now has in the strip mentioned or to assert or recover any interest that they or either of them might have therein, if it were established that they or either of them have any such right or interest. That duty rests upon the county or the city. I might add, however, that by the condemnation proceedings, the county acquired only an easement for road and ferry landing purposes. It acquired no interest in the soil on which they were located. (Mills v. County of St. Clair, 2 Gilm. 197, 238-239.) Under well settled rules of law, when the easement was extinguished, if it was, the county had no further right or interest in the strip. I understand that for more than twenty years last past, this strip has not been used for road and highway purposes. It has been devoted to private purposes entirely, and the public has been excluded therefrom. It is partly occupied by permanent structures which make its use as a public road, impossible. For more than that length of time, no ferry landing has been maintained on said strip. This situation has been acquiesced in by the county and the city. I suppose such acquiescence was based on the fact that the strip for a public highway was not needed, because other streets in the vicinity answered the needs of the public, and the further maintenance of a ferry landing on the strip was not necessary, because the Wiggins Ferry Company otherwise provided for the public all of the ferry accommodations that were necessary or convenient. It is probable, therefore, that the public road and ferry landing on this strip have been extinguished by abandonment and adverse possession. (City of Peoria v. Johnston, 56 Ill., 45; Highway Commissioners v. Kinahan, 240 Ill., 593; Brockhausen v. Bochland, 137 Ill., 547; Cox v. Comrs. Highways, 194 Ill., 355.) Some stress was laid on the fact that the act provided that the road and ferry landing should be and remain a public highway "forever." The use of "forever" in such connections as this means nothing more or less than that the thing to which it relates, shall continue until it shall be stopped by positive enactment, or by some of the means through which, under the general law, it may cease to exist. (Casey v. Harned, 5 Clarke (Iowa) 1.)

It was also suggested that quo warranto proceedings might be instituted to oust the Wiggins Ferry Company from the land on the river front. The idea was to compel the company by that sort of action, to show its right and title to the land, and that the company could not show any right or title to it, and that ouster would necessarily follow. By a quo warranto proceeding, a corporation can not be called upon to show its title to real estate which it claims to own, and if it fail to do so, and it should develop that some one else had a better title, oust the corporation from the land. In State ex rel v. Pittsburg etc. R. R. Co., 50 Ohio St., 229, at page 250, the court says:

"Except where the proceeding is brought to try title to an office, in which the defendant may be ousted and the claimant inducted, or where it is brought to determine the title of a corporation to property claimed by the State, it is always limited to a determination of the right of a corporation to the exercise of certain powers and franchises which can only be derived from the grant of the State. It is not a remedy to determine disputes between it and private persons as to the ownership of property. * * * It is not then a suit for the vindication of the proprietary rights of the individual as against the claims of a corporation; the remedies of the individual against a corporation for the recovery of property being the same as against a natural person."

It results, then, that if the title of the Wiggins Ferry Company to any of the land on the river front is bad, because some other person or corporation has a better title to it, it could not be ousted from such land for that reason, by a quo warranto proceeding, the State having no right or title, as we have seen, to the land. The ordinary actions between private persons, applicable to such cases, would have to be resorted to. The Wiggins Ferry Company might be required by a quo warranto suit, to show by what authority it holds the land on the river front. But, by reference to its charter, hereinbefore referred to, it will be seen that the charter authorizes it to hold and own twelve hundred acres of land in St. Clair and Madison counties on or near the Mississippi River, and to subdivide any part of said lands, and to sell, lease and donate any part of said lands in such manner and upon such terms as the company may deem proper, and to buy and hold and sell stock in any railroad or plank or turnpike road company, and to operate ferries across the Mississippi River, from any point or points on said land. It is apparent, therefore, that unless the charter provisions authorizing the company to own and hold twelve hundred acres of land on the Mississippi River are void, the company could easily show by what authority it holds the land on the river.

This charter was granted by the General Assembly, under the Constitution of 1848. That Constitution contained no restrictions on the Legislature as to the powers it might confer on a corporation of the character of the Wiggins Ferry Company, or as to the amount of land it might authorize such a corporation to acquire, own and hold, or as to the location of such land. Under our system of government, all sovereignty rests with the people. By the Constitution of 1848, that sovereignty was vested in the three departments of government, the executive, judicial and legislative. By that Constitution, the legislative authority of the State was vested in the General Assembly composed of the Senate and House of Representatives. (Art. 3, Sec. 1.) That section vested all of the legislative power in the General Assembly. It conferred on the General Assembly all of the legislative power of the English Parliament. The General Assembly, under the Constitution of 1848, then, had all of the legislative power of the English Parliament, except in so far as it was limited by the Constitution itself. In Cooley's Constitutional Limitations, (7th Ed.) page 126, Judge Cooley says:

"In creating a legislative department and conferring upon it legislative power, the people must be understood to have conferred the full and complete power as it rests in, and may be exercised by, the sovereign power of any country, subject only to such restrictions as they may have seen fit to impose, and to the limitations which are contained in the constitution of the United States. The legislative department is not made a special agency for the exercise of specifically defined legislative powers, but is intrusted with the general authority to make laws at discretion."

At page 128, the same author says:

"'It has never been questioned, so far as I know,' says Redfield, Ch. J., 'that the American legislatures have the same unlimited power in regard to legislation which resides in the British Parliament, except where they are restrained by written constitutions. That must be conceded, I think, to be a fundamental principle in the political organizations of the American states. We can not well comprehend how, upon principle, it should be otherwise. The people must, of course, possess all legislative power originally. They have committed this in the most general and unlimited manner to the several state legislatures, saving only such restrictions as are imposed by the constitution of the United States, or of the particular state in question.'"

To the same effect are Sheppard v. Dowling, 127 Ala., 1; Sheehan v. Scott, 145 Cal., 684; McGuire v. C. B. & Q. R. Co., 131 Iowa, 340, 349; State v. Sheppard, 192 Mo., 497, 506; Ratcliff v. Wichita Union Stock Yards Co., 74 Kan., 1, 16; Townsend v. State, 147 Ind., 624, 634; People v. Lawrence, 54 Barb., 589; State v. McAllister, 38 W. Va., 485; People v. Rose, 203 Ill., 46.

That the English Parliament could grant to a corporation the powers and privileges of a natural person, so far as it is possible for an artificial creation to have such powers and privileges, will not, I presume, be questioned. The General Assembly of Illinois, under the Constitution of 1848, could do the same thing, unless the Constitution prohibited it. That a natural person has the right to buy and own twelve hundred acres of land along the Mississippi River, in front of East St. Louis, if he has the financial ability to buy it, and the owners thereof are willing to sell to him, I presume will not be denied. So far as the charter powers of the Wiggins Ferry Company, under consideration, are concerned, the Legislature, by the charter of that company, simply conferred upon it some of the powers and privileges of a natural person, that is, the power and privilege of acquiring and owning twelve hundred acres of land in Madison and St. Clair counties, on the Mississippi River. I find no restrictions in the Constitution of 1848, on the power of the Legislature to do that, and I am of the opinion it had the power to do it.

At the time the charter was granted to the Wiggins Ferry Company in 1853, the corporate limits of Illinoistown, afterwards East St. Louis, did not extend to the Mississippi River. The Legislature doubtless thought that at some future time they might be extended to the river, and made provision for such a contingency in the charter of the company. Section 7 of the charter provides:

"This act shall not be construed to interfere with any ferry now established by law and is hereby declared to be a public act, and shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage: Provided, that nothing in this act contained shall be construed to create any private right so as to interfere with the powers of any existing municipal corporation or with the right of the Legislature at any time hereafter to create municipal corporations within the limits herein specified, to confer upon said corporations all such powers of police and also all such powers to open and extend streets, lanes and alleys and to improve, manage and control the same, and also such powers to enter upon and condemn land within the limits aforesaid, for public wharves and to improve, control and fix the rates of wharfage for the same as may be usually or properly confided to a city corporation under the Constitution of Illinois."

Section 8 provides that when a town or city shall be laid off or established on the land authorized to be owned by the company, the town or city may acquire the existing wharves and landings by paying the proprietors thereof, therefor, and the wharves and landings so acquired shall be dedicated to the use of such town or city, and section 9 provides the method of fixing the amount which shall be paid for such wharves and landings. These sections of the charter were repealed by an act of the General Assembly in 1857 (Private Laws, 1857, page 1146) and were reenacted in 1867. (Private Laws, Vol. I, 1867, page 938.)

It is apparent, therefore, that the charter does not grant to the Wiggins Ferry Company exclusive control of the harbor front of East St. Louis. The city may at any time condemn the company's property on the river, for wharf purposes, and may take over what wharves and landings the company has, if any, and dedicate them to the use of the city. It appears, then, that the charter has, in the respects under consideration, granted to the company no greater powers than a natural person would have, if he owned the land on the river front, and we have seen that the Legislature may grant to a corporation the powers that a natural person would have in that regard. The situation is not the same as would exist if the State owned the land on the river front in trust, as it holds the bed of Lake Michigan, and the rules that would govern that situation have no application here.

I am accordingly of the opinion that the Wiggins Ferry Company could not be ousted in a suit by the State from the ownership of the lands on the river front, hereinbefore described, provided of course, that its holdings do not exceed twelve hundred acres, on the ground that the Legislature was without authority under the Constitution of 1848, to authorize it to acquire and own, twelve hundred acres of land in Madison and St. Clair counties on the Mississippi River.

Very respectfully,

W. H. STEAD,
Attorney General.

On motion of Mr. Manny, leave of absence was granted Senator Madigan, on account of absence necessitated by attendance at funeral.

PRESENTATION OF RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. Landee offered the following resolution, which was read and, under Rule 39, was laid on the table for one day:

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 12.

"WHEREAS, It appears from investigation recently made by the Senate of the United States, and otherwise, that polygamy still exists in certain places in the United States, notwithstanding prohibitory statutes enacted by the several states thereof, and

"WHEREAS, The practice of polygamy is generally condemned by the people of the United States, and there is a demand for the more effectual prohibition thereof by placing the subject under Federal jurisdiction and control, at the same time reserving to each state the right to make and enforce its own laws relating to marriage and divorce; now, therefore,

"Resolved, By the Senate of the State of Illinois, the House of Representatives concurring therein, That the application be made and hereby is made to congress under the provisions of Article V of the constitution of the United States for the calling of a convention to propose an amendment to the constitution of the United States whereby polygamy and polygamous cohabitation shall be prohibited, and congress shall be given power to enforce such prohibition by appropriate legislation.

"Resolved, That the legislatures of all other states of the United States, now in session or when next convened, be and they are hereby and respectfully requested to join in this application by the adoption of this or an equivalent resolution.

"Resolved, further, That the Secretary of State be and he hereby is directed to transmit copies of this application to the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States, and to the several members of said bodies representing this State therein; also to transmit copies hereof to the legislatures of all other states of the United States."

REPORTS FROM STANDING COMMITTEES.

Mr. Dailey, from the Committee on Enrolled and Engrossed Bills, reported that it was necessary for the proper transaction of the business of the Senate that the Enrolling and Engrossing Clerk and his assistants, should be elected at once,

SENATE RESOLUTION No. 23.

The following voted in the affirmative: Messrs.

SENATOR CLARK—"I want to say a few words in behalf of the retiring Lieutenant Governor, Mr. Oglesby.

"In the daily walks of life as men go on they become well acquainted looking each other in the eye and continuing daily to work together there is something in the human being, something in life, that goes from one to the other that says to each 'I am transacting business with a man.'

"I want to say to you in this great State of ours, with all of the glory and all of its great men, and while the name of Oglesby has gone down in history, that the retiring Lieutenant Governor is well worthy of the sire he represents. I want to say that in him it has been a personal pleasure to find circulating in his spinal column courage of his convictions. I further wish to give a personal testimonial of the fact that should exist and be above par with all men as one man to the other and that is that his word is as good as gold. Gentlemen, there are three things—a manly man, a man's word and due consideration of his fellowmen.

"I would not be doing justice to the old retiring Senators or to the old Senators who have served with him if I did not say from the bottom of my heart and with all the enthusiasm that my energy could bring forth, that each and every one of us love John Oglesby. I thank you."

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR OGLESBY—The Chair is very grateful indeed for the kindly words spoken. At this time the Chair has nothing to add to his original statement to the Senate when he had the pleasure of bidding his successor welcome and the sorrow of saying adieu to his friends."

SENATOR DENVIR—I think it would be doing an injustice to the members on the Democratic side when you take into consideration the fact that in the Forty-seventh General Assembly we had only sixteen or seventeen members and the Republican forces were strong enough to ride over us again and again, but the impartial ruling of the Lieutenant Governor, the son of the great War Governor, was of such commendable nature and character that I believe I am speaking for the Democracy when I say he is destined to have a bright future, and if there is a Republican United States Senator elected by Democratic votes in this Assembly, it will be no other than the Honorable John G. Oglesby.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR OGLESBY—The Chair thanks the Senator for the unknown announcement of his candidacy.

At 1:25 o'clock p. m., on motion of Mr. Hurburgh, the Senate adjourned, and the President of the Senate announced that the Senate stood adjourned in pursuance of the joint resolution adopted this day, until Monday, February 3, 1913, at 10:00 o'clock a. m.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1913, 10:00 O'CLOCK A. M.

Senate met pursuant to adjournment.

Hon. John G. Oglesby, Lieutenant Governor and President of the Senate, presiding.

Prayer by the Chaplain.

The President of the Senate announced that he had examined the Journal of Thursday, January 30, 1913, and found no corrections or changes to be made, and if the Senate had no changes or corrections to offer, the Journal would be ordered to stand approved. No corrections being offered, the Journal would be ordered to stand approved.

At 10:05 o'clock a. m., on motion of Mr. Bailey, the Senate took a recess until 11:30 o'clock a. m.

11:30 O'CLOCK A. M.

Senate reconvened.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

A message from the House, by Mr. McCann, Clerk:

Mr. President—I am directed to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives has adopted the following joint resolution, in the adoption of which I am instructed to ask the concurrence of the Senate, to wit:

HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 2.

The Speaker of the House of Representatives announced that a quorum thereof had answered to their names.

It appearing that a quorum of the two Houses was present, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, as the presiding officer of the joint session, announced that the joint session was now duly convened, for the purpose of witnessing the inauguration of Governor, Lieutenant Governor, and other State officers-elect of the State of Illinois.

The Doorkeeper announced the presence of Chief Justice Frank K. Dunn of the Supreme Court of the State of Illinois, and the Associate Justices, who were admitted and assigned seats.

The Doorkeeper announced the presence of the Governor-elect, and the other State officers-elect, accompanied by the retiring State officers, who were admitted and assigned seats.

Mr. Browne, from the Committee on Notification of State officers, reported that they had notified the State officers-elect and the retiring State officers that the House and Senate were in Joint Session for the purpose of witnessing the inauguration of the Governor and other State officers-elect, and that they were present and ready to take the oath of office.

Mr. McLaughlin, from the committee appointed to wait upon the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court and request him to administer the oath of office to the State officers-elect, reported that Chief Justice Dunn was present for that purpose, accompanied by the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court of the State of Illinois.

Thereupon, Chief Justice Dunn administered the oath of office provided by section 25 of Article V of the Constitution of the State of Illinois, separately to Edward F. Dunne, Governor; Barratt O'Hara, Lieutenant Governor, and Harry Woods, Secretary of State.

The Speaker of the House surrendered the gavel to the Honorable, the retiring Governor, Charles S. Deneen, for the purpose of introducing the incoming Governor, the Honorable Edward F. Dunne.

Upon taking the gavel, Governor Deneen made the following remarks:

MR. SPEAKER, MEMBERS OF THE FORTY-EIGHTH GENERAL ASSEMBLY, JUSTICES OF THE SUPREME COURT AND LADIES AND GENTLEMEN—We have gathered to participate in and witness the ceremonies incident to the inauguration of a new administration and the transfer of the duties and responsibilities of government from one set of public officials to another. In our system of government, this does not result in any break in the continuity or disturb the regularity of the work of the government itself. That work goes on regardless of party or political changes, and the ease with which the transition is made and the smoothness with which one administration passes into another is a very good indication of the soundness, adjustment and balance of our political system.

The work of all departments of the government is steadily becoming more voluminous, more diverse and more exacting. To meet new conditions, the Legislature enacts new laws or amends and revises old ones; the courts determine whether the new or amended laws conform to the requirements of our Constitution and the executive departments take care of their enforcement.

To this expansion of the functions and activities of government every administration and in fact every session of the General Assembly contributes. In the management of such large affairs, especially in a great commonwealth like ours, with its variety of interests, commercial, industrial, educational and social, differences of opinion respecting the value of this or that particular policy or regarding the wisdom of this or that particular course of action, necessarily arise. But an administration is to be judged not by these differences but by what has been accomplished when they have been reconciled, and by the consideration whether the public interests have been conserved, the public welfare promoted and the standards of public service duly maintained and advanced.

To attain these results requires the coöperation of many different persons and departments working in harmony, and in resigning the cares of office to my successor, I wish to take this opportunity to acknowledge my indebtedness as Governor to those with whom I have been associated for a time in the conduct of the public business and to thank them for their generous aid. A great deal of the work of government is of a non-political character, and though always a Republican myself and indebted for what political preferment has been accorded me to the Republican party, it is but a just recognition of the facts to say that this acknowledgment of indebtedness extends to the Democrats who have been associated in the work of the past eight years of administration as well as to the Republicans.

I am sure that I cannot express any better wish for my successor than that he may receive such support from the other departments of government and from public opinion as will enable him to meet the exacting demands of his high office. I have had the good fortune to know Governor Dunne for many years and have been generally familiar with his career as lawyer, judge and mayor of the city of Chicago; and I may say here, and it is a pleasure to say it, that the gubernatorial campaign, long and vigorous as it was, did not degenerate into personalities or engender any personal feeling between us.

I need not say that Governor Dunne has my best wishes for his success in solving the problems which will confront him in caring for the vast administrative business of the State. I trust that in discharging the duties and meeting the responsibilities of office, he and those associated with him may be most successful and that the important public interests confided to their care by the people of Illinois may be safeguarded and protected whilst in their hands.

I wish to express my sense of obligation to the people of the State who have so highly honored me with their confidence and who have so often extended to Mrs. Deneen and myself their generous hospitality.

I wish also to express my deep appreciation of the courtesies which have been uniformly extended to myself and Mrs. Deneen by the people of Springfield. Our stay here has been made most pleasant by them and we shall take away with us the happiest recollections of their kindness and cordiality.

For Governor Dunne and his good wife and family and their associates, it is unnecessary for me to bespeak the same unflinching courtesies. This will come to them naturally both by reason of their personal worth and of the genuine hospitality and good heartedness of the people of the Capital City.

I now take great pleasure in introducing the Governor of Illinois, Hon. Edward F. Dunne.

Governor Edward F. Dunne then made the following remarks previous to delivering his Inaugural Address:

"Before following the precedents that have always obtained, that of reading my Inaugural Address, I deem it a pleasure to express a few words in appreciation of the kindly courtesies extended to myself and my wife by Governor Deneen and his amiable wife between the day of election and the day of this inaugural. Any courtesy that was possible to be done has been done by the retiring Governor and his courteous wife.

"As Governor Deneen has said, the last campaign, a vigorous campaign, was conducted on both sides—both by himself with great ability and by myself with best ability—but during all that vigorous campaign not one word was said nor was there one thing done by Charles S. Deneen or Edward F. Dunne that has in any way tended to sever friendship which we have held for each other for over a quarter of a century, and now in retiring from public life after eight years of arduous, painstaking work in the interests of the people, I know that I speak the will and wishes of the people when I say that their best wishes go with Charles S. Deneen in private life, and I know that above all the people of the State no one wishes him better or more success in his future life than his successor in office."

Governor Dunne then delivered the following Inaugural Address:
To the Members of the Forty-eighth General Assembly:

The Constitution of the State wisely provides that the Governor shall, at the commencement of each session, and, at the close of his term of office, give to the General Assembly information by message of the condition of the State, and make such recommendations as he deems proper. In compliance with that provision Governor Deneen has submitted his message to you.

It also has become the custom for the incoming Governor to make an inaugural address, recommending such measures to the consideration of the General Assembly as he deems expedient and necessary. In pursuance of that custom, I respectfully submit the following:

AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION.

The Constitution of this State should be amended in at least three essential particulars, and in at least three separate articles of the same to meet the demands of modern progress.

FIRST. INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM.

Under Article IV, relating to the legislative department, as now phrased, the inherent right of all self-governing people to initiate and veto laws is not reserved to and by the people of Illinois.

For more than eight years, the people of this State, following precedents set by other republics and fourteen sister states of the American Union, have been insistently demanding the right to legislate directly for themselves by the initiative; and the right to veto legislation, passed by the Legislature, contrary to the wishes of the people, by the referendum. Twice within the last eight years the people of Illinois, by overwhelming votes at the ballot box, in the ratio of about five to one, have manifested an urgent desire for this great reform. Their demand is insistent and just, and has been too long denied.

With the control given the people over legislation, by the possession of the initiative and the referendum, corruption in the Legislature would, practically, be eliminated; and all laws, finally enacted either by the Legislature or by direct vote of the people, would truly express the will of the people.

This control of the law-making power by the people themselves can only be secured by amending Article IV of the Constitution, so as to give to the people the right, by popular petition, to originate legislation under the initiative, and to veto legislation by the referendum.

I would respectfully recommend, therefore, at this session of the Legislature, that the necessary legislative steps be taken to amend Article IV of the Constitution, so as to secure the right of direct legislation by the people themselves, upon a petition of eight per centum of the voters voting at the last general election; and to secure the right of veto in the people, by requiring submission to the people of any law or laws, passed by the Legislature, for their approval or disapproval, upon the filing of a petition of five per centum of the voters, voting at the last general election.

SECOND. ARTICLE IX RELATING TO REVENUE.

Article IX of the Constitution, relating to revenue and taxation, and Article XIV, relating to amendments to the Constitution, ought, also, be amended; but we are unfortunately confronted with a constitutional impasse, which makes it impossible to provide for more than one of these three amendments to the Constitution at this session of the Legislature.

THIRD. ARTICLE XIV ON AMENDMENTS.

Article XIV of the Constitution, relating to amendments to the Constitution, declares that "The General Assembly shall have no power to propose amendments to more than one article of this Constitution at the same session."

This article, itself should be amended. It is archaic, unreasonably restrictive, and oppressive. No valid reason exists why several articles of the Constitution should not be amended at the same session to meet the demands of modern conditions.

The unreasonably restrictive character of this article has occasioned, at times, a demand for a constitutional convention to revise the whole Constitution; but that demand has not been so general or insistent as has been the demand for the amendment of the Constitution in certain well defined particulars.

There is a general and justifiable demand for an amendment to the Constitution, covering the initiative and referendum, for broadening the amending clause of the Constitution, and for an amendment of that article of the Constitution relating to the revenue or taxing power of the Legislature.

FOURTH. AMEND ARTICLE IX.

Article IX of the Constitution, relating to taxation and revenue, requires every person and corporation to "Pay a tax in proportion to the value of his, or her, or its property." This language prevents the Legislature from using any discrimination, of any character, between different classes and descriptions of property. All property, real and personal, tangible and intangible, must be assessed in the same category, and at the same ratio of value.

In theory, this was deemed fair and just by the framers of our Constitution. In practice, as the result of over forty years experience in this and other civilized countries, it has been found impossible of accomplishment. A large portion of personal property, and substantially all personal property evidenced on paper, such as bonds, stocks, notes, etc., has escaped taxation; and will continue to escape taxation until such property is placed in a special category and taxed in such a way as to secure for the State proper revenue therefrom.

Article IX of the Constitution, therefore, should be amended so as to give the Legislature and the people free rein in the way of taxing different classes of property, in different schedules, and by different methods.

AMEND ARTICLE IV.

While the Constitution should be amended, in all of the foregoing particulars, only one of these amendments, as I have pointed out, can be provided for at this session because of the limitations imposed by the Constitution itself. We must, therefore, elect now as to which of these different articles of the Constitution should be amended at this session of the Legislature.

In view of the insistent and repeated demands of the people at the polls for the initiative and referendum, I therefore, respectfully urge the Legislature at this session to take the necessary steps to procure the amendment of Article IV of the Constitution, so as to permit the crystallization into law of the initiative and referendum.

When this action is taken at this session it can be followed at the next following session of the Legislature by action providing for an amendment of that article of the Constitution, relating to amendments, so as to permit amendments to three, or even more, of the articles of the Constitution, at the same session, which will open the door for reform of the revenue laws thereafter and any other changes in the Constitution demanded by the people.

In making this recommendation, I am not unmindful of the fact that the people of the State, under the Public Policy Act, voted in November, 1912, for submission at this session of the legislature the question of amending Article IX of the Constitution, relating to revenue, by a vote of nearly three to one. I desire to call your attention, however, to the fact that very little publicity was given, during the campaign, to the circumstances that only one article of the Constitution could be amended at a single session, and that the amendment of the article relating to revenue, would necessarily, of itself, postpone the amendment of the Constitution covering the initiative and referendum to a subsequent session.

I call your attention to the further fact that in the same campaign, as conducted by myself, the initiative and referendum were urged as among the most vital and pressing issues of the campaign, and that my plurality, of approximately 125,000, was largely the result of the persistency with which I pledged myself in favor of the adoption of that great reform.

That many of the people, unenlightened as to the effect of their vote under the Constitution, were dubious on the matter, is shown by the fact that while on two other occasions they voted for prompt action on the initiative and referendum by a vote of about 5 to 1, the demand for revenue reform was voiced by a vote of only 3 to 1.

ABOLITION OF STATE BOARD OF EQUALIZATION.

Moreover, relief from some, and the most onerous, of the inequities and inequalities of taxation is open to us without waiting for an amendment to the Constitution. For years past the great corporations of the State have been enjoying undue favoritism in the matter of taxation, owing to maladministration of the law by the State Board of Equalization. This body is charged by law with the duty of assessing fairly and justly the property of corporations. It has signally failed in its duty. The corporations have been unduly favored at the expense of the people.

Experience has shown that the State Board of Equalization is unscientifically constituted and unfairly administered. It is a departmental fiasco, and its work farcical. It is unwieldy in numbers, intermittent in its labors, and secretive in its methods. It should be abolished. In its place should be created a tax court, or commission, composed of three or five members of approved intelligence and information, appointed by the Executive, with the approval of the Senate, for a term of years, that shall remain in continuous session the entire year and record its facts and findings from day to day. It should be given all the powers now committed to the State board of Equalization, and, in addition thereto, should have general supervision of the administration of the assessment and tax laws of the State; invested with power to advise and instruct local assessors, prescribe forms for assessment returns and reports, require returns, schedules and other information, under oath, from individuals and corporations, appoint special assessors, expert examiners and accountants, direct reassessments in case of defective assessments, hear appeals and complaints, investigate on its own initiative the administration of all tax and revenue laws, examine into the tax methods of other states, and recommend to the Legislature any and all assessments to the revenue laws of the State, which would make for a fair and equitable distribution of the burdens of taxation between the people and corporations of the Commonwealth.

Such a compact body, clothed with such power, would be more efficient in action, more responsive to the public demand for equitable taxation, and more easily and directly held responsible for any errors and mistakes which might be made than is the cumbersome and constantly changing elective body now called the Board of Equalization.

I, therefore, respectfully recommend the passage, by the Legislature, of a law abolishing the State Board of Equalization, and creating a tax court, or commission, along the lines above indicated.

ELECTION OF UNITED STATES SENATORS.

Under the existing terms of the constitution of the United States, United States senators must be elected by the legislatures of the states. As the result of one hundred and twenty-six years of experience, it has been found that this method of electing United States senators has resulted in scandalous corruption, and scandalous misrepresentation of the people in the upper chamber of congress.

For many years past, in many of the states, the election of a United States senator has been accompanied by chicanery, fraud, double-dealing and corruption. Many of the men, so chosen, have shown, by their votes and conduct, in what ought to be the most august and trusted body of the people's representatives, that they represented, not the interest of the people, but the interests of plutocracy and organized greed. The Senate of the United States, in recent years, because of this condition of affairs, has, in a large degree, lost the confidence of the people.

United States senators should be chosen in each of the states, as are its governors, its congressmen and state officials, by popular vote. At least this is the demand of the people of this State. The Legislature of this State has gone on record to this effect in the years 1903, 1907 and 1909.

The Congress of the United States has yielded to the public demand for a change in the method of electing United States senators. In May last it adopted a joint resolution providing for the amendment of the clause of the Constitution governing the election of senators, which, when it has been ratified by three-fourths of the states, as I believe it will be, will invest the people of each of the forty-eight states with power to choose their senators at the ballot box. The ratification of this amendment by the State of Illinois will come before the General Assembly at this session. In view of the action taken by the previous General Assemblies, I have no doubt that your concurrence is assured. Until such an amendment to the Constitution is passed, the advisory vote of the people at the polls should be binding on the conscience of every member of the Legislature.

PUBLIC UTILITIES.

The day of competition in the supply of gas, electric light and power, street railways, and some other public utilities, has passed. Monopoly in these matters has come to stay.

In these modern days no municipality can tolerate the tearing up of its streets, every few months or years, by rival water, gas, electric light, heating or telephone companies in the laying of pipes, wires and conduits.

Only one utility producing concern should be allowed that privilege for each utility in each city.

That concern must be either the municipal corporation itself, or a private corporation.

The sole aim of a public corporation is to operate to the satisfaction of the community, which is always assured by giving the best service at the lowest rate.

The sole aim of all private corporations, unregulated by law, is to make money for their stockholders, and the most money that can be made by poor service at a high rate to the consumer.

The only question, then, is whether the public shall own and operate through State or local agencies, or whether it shall allow these utilities to remain in the ownership and control of private corporations and regulate them by law.

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP.

After a careful investigation, through funds contributed by various vested interests, the Committee on Municipal vs. Private Operation of Public Utilities, appointed, in 1906, by the National Civic Federation, reported nineteen to one:

"To protect the rights of the people, we recommend that the various states should give to their municipalities authority, upon popular vote, under reasonable regulations, to build and operate public utilities, or to build and lease the same, or to take over works already constructed. In no other way can the people be put upon a fair trading basis, and obtain from the individual companies such rights as they ought to have."

In other words, this commission, of which a majority at the start were strongly in sympathy with, or identified with private ownership, held the right of municipal ownership to be more important than any form of regulation.

While most cities of Illinois may not be ready, as yet, to undertake municipal operation of other than waterworks legislation should be enacted immediately, giving all the cities the right to build or buy, and to operate their utilities. For this purpose, cities should be empowered to issue bonds, subject to a referendum and such other reasonable safe-guards as may be necessary. If such rights are given, it will force private corporations, now furnishing these utilities, to give decent service at decent rates, or face the alternative of public ownership.

STATE REGULATION.

Important as it is to give cities the right to manage their own public utilities, it is also important to give to State and local bodies large powers of regulation of the public utilities that remain in private hands.

These utilities may be broadly classed as "intra-urban" and inter-urban." In other words, they are either local in character, confined to a city and its suburbs, or they run through country districts and connect one place with another.

In the latter class are included interurban electric railways, natural gas mains, electric transmission lines, and a considerable portion of the telephone systems of the State.

In the other class are included city gas, electric light and power, heating, street railway companies, and such other parts of the telephone system as are operated within cities by virtue of franchises granted by such cities. Waterworks in private hands, and, doubtless, some other public utilities, could be included in this class.

The inter-urban utilities can only be regulated by the State. For that purpose a well-equipped Public Utilities Commission should be created with large powers. It should control the issue of securities, the character of service, the rate of charge, etc. It should be appointed by the Executive with the approval of the Senate.

With respect to intra-urban, or strictly city utilities, it might be well, at the start, to give to the proposed State commission control of the city utilities when requested by any of the several cities of the State. The commission, however, should be empowered to secure uniformity of accounting and full publicity with respect even to the city utilities, and should be prepared to furnish this information in tabulated form in its annual reports, and in further detail to public officials.

The commission should also be equipped with funds and authority, so that it can employ and furnish competent expert help to cities seeking advice and assistance from this State commission.

When requested to do so by any municipality, the commission should also supervise the service of these city utilities.

It would also be well to give the State commission full control of all new issues of stock, bonds and notes, and other evidences of indebtedness of all the public utilities of the State, including those within the cities. If this were done, the commission should be equipped with resources and power to make a physical valuation of such properties. No additional securities should be permitted to be issued save for additional physical property and legitimate brokerage. It should be distinctly provided that future issues of securities, when approved by the commission, should be clearly separated by serial numbers, or otherwise, from existing securities, to the end that purchasers might always know whether they were buying new securities, approved by the State, and issued for an increase of physical investment, or, whether they were buying securities issued prior to the enactment of the law, and that had not in any way passed under the scrutiny of the State.

LOCAL REGULATION.

In addition to the law conferring the right of municipal ownership, and another creating a State Utilities Commission, we need legislation conferring upon cities that choose to exercise it, the same rights of control over all their city utilities that they now possess with respect to water companies. Chicago secured such a right with respect to gas and electric companies about six years ago. A similar law, with perhaps some additional powers, should be passed for all cities.

After some experience with the legislation, recommended above, we shall be in better position to determine whether the power of the State commission should be further increased. It is, of course, desirable, and in accordance with Democratic policy, to confer as much home rule as possible upon cities, and to concentrate in State and national hands only such powers as are State or nation-wide in their scope.

To Chicago and all cities over 100,000 population might be given the right, enjoyed by the city of St. Louis, of creating its own commission, which would report directly to the city council, and be given such powers and resources as may be conferred upon it by the city itself.

CORRUPT PRACTICES ACT.

For many years past elections in this State, particularly in our largest cities, have been signalized by the lavish use of money, both before and during primary elections, and before and during final elections. Hordes of hired men have surrounded polling places, intimidating, cajoling and often terrorizing voters. Candidates have concededly spent in election contests more than twice the salary they could collect during the whole term of their offices. Such a practice is scandalous, and, if further tolerated by law, will debar from political aspiration all but the rich and corrupt. These two classes, (the rich and corrupt) combined, form but a very small portion of the community, and to limit public office and honor to them is a violation of the spirit and genius of American institutions.

To reform these conditions I, therefore, recommend the passage of a Corrupt Practices Act, which will limit, within reasonable restrictions, the expenditure of money during a political campaign, and compel the publication of all amounts collected and expended both before and after election.

CIVIL SERVICE.

Civil service is no longer an untried principle. Honestly and fairly administered, it makes for better and more efficient public service, and the people have shown by their votes that they are in favor of it.

The various institutions and offices of the State should be maintained at the highest possible point of efficiency, and an honestly enforced Civil Service Law will do much to secure that result.

I respectfully urge that your honorable body give careful consideration to all measures relative to civil service, its extension to positions, which should be included within its scope, and other amendments which might make for the better operation or enforcement of the law.

PARK CONSOLIDATION.

In the city of Chicago there exists three quasi-municipal bodies known as park commissions of the city of Chicago, to wit:

The Board of South Park Commissioners.

The Board of West Park Commissioners.

The Board of Lincoln Park Commissioners.

All of these quasi-municipal bodies are conducted as wholly separate institutions, with different offices, with different executives, different police forces, and under different management.

There is no good reason why all of these parks should not be placed under one general management. In my judgment, it would result in better service at a reduced cost; and I, therefore, respectfully recommend legislation providing for a consolidation of the three park systems of the city of Chicago.

SHORTER BALLOT.

Some effort should be made to shorten the ballot of the elector.

It has become so cumbrous, and heavily loaded, with names of candidates, particularly in large cities, that even the most enlightened citizen is incapable of exercising an intelligent selection in the choice of some candidates.

This condition exists both at primary and final elections. It is worse at primary elections because there is, under the present condition of the law, no limitation as to the number of candidates for nomination.

This shortening of the ballot at primary elections might be attained by increasing the percentage of electors necessary to sign the petition for nomination, or by requiring a decent percentage of the electors, signing the petition, to appear in person before the city or county clerk; swear to the facts contained in the petition, and identify their signatures before that official. A reasonable registration or filing fee should also be required upon the filing of every petition.

At final elections, the only way of shortening the ballot is to cut down the number of elective officers.

This can safely be done in many cases. Many public corporate bodies are now too large and unwieldy, and the individual members, by reason thereof, are less individually responsible to the people.

I respectfully intrust to your favorable consideration the subject matter of shortening the ballots to be voted upon by the people, both at primary and final elections.

All judicial officers should be voted for at a time when no State, county, city or village officers are being elected. This, in itself, would shorten the ballot as voted under present conditions.

ROTATION OF NAMES ON BALLOTS.

One of the gravest defects of our existing Election Law is that which gives the first place upon the ballot to the person who succeeds in having the official, with whom the petition is filed, stamp it as being the first filed and which places the other petitioners' names upon the ballot in the order of filing, as determined by such official. Such is the effect of the existing law. The first place on the ballot is of enormous advantage, and should not depend upon the mere order of filing. No candidate should be permitted this undue advantage. If in no other way, this objection to the existing Election Law can be avoided by amending the law, so as to require rotation of the names of the candidates in the printing of the ballots.

I suggest that a special committee be appointed by each house to consider and determine upon some equitable plan for the rotation of the names of candidates upon the ballot.

THE BREAKING OF PLEDGES BY PUBLIC OFFICIALS.

In the political history of the country, it has happened that candidates for public offices during campaigns, have given written pledges to their constituents with reference to their position, if elected, upon public questions of great interest to such constituents; and, after election, have violated pledges when in public office.

Such conduct appears to me to be obtaining votes under false pretenses, and obtaining votes by false pretenses is, to my mind, as great a moral crime as obtaining property by false pretenses. Why not make it a legal crime? I respectfully recommend the enactment of a law making the breaking of a written political pledge by a public official a felony punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary.

PAY OF EMPLOYEES.

Many employees in the State are paid their wages monthly. The custom has, unfortunately, developed a money loaning business, which is tainted by usury, and attended with many hardships. I, therefore, recommend the passage of a law requiring all employers to pay their employees as often as every two weeks.

AMEND TWO CENT FARE LAW.

Owing to an oversight of the Legislature in drafting the 2-cent fare act, children, under 12 years of age, not purchasing tickets at depots, are now charged three times the fare they would pay if they purchased tickets at the depot, while an adult is penalized to the extent of only 50 per cent of his fare.

I recommend that the law be amended so as to provide that a child should not be penalized more heavily than an adult.

PUBLIC EXPENDITURES.

I recommend the appointment of a joint committee of both houses of the Legislature to examine into the condition of the public institutions of the State, and to confer with the State Board of Administration to ascertain if it is not possible to reduce the expenditures of the same without impairing the efficiency of these institutions.

EPILEPTIC COLONY.

Public officials, and many philanthropic citizens in private life, have called my attention to the fact that in the State of Illinois there are a large number of men, women and children afflicted with epilepsy to such a degree as to render them incapable of pursuing the gainful occupations of life; yet who are otherwise mentally and physically in sound health. They number it is estimated, about 10,000.

At least 2,500 of these, it is claimed, are, at the present time, without means of livelihood, without friends or relatives, who are able to support them, and, by reason of their helplessness, are drifting into crime and abject poverty.

It is contended that such unfortunates should be cared for by the State, instead of placing them in county institutions; that if they were cared for in some open colony with healthful surroundings, where they could receive skilled medical and surgical care, many of them would respond to such treatment, improve in health and become useful members of society. Much as I am disinclined to recommend any measure, which will increase the outlay of expenditure of the State, I am forced to conclude that the care of such unfortunates is a legitimate and necessary duty of the State in the exercise of common humanity. Other states have awakened to the wisdom of providing for these unfortunates in this manner, among them Indiana, Kansas, Michigan, Missouri, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Texas and New York. This State cannot afford to lag behind these other great jurisdictions in this particular. I, therefore respectfully recommend that the Colony of Epileptics be created, and that appropriation be made sufficiently to buy a tract of land about 2,000 acres, and that the erection of buildings thereon be commenced at the earliest possible date.

CONVICT LABOR.

Provision also should be made for the employment of the inmates of our penitentiaries in road work. Primarily, convicts should be used for the preparation of material, either at the penitentiaries, or at camps, established near natural deposits of stone, gravel or other material. In the actual construction of highways, when it becomes necessary, short term prisoners should be employed on an honor system, such as prevails in Colorado.

Humanitarian reasons underlie the employment of convicts in the open air work of this sort. The problem of what is going to become of the paroled or discharged convict is largely solved if he is released, healthy in body and in mind, and not debased by associations formed in the debilitating environments of cells and prison workshops.

Psychological and physiological considerations enter into the employment of men, on an honor system in the fresh air and sunshine, wherein and whereby they are restored to society with their manhood quickened, instead of deadened or destroyed.

IMPROVEMENT OF HIGHWAYS.

A matter touching vitally the agricultural, commercial, educational, social, religious and economic welfare of Illinois, and involving the conservation of natural resources, is the question of good roads. In the improvement of public highways, Illinois has been backward.

Reports of the Federal Department of Agriculture show that about 10 per cent of the 95,000 miles of Illinois roads are improved in a permanent manner as against 38 per cent in the neighboring state of Indiana, 20 per cent in Wisconsin, 20 per cent in Kentucky, 28 per cent in Ohio and 50 per cent in Massachusetts. Considered from the standpoint of improved roads, Illinois is the twenty-fourth in the list of the states.

The loss to farmers, because of inaccessible primary markets, and the abnormal expense of transportation due to bad roads, must be considered as a contributing cause of the high cost of living. In some Illinois counties, highways are impassable to ordinary loads for a full third part of the year. Bad roads not only hinder crop production and marketing, but they keep the rural consumer away from the store of the merchant for weeks at a time. They keep pupils from the schools, and voters from political gatherings, and from participation in elections. They impair the efficiency of churches, and social, fraternal and other organizations, which depend largely on public gatherings for the efficacy of their work.

Bad roads contribute to the unattractiveness, the isolation and the monotony of country life that are responsible for the desertion of rural pursuits, especially by the young. Experts in mental ailments agree that women in remote sections are the chief sufferers from the restriction of communication and social intercourse, which bad roads impose.

Highway conditions in Illinois are due to the fact that progress in methods of transportation and travel has not been met with corresponding changes in our system of road building and maintenance. Illinois clings to the obsolete practice of placing the burden of highway improvement on the townships. Other states, in their laws, have appreciated that highway travel is no longer entirely local and that the main arteries carry a great amount of inter-county and inter-state traffic. Permanent improvement of the main arteries, which carry the great bulk of traffic, is a problem which affects the general welfare, and these states have established, successfully, systems of state aid on such highways.

I recommend for your consideration legislation which will promote the efficiency and economy of the administration of the road system of the State. This legislation, I believe, should incorporate provisions for State coöperation with counties and townships in the construction of main highways and bridges; and the proper maintenance of all roads after they are built; for the compulsory dragging of all dirt roads and for the use of the State automobile tax as a nucleus of a fund for such State aid.

CHICAGO'S CRIPPLED FINANCES.

My attention has been called by the mayor and corporate authorities of the city of Chicago to the fact that, under a recent decision of the Supreme Court of this State, construing the so-called Juul Law, the city of Chicago is now so seriously crippled, financially, as to be unable to carry on successfully its ordinary corporate functions. Other cities of the State may soon find themselves in like condition.

I, therefore, respectfully suggest that the corporate authorities of the different cities of the State be given an immediate hearing, and that such amendatory legislation may be enacted as will conserve and protect the corporate functions of the cities of the State.

AMEND THE JUVENILE COURT ACT.

Under the existing Juvenile Law, a dependent can be taken from the care and custody of its parents and deposited beyond the jurisdiction of the court and without the courts of the State—even beyond the seas.

I respectfully recommend that it be so amended as to prevent such children being taken without the jurisdiction of the court.

AMENDMENT OF THE JURY LAW IN CIVIL CASES.

I became convinced, from my experience on the bench, some years ago, that quite frequently there was a miscarriage of justice in civil law suits, resulting from disagreements of juries, procured by corrupt methods.

In nearly all of such cases the disagreements arose by reason of one or two men refusing to agree with their fellow jurors upon verdicts, which, to the ordinary person the evidence, would seem manifestly fair and just. Cases occurred in which two jurors, evidently in anticipation of a protracted disagreement, had prepared themselves for the expected developments, and fortified themselves with sandwiches, which, when hunger pressed them, they procured and consumed without dividing with the honest and unprepared members of the jury.

In view of these experiences, I would respectfully suggest that the laws of the State, relating to the trial of civil cases in the courts, be amended so as to permit the court to accept a verdict signed by eleven jurors after twelve hours' deliberation, and by ten jurors after twenty-four hours' deliberation. Such time for deliberation would give ample opportunity to an honest minority of one or two men to fully present their views to their fellow jurors, and convince them, if they, the minority, were in the right; and yet would prevent a miscarriage of justice, if they were in the wrong, and actuated by corrupt motives. I am of the opinion, however, that in all criminal cases, involving the life or liberty of a citizen, that a unanimous verdict should still be required.

LAST DAY OF LEGISLATIVE SESSION.

I have been informed by members of the Legislature, of much experience, that on the last day, or rather night, of the session, bills are read and voted upon in the midst of so much confusion and turmoil that it is often impossible for the most vigilant member to know what measure is being voted upon and how the vote is being recorded.

On the assumption that such is the fact, I would respectfully suggest that the last day of all sessions, by statute, be set aside for the purpose of verifying all roll calls of the day preceding and for the transaction of no other business.

The people have imposed upon the General Assembly and the Executive a solemn responsibility in the discharge of which, I trust, there will be a friendly coöperation and sympathetic understanding. Let us, therefore, strive earnestly, untiringly, to redeem the pledges we have given; and the people's faith in our sincerity will be our reward.

At the conclusion of the foregoing address, the purpose of the joint session being accomplished, the justices of the Supreme Court and the State officers retired, and at 1:00 o'clock p. m., on motion of Mr. Shanahan, of the House, the joint session arose and the Senate, preceded by its new President, Lieutenant Governor Barratt O'Hara, returned to the Senate Chamber, and at 1:05 o'clock p. m., resumed the consideration of business, being called to order by President O'Hara.

At 1:10 o'clock p. m., on motion of Mr. Hay, the Senate adjourned.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1913, 10:00 O'CLOCK A. M.

Senate met pursuant to adjournment.

Hon. Barratt O'Hara, Lieutenant Governor and President of the Senate, presiding.

Prayer by the Chaplain.

The President of the Senate announced that he has examined the Journal of yesterday and found no corrections or changes to be made, and if the Senate had no changes or corrections to offer, the Journal would be ordered to stand approved. No corrections being offered, the Journal was ordered to stand approved.

The President of the Senate made the following remarks:

GENTLEMEN OF THE SENATE—I feel in going into the office of your presiding officer it would not be inappropriate on my part to address to you a few remarks setting forth the policy that will guide me during the next four years.

I recognize as President of the Senate no party and no faction of any party. Any Senator looks as good to me as any other Senator and during the four years I make this pledge to you that I shall accord to each and every one of you exact justice and courtesy at all times, both in the Senate Chamber and without the Senate Chamber and during the four years I shall not discuss unfavorably any member of this body. I shall not say one unkind word in private conversation or in public discourse. That is my pledge to the fifty-one distinguished gentlemen who constitute this body.

On the other hand, I shall expect from every one of the Senators the same courtesy, the same fairness and the same justice and I shall expect that we shall coöperate to give to the people of Illinois that which they demand—the laws that they demand and that we set before them the example that they will respect.

In my judgment the most vital problem for this distinguished body to solve in the interest of the people of Illinois, and, in a general way in the interest of the people of the world, is that problem that has to do with the chastity of our women and the sanctity of our homes. No observing man can have failed to notice with keen alarm the growth of an industry that thrives from the greed of men upon the purity of women. So appalling has been the spread of the industry of the white slave that it is receiving the most serious consideration of the foremost thinkers in all the nations of civilization and the conditions upon which it thrives are being studied today by governmental commissions in every nation that makes the slightest pretense of culture and enlightenment.

Personally, I should favor in this State the introduction of this system of punishment when a man is guilty of being a party to the white slave industry the institution of the old flogging post. I believe any man who will be so low as to attack the purity of woman by engaging in this industry should be lashed publicly as they lashed them in the old colonial days, and that law has recently gone into effect in the enlightened country of Great Britain—in England they now whip anyone that engages in the industry of the white slave.

I trust this body will begin its work by providing for a commission to study conditions relating to the white slave industry, and it is to that movement that I shall devote my chief energies and efforts during the next four years.

The chair will announce the following appointments:

Miss Theresa Gorman will be continued as the President's stenographer. Miss Gorman has been recommended to me by most, if not all, of the Senators who constitute this body, and I never have heard such high praise of any woman as I have of Miss Gorman, and I am only bowing to the wishes of the Senate in continuing her services.

Mr. H. M. Polite has been appointed the President's messenger.

Mr. Frank Hurbert O'Hara, private secretary.

As for the Chaplain, I believe that the Democratic party to which I belong, stands for religious tolerance. I believe that the Republican party stands for religious tolerance. I believe that the Progressive party stands for religious tolerance. I believe religious tolerance is a good American doctrine. The Chaplain of this Senate is in a way the official religious representative of the State of Illinois.

I do not desire, while I have the appointment of the Chaplain as one of my personal appointees as President of this Senate, I do not desire alone to exercise that privilege and I shall request a committee of the Senate, composed of Senators Canaday, Cleary and Ettelson, to act with me in selecting a Chaplain. My suggestion will be that there be no regular Chaplain, but that we have each week or perhaps for a period of two weeks, a Chaplain, during the sessions of this Senate from every denomination and every religion, so that every religion will be represented and that the prayers said from this rostrum be said this week perhaps by a member of the Methodist denomination; the following week by a representative of the Presbyterian denomination, and the following week by a representative of the Catholic Church, and then a representative of the Jewish religion, and in that way this Senate will show absolutely religious tolerance. I trust this meets with the approval of the Senators.

As for the stenographers—the Chair understands, and the Chair believes the Senate stands with him in this, that the employees of this Senate should in return for the money given them return full service. That no money should be paid out without adequate return being made in service. Several of the Senators have complained to the Chair that the stenographers seem to be conspicuously absent when they should be present. Hereafter, the stenographers will work regularly from 9 to 12 and from 2 to 5, and longer if the Senators desire, six days in the week, unless excused by the Chair, and the Chair will report to the Senate any stenographers who fail to comply with that rule. The stenographers are to consider any work that has to do with the Senate.

The Chair would also call the attention of the Senate to the fact that some typewriters have been purchased by the Senate for the use of the Senate, and have disappeared. We are buying some new typewriters now and this Senate as a body should see that no typewriters are credited without adequate arrangement made for their protection and safety so that we shall never again be face to face with the situation of buying new typewriters without being able to account for the old ones.

CHAPLAIN.

The President of the Senate announced the appointment of the following to act with him in the matter of the Chaplaincy of the Senate: Senators Canaday, Cleary and Ettelson.

MESSAGES FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

A message from the House by Mr. McCann, Clerk:

PRESENTATION OF RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. Beall offered the following resolution:

SENATE RESOLUTION No. 25.

WHEREAS, There is a nation-wide movement in progress for the purpose of extirpating the white slave traffic, so-called; and

WHEREAS, The Senate is advised that the white slave traffic is not yet extinct in the State of Illinois; and

WHEREAS, Such traffic is a stigma upon our civilization and a heinous crime, that strikes at the very vitals of our social well-being, be it

Resolved, By the Senate, that a committee be appointed, to consist of the President of the Senate, as Chairman thereof, and four Senators, to be appointed forthwith by the Executive Committee of the Senate, and named by the President of the Senate, to investigate the subject of white slave traffic in Illinois; be it further

Resolved, That such committee shall investigate the workings of the present statutes of our State, dealing with the subject of white slave traffic, and shall report such amendments and additions, if any, to said statutes, as the committee shall deem necessary and adequate in the premises. Be it further

Resolved, That such committee shall coöperate with bureaus or committees appointed in other states, for the purpose of devising a comprehensive plan for the complete suppression of such white slave traffic. Be it further

Resolved, That said committee shall report its findings, conclusions and recommendations to this session of the Senate, or if not practicable, to the Senate of the Forty-ninth General Assembly; be it further

Resolved, That such committee shall have the power to administer oaths, take evidence, subpoena witnesses, and compel them to testify, compel the production of books, papers and documents, and do any and all other lawful acts to carry out the foregoing purposes. Be it further

Resolved, That said committee may appoint such clerks or investigators as it may deem necessary. Be it further

Resolved, That such expenses connected with the foregoing, as shall be necessary, shall be certified by the chairman of said committee, and the chairman of the contingent expense committee of the Senate, and shall be payable out of the fund for committee expenses of the Forty-eighth General Assembly.

By unanimous consent, on motion of Mr. Beall, the rules were suspended and the foregoing resolution was taken up for immediate consideration.

Mr. Cleary moved that the further consideration of the resolution be postponed to, and made the special order for Tuesday, February 11, 1913, at 10:00 o'clock a. m.

Mr. Curtis moved that the motion to postpone be laid on the table.

Mr. Waage raised the point of order that it was not in order to lay a motion to postpone on the table.

The President of the Senate moved the point of order not well taken.

The question then being, "Shall the motion to postpone lie on the table?" it was decided in the affirmative.

Mr. Jones offered the following amendment to the resolution:

Insert after the word "Senate" "The House of Representatives concurring therein," and insert after the word "Senate" in next to the last line the words, "and five members of the House to be appointed according to the rules thereof."

Mr. Barr moved that the amendment lie on the table,

Mr. Piercy offered the following resolution:

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 14.

Resolved, by the Senate of the State of Illinois, the House of Representatives concurring therein, That when the Forty-eighth General Assembly shall begin balloting for United States Senators, a Senator shall be elected for the long term beginning March 4, 1913, and ending March 4, 1919; before any ballots shall be cast for a Senator to be elected as a consequence of the removal of William Lorimer from the Senate of the United States.

Mr. Jones raised the point of order that the resolution was not in order, because it was in conflict with the statutes of the United States in regard to the election of the United States Senator.

Mr. Piercy offered the following resolution:

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 17.

Resolved, by the Senate of the State of Illinois, the House of Representatives concurring therein, That there shall be submitted to the electors of this State for adoption or rejection at the next election of members of the General Assembly, a proposition to amend Article IV of the Constitution of this State by adding thereto an additional section to be known as section 35 to read as follows:

Section 35. The people reserve power to propose and to enact laws as herein provided. Eight per cent of the electors of the State may propose an act by initiative petition, verified as to signatures, and filed with the Secretary of State not less than thirty days prior to the date of convening of any regular session of the General Assembly. The Secretary of State shall transmit a certified copy of the proposed act to the House of Representatives and to the Senate at the convening of the next regular session of the General Assembly, and the same shall be treated as a bill introduced in the name of the people. Unless such proposed act shall, without change, become a law by regular legislative enactment within one year after the date of convening of the General Assembly, the Secretary of State shall submit the same by its title to the electors at the next general election: Provided, that if a proposed act shall be placed upon its final passage in each House, and shall fail in each House to receive the affirmative votes of one-fourth of the members elected, it shall not be so submitted. If a proposed act, when submitted to the electors, shall be approved by a majority of the electors voting on the proposition, it shall become a law, and take effect on the first day of January next, thereafter.

All laws enacted under the provisions of this section may be subsequently amended or repealed by the General Assembly, and they shall be subject to the same constitutional provisions and limitations as are acts passed by the General Assembly: Provided, such provisions and limitations are not inconsistent with the provisions of this section.

The people reserve power to reject laws passed by the General Assembly, and to stay the time for their taking effect, as herein provided. Five per cent of the electors of the State, by a referendum petition, verified as to signatures, and filed with the Secretary of State before the taking effect of an act, may require that such act shall not take effect until submitted to the electors. The Secretary of State shall submit such act by its title to the electors at the next general election, and if rejected by a majority of the electors voting on the proposition it shall become void, otherwise it shall take effect on the first day of January next, thereafter. Acts passed in case of emergency by a vote of two-thirds of all the members of each House, and acts making appropriations for the ordinary and contingent expenses of the government or of any existing institution of the State, shall not be subject to referendum petition. All acts shall take effect as provided in section 13 of this article, except that no act subject to referendum petition shall take effect within less than thirty days after it becomes a law: And, provided, further, that one per cent of the electors of the State, by referendum petition, verified as to signatures and filed with the Secretary of State before the taking effect of an act, may require that such act shall not take effect until ninety days after it became a law, pending the filing of a petition supplementing and completing the said referendum petition.

The Governor, Attorney General, and Secretary of State shall constitute a board to pass upon the sufficiency of every initiative and referendum petition, and when approved by them its sufficiency shall not be questioned in any court. A finding of the board that a petition is not sufficient may be reviewed upon a petition for mandamus filed in the Supreme Court within thirty days. The total vote cast at the last general election shall be the basis upon which the required per cent of electors herein specified shall be estimated, and not less than fifty per cent of the signatures required shall be electors residing outside of the county of Cook. This amendment shall be self-executing, but appropriate legislation may be enacted regulating the details of its operation.

By unanimous consent, on motion of Mr. Piercy, the foregoing resolution was taken up for consideration, and on his motion was referred to the Committee on Constitutional Amendments.

By unanimous consent, Mr. Piercy called up for consideration, the following resolution, offered by him on February 4, 1913:

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 14.

Resolved by the Senate of the State of Illinois, the House of Representatives concurring therein, That when the Forty-eighth General Assembly shall begin balloting for United States' Senators, a Senator shall be elected for the long term beginning March 4, 1913, and ending March 4, 1919; before any ballots shall be cast for a Senator to be elected as a consequence of the removal of William Lorimer from the Senate of the United States.

The President of the Senate presented the following communication from the Attorney General, which was read, and on motion of Mr. Jones was ordered spread upon the Journal.

STATE OF ILLINOIS,
DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE.
SPRINGFIELD, Feb. 6, 1913.

(Election of United States Senators—Order in which taken up.)

To the Honorable Senate:

GENTLEMEN—At the regular session of the Senate, held on February 4, 1913, a joint resolution, specifying that the vote on the long term Senatorship should have precedence over the vote on the short term Senatorship, was duly introduced and a point of order was taken on the ground that such action would be in violation of the Federal Constitution.

Your presiding officer, Honorable Barratt O'Hara, Lieutenant Governor, held that the resolution would be held in abeyance until a legal opinion could be obtained from the Attorney General. Accordingly, your presiding officer has submitted to me for opinion, the question suggested by the point of order.

In reply thereto, I would say that the election of Senators is governed by the Act of the congress of the United States of July 25, 1866. Section 14 of that Act provides that:

"The legislature of each state which is chosen next preceding the expiration of the time for which each Senator was elected to represent such state in congress shall, on the second Tuesday after the meeting and organization thereof, proceed to elect a Senator in congress."

Section 15 of said Act defines the mode of election. Section 16 of said Act provides that:

"Whenever on the meeting of the legislature of any state a vacancy exists in the representation of such state in the Senate, the legislature shall proceed, on the second Tuesday after meeting and organization, to elect a person to fill such vacancy, in the manner prescribed in the preceding section for the election of a Senator for a full term."

These sections are found on pages 210 and 211 of Volume 2, Federal Statutes, Annotated.

The sections quoted above have been subject, in the particular suggested by the point of order, to consideration by the Senate of the United States. I refer to the report of the Committee on the Judiciary submitted by Senator Trumbull of Illinois on the petition of Ossian B. Hart of Florida, claiming a seat in the Senate from the state of Florida for the term which commenced March 4, 1869.

Briefly, the facts were as follows: In consequence of the rebellion, the state of Florida was without representation in the Senate from 1861 to 1868. Pursuant to the Constitution of Florida, a legislature was elected in 1868, which convened on June 8th of that year. The legislature on June 16, 1868, being the second Tuesday after its meeting and organization, proceeded, in accordance with the Act of congress of July 25, 1866, to take action for the election of two United States Senators, to fill the then existing vacancies for the terms expiring March 3, 1869, and March 3, 1873.

No election was had on Tuesday. On Wednesday, the members of the two houses convened in joint assembly and elected a Senator to fill the vacancy expiring March 3, 1869, and adjourned until the next day, when they again assembled and elected a Senator for the term expiring March 3, 1873, and adjourned without date.

The next day (Friday), the members of the two houses, each house having previously concurred in a resolution to that effect, again assembled in joint convention for the purpose of electing a Senator to succeed the one whose term would expire on March 3, 1869, when Abijah Gilbert, the present sitting member was elected.

In January, 1870, the petitioner was elected by the same legislature to represent the state in the Senate for the term commencing March 4, 1869, and claimed the seat occupied by Mr. Gilbert.

Two objections were made to the election of the sitting member, Mr. Gilbert,—only one of which it is necessary to consider in this connection.

The second objection was that he was not elected in conformity with the Act of July 25, 1866. Relative to this objection, the committee say:

"The only ground for the other objection arises from the fact that the legislature failed to take action on the 'second Tuesday after its organization' in regard to the third Senator who was to be elected, but it took action on the subject of electing Senators and actually voted, though unsuccessfully, on that day for persons to fill the two existing vacancies.

"The object of the Act of congress was to insure the election of Senators by the proper legislature, and to fix a time when proceedings for that purpose should be commenced and continued till the elections were affected.

"The legislature by which the sitting member was elected was the one chosen next preceding the term which would commence on the 4th of March, 1869, and was, therefore, the proper legislature to elect. 'The second Tuesday after the meeting and organization of the legislature' was the time prescribed by the Act of congress for initiating the election of Senators, and that was the time when the legislature proceeded to that business. There being three Senators to elect, it took action on that day only in reference to two of them. Did its failure to take action on that day, and the two subsequent days (which were occupied in electing the first two Senators), in reference to the third Senator, render his election, in all other respects regular, invalid? The committee think not."

Hart v. Gilbert, Taft's Senate Election Cases, pp. 320-321.

The only other Senate precedent which bears even remotely upon the proposition under consideration, and which I am able to find, is that relative to the election of the Honorable Warner Miller as a Senator from the state of New York to fill a vacancy caused by resignation. The objection to Warner's seat was made upon the ground that the election did not take place upon the second Tuesday after notice of the vacancy was communicated by the governor, but that the election took place on the third Tuesday after such notice was communicated. Upon this proposition, the committee say:

"The facts are such as to create some controversy as to whether they did proceed on the second Tuesday or the third Tuesday after the notice; but, in any view, the committee are unanimously of the opinion that the legislature was not deprived of its constitutional right to elect Senators to this body."

In re Lapham & Miller, Taft's Senate Election Cases, pp. 642-643.

This ruling of the Senate would seem to establish the principle that even though the election of a Senator to fill a vacancy should not be held on the second Tuesday after meeting and organizing, yet, if held subsequently and by the legislative authority to elect a Senator, the election would not be invalid.

In view of the Senate precedents above referred to and quoted from, it is my conclusion that should the General Assembly give precedence to the election of a Senator to fill the long term, it would not in any way prejudice the title of a Senator subsequently elected to fill the unexpired term.

I am of the opinion, further, that the point of order, taken on the ground that the vote on the long term Senatorship would be in violation of the Federal Constitution, is not well taken.

Very respectfully,

P. J. LUCEY,

Attorney General.

Respectfully submitted,

CHARLES S. DENEEN,

Governor.

Senator Gorman—I arise to a point of order. The members of the Rivers and Lakes Commission are included in this message and the statute does not require that the Senate confirm those appointments. Upon that point of order, I desire a ruling.

Senator Juul moved the previous question.

Governor O'Hara—A ruling is called for from the Chair and previous question is not in order until ruling is made. The Chair has under consideration the point raised and while taking it under advisement would ask the Senator to withdraw his motion.

Senator Juul—This is the second time I made the motion of the previous question. After I had first moved the previous question the gentleman on the other side of the House raised the point of order.

Governor O'Hara—The Chair would rule the motion is not in order until the Chair has ruled on the point raised, the Chair would rule that this is a matter in which parliamentary law is not involved. That it will always be the policy of the Chair to refer all points not involving parliamentary law to the Attorney General for an opinion. As the point raised does not involve parliamentary law, the Chair will, unless the Senate decrees otherwise, ask the Attorney General for an opinion.

Senator Ettelson—I desire to call the attention of the Lieutenant-Governor to a provision of the Constitution—Section 10, Article 5.

Senator Cleary—What is the gentleman discussing?

Governor O'Hara—The Chair is unable to state what subject the Senator from Cook, Mr. Ettelson, is talking upon. The Chair will refer the Senator to Mr. Ettelson.

Senator Ettelson—Section 10, Article 5 of the Constitution provides—

Senator Cleary—Since the Constitution of Illinois is not under advisement, the gentleman is out of order.

Governor O'Hara—The Chair rules with the gentleman from JoDavies and until a motion is before the House the Senator from Cook will not be in order.

Senator Hay—Then a motion is in order that it is the sense of this Senate that the subject be not referred to the Attorney General but that the Senate proceed at once to confirm these appointments. I make such a motion.

The question then being "Shall the motion made by Mr. Hay be adopted?" it was decided in the affirmative.

Mr. Juul moved that the previous question be now put, and,

The yeas and nays being demanded, the motion was decided in the affirmative by the following vote: Yeas, 26; nays, 24.

On motion of Mr. Jones, the Executive Session arose and the Senate resumed the consideration of business.

SPECIAL ORDER.

The President of the Senate announced that the special order for this hour was, as provided for by House Joint Resolution No. 4, adopted by the Senate and the House of Representatives of the Forty-eighth General Assembly of the State of Illinois, and also as required by the statutes of the United States, the naming by the Senate by a viva voce vote of a person for Senator in the Congress of the United States from the State of Illinois for the term of six years from the 4th day of March, A. D. 1913, and also the naming of a person for Senator in the Congress of the United States from the State of Illinois, for the remaining portion of the vacated six year term, from the 4th day of March, A. D. 1909, as provided by sections 14, 15 and 16 of title 2, chapter 1, Revised Statutes of the United States for 1873 and 1874.

The President of the Senate announced that the vote would be first taken on Senator for the term from March 4, A. D. 1913, until March 4, A. D. 1919, being for the term of six years.

Mr. Magill placed in nomination Honorable Lawrence Y. Sherman, and in doing so made the following remarks:

MR. PRESIDENT AND MEMBERS OF THE SENATE—We have reached the day when, in compliance with the constitution of the United States and the federal statutes, this General Assembly must proceed to the election of two United States Senators. In the selection of the representatives of this State in the United States Senate, we may differ with respect to candidates because of a difference in party affiliations and party obligations, but honest men of all parties cannot differ in a determination that whoever is elected shall be chosen without the slightest suspicion of corruption, and that whatever is done shall be done openly and squarely for the good name of our State, and for the best interests of the people whom we represent.

The accomplishment of this purpose is made particularly difficult by the fact that of the four parties represented in this General Assembly, none has a majority in either House, nor a majority in the joint assembly. A United States Senator cannot be elected without some kind of a combination. For this General Assembly to remain indefinitely in a senatorial deadlock will not meet with the approval of the people, and yet any bi-partisan combination for the purpose of breaking the deadlock will be regarded by the people with some degree of suspicion, because of the action of the bi-partisan alliance that four years ago elected a Senator.

The circumstances attending that election, the charges that were made, the trials that followed, and the final action of the United States Senate in the matter are still fresh in the minds of the people, and they will not tolerate another bi-partisan combination such as that which elected William Lorimer. Whether any combination shall be approved or condemned by the people of this State must depend upon the underlying purpose for which it is formed, and the character and motives of those who form it. Men of different political parties may combine for a good purpose in the interest of the people of the State, but there must be no combination on the part of the honest men of any party with the allied forces of those interests that make politics profitable, and grow rich and powerful at public expense.

The conditions existing in this General Assembly today, and the complex problems confronting it in the performance of its duty in this senatorial election, are most convincing arguments for the election of United States Senators by a direct vote of the people. It was the sad experience of Illinois during the last few years, and the public sentiment which was thereby awakened throughout the country, that induced congress at last to yield to the popular demand for the submission of an amendment to the federal constitution providing for the direct election of United States Senators, and the chaotic political condition in this General Assembly is an unanswerable argument for the prompt ratification of that amendment. I am convinced that this is the last General Assembly of this State that will ever be called upon to elect a United States Senator.

In close accord with the universal demand for the popular election of United States Senators, is the demand that provision shall be made for the control of the national conventions of the several political parties by the voters of the respective parties. In addition to the instruction of delegates to these conventions by a preferential vote on president, such additional provision must be made as will make the national convention of every political party responsive to the will of the voters who constitute it. The organization and subsequent action of every national convention should be a reflection of the wishes and purposes of a majority of the members of the party represented.

A very serious condition has come about in the Republican party because of a disregard of this principle at the last national convention by a small coterie of men who happened to be in positions of power. By the use of an unjust and inequitable system of representation that had long been tolerated even by those who now complain most bitterly of it, the will of a great majority of the party was thwarted. But the action of those leaders did not represent the true spirit of the Republican party. They should be dethroned and repudiated, but the party to which they were false should not be destroyed. Their action was reactionary in the extreme, but the rank and file of the Republican party was then, and is today, progressive. Read the statutes of Wisconsin, of Oregon, of California, of Illinois, and of a score of other states that have been until recently under Republican administrations, and there you will find enacted into law the most progressive measures.

The history of the Republican party is written in the story of our country's progress. Shall the record of its accomplishments count for less than mere promises? Shall this great historic party be destroyed in the prime of its strength and usefulness because of a few corrupt leaders within its ranks? Shall we abandon this great heritage handed down to us by our fathers without a struggle to preserve and defend it? And if we should turn to another party, hoping thereby better to promote the welfare of our State and nation, what guarantee have we that it too may not be subverted by the selfish purposes of ambitious leaders? Think not that the millions of progressive Republicans who refused to endorse the action of the last Republican national convention have left the Republican party. They voiced their protest against steam roller tactics in their party, but they still believe in Republican principles, and deep in their hearts is a cherished hope that the Republican party under progressive leadership shall have a new birth of influence and power.

I do not impugn the motives of those who left the Republican party to form a new party, nor do I question their integrity and patriotism. But to leave this great party that has given to the states and to the nation more progressive and beneficial legislation than any party in the history of the country, at a time when the great majority of its members were decidedly progressive, because of the unfair action of a small minority who did not represent the ideals and purposes of the millions who make up the rank and file of the party, has never appealed to my conscience nor to my sense of loyalty. I cannot understand how men who know the history of the Republican party, who know the achievements of its past and the opportunities of its future, who owe everything which they have ever accomplished or attained politically to the Republican party, can openly boast of a desire to kill it. It may be that the Republican party shall some day go down, but I trust that it shall never be said of me that I contributed to its downfall.

The words of Webster in reference to American liberty seem to me fitting in reference to the Republican party which, under Lincoln, gave to this nation a new birth of freedom, and which has done so much since to preserve and advance the cause of human liberty. "If discord and disunion shall wound it, if party strife and blind ambition shall hawk at it and tear it, it will stand in the end by the side of that cradle in which its infancy was rocked; it will stretch forth its arm, with whatever of vigor it may still retain, over the friends that gather round it; and it will fall at last, if fall it must, amid the proudest monuments of its own glory." But the Republican party will not fall if those who hold its destiny are true to the principles of equal opportunity and exact justice upon which it was founded, and shall maintain it always as the faithful representative of the ideals and purposes of the American people.

The Republican party of Illinois, including all who took part in the primary as Republicans, selected a candidate for United States Senator who is committed to the principles of which I have spoken. He advocates the election of United States Senators by the people and he has declared repeatedly that if sent to the United States Senate he would do all in his power to secure the enactment of a federal law placing the national conventions of all political parties under the control of the voters who constitute them. He heartily endorses the principles of the direct primary law, and declared during the primary campaign that if he were not nominated by the voters of his party he would not be a candidate before this General Assembly.

I present to the members of this Senate, not the choice of a party convention, nor the candidate endorsed by a party caucus, but one who has been selected by the voters of his party at a primary election as their candidate for the high office of United States Senator. I bring you his credentials direct from the people. I need not on this occasion tell you the story of his life, of the high esteem in which he is held by those who know him best, of his many years of faithful and efficient public service, and of his great ability and high character as a statesman. Nor need I foretell the illustrious service which he will render the State of Illinois if he is sent to the highest legislative body in the world. The voters of the Republican party in consideration of all of these qualities have selected him as their candidate, and in their name I present to you their candidate and our candidate for the United States Senator from Illinois, Honorable Lawrence Y. Sherman.

Mr. Denvir placed in nomination, Honorable James Hamilton Lewis, and in doing so made the following remarks:

MR. PRESIDENT AND FELLOW SENATORS AND LADIES AND GENTLEMEN—I thank heaven I do not need to make any excuses for my party. The gentleman who just preceded me found it vitally necessary.

It is my great pleasure and honor to present to this, the highest legislative body within our State, the name of the Democratic candidate for United States Senator for the long term—the Honorable James Hamilton Lewis. He is a Chicagoan. I should say he is a Chicago man whom the Egyptians loved. Virginian by birth, Illinoisan by adoption and true Westerner in growth and inspiration. A cosmopolite whom all men know; a lawyer to whom the courts come for inspiration and whose eloquence is as far-reaching as the English language. He is a seer whose vista is as wide as humanity. He is a philosopher and a dreamer. He is a historian who has touched the shores of time and brought back to his countrymen the rich experience of all ages. He is a statesman. He has been in the forefront of all great battles for the progress of the people not only of this commonwealth but of the nation. He is the great friend of man; the lover of children and the champion of womanhood. His devotion to democracy has made possible the ringing of the Democratic victory in the dome of the State capitol and riveting the Democratic victory at the national capitol at Washington.

At Denver in 1908 he was called to the Chair in that great Bryan convention. At Baltimore last June when passion ran riot the gavel was again entrusted to him. He guided that seething maelstrom of political chaos into the sun-lit seas of Democratic glory.

The people recognize him as their friend and the champion of the man who toiled amid them as their brother. More than a quarter of million people of this great commonwealth expressed their confidence and admiration for him by giving him their votes for the office of United States Senator from Illinois. Men of every calling who preached the doctrine of equality before the law laid at his feet the nomination for this great office—the Senator of the United States. They knew he was worthy and well qualified and in passing let me say to you distinguished Senators that he one time was a plain, humble, Senator like each one of you are here today. He represented his party in the state of Washington in that state senate and as a member of congress his voice has been raised for the uplifting of the down-trodden masses not only of the state but of the nation. He stands today in that high place where the light would show him in every effect if there was any—the peer of any man of this great commonwealth of states and now my fellow citizens in the name of the people of the United States, in the name of the people of the great State of Illinois, here in the county of Sangamon, in the capitol of the State, in the city where rests all that is mortal of him that gave birth to emancipation proclamation—Abraham Lincoln—here in this State, in this sacred city of the memory of the beloved Lincoln, I present him and pledge twenty-four votes from this Chamber until the toga shall grace him. Gentlemen, our next United States Senator—the Honorable James Hamilton Lewis—the peerless leader not only of this State but of the nation.

Mr. Harris placed in nomination Hon. Frank H. Funk, and in doing so made the following remarks:

MR. PRESIDENT AND FELLOW SENATORS—On behalf of the Progressive party in the Senate, I desire to place in nomination for United States Senator, Mr. Frank H. Funk, of Bloomington, a former member of this Honorable Body, and a member of a family in the great State of Illinois which is something more than a name.

The Funk family is an institution, closely identified with the growth and development of this State, and represents all that is best and desirable in American citizenship. I offer, therefore, for the nomination for this high office, Mr. Funk, who measures up in every respect to the requirements and responsibilities imposed by the office of United States Senator.

Mr. Hay seconded the nomination of Honorable Lawrence Y. Sherman, and in doing so, made the following remarks:

MR. PRESIDENT AND FELLOW SENATORS—The General Assembly is about to enter upon the discharge of one of the few duties imposed upon it by the Federal Constitution, the election of the representatives of the State in the Senate of the United States.

Heretofore with rare exceptions one of the two great political parties has had a clear majority of the General Assembly and it has therefore been possible for the General Assembly to elect United States Senators by the concurrent vote of members of that party and without the votes of members of any other party. Under the conditions which have thus heretofore existed and under the code of political ethics which have grown up suited to and based upon these conditions, it has come to be regarded as reprehensible and as a political treason for a member of the General Assembly to vote for one or another political party for United States Senator.

But the conditions which have heretofore generally existed do not exist in the present General Assembly. A Senator cannot be elected except by the concurring votes of a majority of the General Assembly. No party has a majority in the General Assembly and therefore no United States Senator can be elected except he receive the votes of members of the General Assembly holding to a different political faith than his.

This is but a statement of a condition which each and every one of us must have realized and must have considered with reference to his future action.

The Federal Constitution provides for representation in the Senate of the several states in order that federal legislation may be shaped with the knowledge and in the light of the needs and conditions of the people of the several states. Representation of this State in the United States Senate is as essential to the safeguarding of the interests of the people of this State as representation from Cook County in the General Assembly is essential to the safeguarding of the interests of the people of Cook County. Unless, therefore, this State is represented in the United States Senate its peculiar interests cannot be properly safeguarded.

The vast mass of legislation is non-political and does not present a question of difference between the several political parties. It is of vital importance to the people of this State that this mass of non-political legislation should be so shaped as to properly safeguard the interests of the people of this State. In view of these facts and in view of the slight probability of the decision of a political question turning upon the vote of any particular United States Senator, I believe that any reasonable adherent of any political party must consider a member of this General Assembly as justified under proper conditions in voting to elect a member of another political party in conjunction with a member of his own party as United States Senators from this State.

Three General Assemblies of this State in which no party had a majority have elected United States Senators, and in each the Senator so elected received the votes of members not of his party. In 1855 Lyman Trumbull was elected United States Senator by a combination of Whigs and Free Soilers and Abraham Lincoln participated in and approved the election by withdrawing as the Whig candidate in order that the combination might be made. In 1877, David Davis, an Independent, was elected United States Senator by a combination of Democrats and Independents, and in 1891, John M. Palmer, a Democrat, was elected United States Senator by a combination of Democrats and members of the Farmers' Alliance.

In each of these instances the General Assembly elected a pre-eminent citizen, of great natural capacity, tried in the service of the State, acquainted with the needs and conditions of the State, and by reason of that capacity knowledge and experience capable of rendering further service to the people of the State in a broader field of action. And in each of these instances the good citizenship of the State gave its approval to the election and did not hold blameworthy those members of the General Assembly who had by their votes made an election possible.

We may safely guide ourselves by these precedents.

In the light of these precedents the Republican party presents for your consideration as a candidate for United States Senator for the term beginning March 4, 1913, Lawrence Y. Sherman.

We believe him to be of great natural capacity, fortunate in the possession of those peculiar abilities required for success in the leadership in a legislative body. We believe that his long experience in public life as city attorney, as member and Speaker of the House of Representatives, as presiding officer of this body, and last, but not least, as President of the Board of Administration, a public service extending over a period of thirty years and into each of the three coordinate branches of the government, has ripened his natural capacity and has given him a remarkable knowledge of the people of this State, their conditions, their laws and their institutions. We believe that his natural capacity, his aptitude for legislative service, his knowledge of the State's needs, his experience, the service already rendered by him to the public point him out as a pre-eminent citizen from whom on a broader field we may expect further and even more valuable service to the public. We believe that the members of this General Assembly, regardless of party, may and should elect Lawrence Y. Sherman as Senator for the term beginning March 4th, not as the Republican nominee, but as the candidate most worthy to be elected if we are to govern our action by the principles and tests which under similar circumstances led to the election of Trumbull, Davis and Palmer, as United States Senators from Illinois.

Mr. President, and Fellow Senators, it gives me great pleasure to second the nomination of Lawrence Y. Sherman.

Mr. O'Connor, in a few well-chosen remarks, seconded the nomination of Honorable James Hamilton Lewis.

No other nominations being made, the Secretary called the roll of the Senators and they proceeded by a viva voce vote to name a person for United States Senator in Congress of the United States to represent the State of Illinois for the term of six years from the 4th day of March, A. QUESTION OF PRIVILEGE.

Senator Hearn rising to a question of privilege made the following remarks:

MR. PRESIDENT AND GENTLEMEN OF THE SENATE—I am commissioned to make a presentation speech to the Lieutenant Governor of the State of Illinois. There is a great deal of the history of our country clustering around this since I, the sole confederate soldier in this body, have been chosen to present this historical gavel.

This gavel is the product of the Sons of the Veterans of the Spanish-American war captured from one of the Spanish fleets in the contest at Santiago and made from a piece of mahogany furniture rescued from a vessel that was sinking. Think how wonderful the history of that struggle is. The great McKinley foresaw the opportunity of bringing this country together at that opportune time by taking from the southern ranks such men as Fitzhugh Lee and Joe Wheeler, and they, doffing the blue uniform instead of the gray, were the sons of the South rallying with the sons of the North and marching to the liberties of Cuba and then when we go further and understand that in the original formation of this government that Mr. Jefferson penned a clause in the Declaration of Independence that liberated the negroes in that time but it was stricken out of the original copy for monied purposes and brought on a war between the states that caused rivers of blood to flow and cost millions of treasure and caused Mr. Lincoln, whom Kentucky gave to Illinois and Illinois gave to the nation, to rewrite that clause and it touches me when I think of the vast history connected with this gavel which I hereby present to you, Mr. President, coming from the Veterans of the Spanish-American war of the Columbia Post in Chicago.

Governor O'Hara—Senator Hearn, I desire to thank you and the members of Columbia Post No. 2, United Spanish War Veterans, for this gavel. I desire to thank you for the sentiment you have expressed, a sentiment coming from a veteran of the Confederate army, a sentiment expressed in this instance, so intimately connected with the history of Abraham Lincoln, and particularly on this day, the birthday of Abraham Lincoln.

In accepting this gavel Senator Hearn, I wish to pray God to bless every gray hair in your head, to bless every gray hair in the head of every Confederate veteran and in the head of every veteran of the Union army and to tell you that the veterans of the Spanish war realize that there no longer is a division in this country and we love the memory of the Confederate veterans and we love the memory of the Union veterans. I thank you Senator Hearn.

By request of Senator Hearn, the Secretary read the following communication:

FRANK S. DICKSON,

THE ADJUTANT GENERAL OF ILLINOIS.

SPRINGFIELD, January 17, 1913.

MY DEAR SENATOR—Recalling our conversation of yesterday, in which Lieutenant Governor-elect Barratt O'Hara desired me to confer with you with reference to you presenting him, immediately after his assumption of duties in the Senate, with a gavel on behalf of Columbia Camp No. 2, Department of Illinois, U. S. W. V., of which Governor O'Hara is a member and in which connection you advised me that it would be a pleasure for you so to do, and requested me to give you such facts of information in connection with the gavel as would be necessary or desirable, I submit the following:

The gavel is made from ebony, captured from the furnishings of the Spanish war ship, Maria Teresa, as she was sinking as a result of the conflict between the Spanish fleet and the American fleet. The wood in the gavel was captured by James Bashford, a member of Columbia Camp, U. S. W. V., during an heroic act in which he saved many Spanish sailors from the sinking ship and for which act the congress of the United States has given him favorable mention.

This gavel has been made up by Columbia Camp, as indicated above, to be presented to one of their members, Governor O'Hara, as a mark of appreciation and esteem. I, on yesterday evening, acquainted Governor O'Hara with your indicated acceptance of the presentation and he is deeply gratified thereby. I will see that the gavel reaches you in due season.

Very truly yours,

F. S. DICKSON.

HON. CAMPBELL S. HEARN,
State Senate, Springfield, Illinois.

Present—151.

The Speaker of the House of Representatives announced that a quorum of the House was present and as presiding officer of the Joint Assembly, he announced that a quorum of each House was present.

By direction of the President of the Senate, the Secretary of the Senate read that portion of the Senate Journal of yesterday, February 11, A. D. 1913, which set forth the action of the Senate in naming a person for Senator in the Congress of the United States, from the State of Illinois for six years from the 4th day of March, A. D. 1913, and the action of the Senate for the naming of a person for Senator in the Congress of the United States from the State of Illinois, for the remaining portion of the vacated six year term from the 4th day of March, A. D. 1909, which Journal showed that no choice had been made by the Senate for either of the terms above set forth.

By direction of the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the Clerk read that portion of the Journal of yesterday, February 11, A. D. 1913, which set forth the action of the House of Representatives, in naming a person for Senator in the Congress of the United States from the State of Illinois for six years from the 4th day of March, A. D. 1913, and the action of the House of Representatives for the naming of a person for Senator in the Congress of the United States from the State of Illinois for the remaining portion of the vacated six year term from the 4th day of March, A. D. 1909, which Journal showed that no choice had been made by the House of Representatives for either of the terms above set forth.

The Speaker of the House of Representatives, as the presiding officer of the Joint Session, announced that inasmuch as the Journals of the two Houses of the General Assembly showed that there had been no election of a United States Senator from the State of Illinois for either of the terms, to wit: The term from March 4, A. D. 1913, for six years or for the term for the remaining portion of the vacated six year term from the 4th of March, A. D. 1909, therefore the business in order was the choosing by a viva voce vote of a United States Senator by the Joint Assembly for each of the said terms, to wit:

First—Of a Senator from the State of Illinois to the Congress of the United States for the term of six years from the 4th day of March, A. D. 1913, which is hereby designated as the long term.

Second—Of a Senator from the State of Illinois to the Congress of the United States for the remaining portion of the vacated six year term from the 4th day of March, A. D. 1909, which is hereby designated as the short term.

And hereafter the terms of service shall be designated as the long and short term, respectively.

The presiding officer of the Joint Assembly then ordered that the first ballot should be taken for the long term.

FIRST JOINT BALLOT FOR LONG TERM.

The presiding officer of the Joint Session announced that nominations were in order.

Mr. Piercy of the Senate placed in nomination Hon. James Hamilton Lewis and in doing so made the following remarks:

MR. PRESIDENT AND GENTLEMEN OF THE JOINT ASSEMBLY—The story of civilization is a history of man's fighting against the forces of nature on the one hand and his human masters on the other. It is with this second half of the battlefield that government concerns itself.

On a flat marsh along the banks of the Thames some seven hundred years ago, our English forefathers wrested from King John the great charter, and Runnymede became the cradle of English liberties.

At Sempach the Swiss had thrown off the Austrian yoke and had carved out with their swords their own independence.

That historical whirlwind of blood and battleaxe—the French revolution—had upturned all the monarchical notions of France and had proclaimed the democracy where before there was unthinking and unfeeling despotism.

The sun of the great Napoleon which had risen so splendidly at Austerlitz had gone down forever behind the plains of Belgium at Waterloo. The world was coming into its own. Democracy was being spread over the race of men.

The breezes of freedom had blown the Mayflower into Plymouth harbor and America was born. The battle glories of the American revolution from Lexington and Concord through Bunker Hill and Valley Forge, where the American soldiers left their blood-stained footprints upon the frozen ground, on down to Yorktown were a triumph for the principle that one people shall not oppress another.

But our Declaration of Independence was not broad enough. The terrible midnight of the Civil War came on and through four terrible years of camp fires, marches and battlefields, from Sumpter to Appomattox, we re-wrote our Declaration of Independence in our country's blood. But we finally decreed that black men as well as white shall be free, and this war broadened the interpretation of our liberties.

In these latter years there has sprung up in this country with terrific rapidity and certain outcome a movement to carry the functions of government closer to the people.

We are now passing through a governmental evolution that is carrying democracy literally to the very finger tips of American society. The initiative and referendum, the direct election of United States Senators, the direct primary for all nominations, are the badges of this new democracy.

It is a far cry from the divine right of kings to the direct primary, but thus far have we gotten in the fight.

Our problem today in this country of ours is to make the humblest citizen of the republic feel that he is a part of this great nation. It is ours to preserve, in truth as it has always been in theory, the doctrine of equality of opportunity to all.

It is an age in which these governmental problems must be worked out with thought and caution.

No man is bad because he is rich and no man is good because he is poor; but rather must both rich and poor live up to the same standards of equality of opportunity.

There is no further danger in this country of physical disunion. That matter was settled once and for all at Appomattox, but I do sometimes fear a social disunion that will disrupt this society of ours into castes and classes.

Whatsoever in education, legislation or aught else builds up walls of class hatred in this country is wrong.

Whatsoever brings all of our citizenship high and low, mighty and feeble, rich and poor, into a sense of a common brotherhood is good.

Here is a railroad president with broad intellectual grasp and keen financial acumen. He builds great steel highways across the continent, scatters towns over night in waste places, and makes the desert blossom and bloom as the rose. This great corporation, with its enormous capitalization and its thousands of employees, is not only necessary but welcome. Society could not do without it. It must be protected in its every legal right.

However, great as it is, it is no more necessary than the humblest workman who goes forth into the dewy dawn of a fresh day to drive a spike in this railroad; and he too must be protected in his every right. They both must be brought into an attitude of coöperation and fraternity.

Each must be brought to feel that he needs the other and that they are partners in a common enterprise.

In this day and age we have come to the realization that whosoever does a part of the world's work, and does it with honesty and efficiency, is a partner in this society of ours.

It is his right to reap the just and proportionate reward of his labors and to feel that equality of opportunity is his.

I hear it said at times that the era of opportunity has passed in America for the young man in poor circumstances. I deny that there is any real truth in such a statement. Every schoolboy in all this land is acquainted with the inspiring story of him whose natal day we celebrate upon this occasion today.

The patriotic literature of our schools tells of the way in which he rose, from the lowest depths of poverty and obscurity, through his innate honesty, perseverance and common sense, to the highest place in the history of his country.

In the annals of American history as it has been written thus far, although it is given to no man to foresee the years of the future, at the very top of the page of the greatest men of America stands that great son of our own soil, Abraham Lincoln. (Applause.)

About the close of the Civil War there came to this country a poor German boy. He arrived at the port of New York without money and without the knowledge of a single English word. He possessed no friends, no social prestige, and had no advantages at his command, except his keen mind, strong heart, and resolute determination to win success.

Within a brief time he had not only built for himself an abiding place in the political influence of our nation, but had accumulated a fortune and made himself a power in the field of American politics.

My friends, I am proud to take off my hat to a man who can do what Joe Pulitzer did. (Applause.) But more than all else do I take off my hat to the flag beneath which it can be done.

Emerson has said that "America is another word for opportunity." It is the task of this generation to see that the American doctrine of equality of opportunity is preserved, and not permitted to wane.

Whatsoever in legislation tends to this end, is good. Whatsoever prevents it, is bad.

We have the duty devolving upon us today of the selection of a Senator of the United States. A Federal Senator in the United States Senate is a member of the most powerful law-making body on earth.

Not even the Roman Senators, during the most flourishing days of that great republic of the past, had the power that is vested in the Senate of the United States.

In the construction of our Federal Constitution, much thought was devoted to the manner of electing senators. Three distinct plans were proposed. The first plan proposed was an election by the National House of Representatives. The second plan was a system of direct election by the people. The third plan was the election by the Legislature of each state.

After a time the third plan was the one agreed upon.

This plan was adopted upon the theory that the senators so elected would represent the states in their corporate capacities.

At that time the rapid material growth of the country was not foreseen, nor was this rapid drift toward the freer democracy foretold.

For a time the plan worked well, but by and by it was seen that the senators were not responsive enough to the popular will. In too many cases they represented organized greed instead of the people's welfare, and so the movement of the direct election of senators arose.

It will not be long, I think, until the people shall be electing by direct suffrage the senators of the United States. That time, however, has not yet come.

The closest approximation to it existing at this time is the system of senatorial primary now in operation in the State of Illinois. Pursuant to the provisions of the law regarding this primary, the various political parties in Illinois, last April, proceeded to take an advisory vote on candidates for United States Senator.

The party to which I belong, by a large vote, chose a candidate for the regular full length term in the Senate which we are now about to fill. I have the honor to present to you the name of this candidate today.

It is indeed, in my estimation, an honor to present this man because of the high order of his statesmanship, his broad experience in human affairs, his extraordinary gift of eloquence, and his unquestionable worth and fitness.

However, I present him, more than all these qualifications, in behalf especially of the rank and file of the democracy of this State, because of the fact that he is the party nominee and so chosen by all of the party in a direct primary. He is entitled to election as senator.

President Wilson is entitled to have him in the Senate at Washington and the people of Illinois are entitled to the service of his great gifts and his honest life.

Eulogy of mine can add nothing to the character and reputation of our candidate. He is known favorably not only throughout Illinois but throughout all the length and breadth of the nation.

He will be a credit to the Democratic party, to the State of Illinois, to President Wilson, and to the people of the United States.

It is with peculiar and special pleasure that I present to you for the long term in the Senate the name of James Hamilton Lewis, the people's choice for United States Senator. (Applause.)

In the year 1805 when the great Napoleon was planning an invasion of England, and had joined together the navies of France and Spain for the purpose of accomplishing that invasion, all eyes in the British nation were turned to Nelson, the great English naval commander.

On a day in October, Nelson encountered at Trafalgar the combined force of the French and Spanish fleets. That battle was to determine the integrity of the British Empire. The fate of Napoleon and the future of the map of Europe turned upon the issue of that conflict.

As the battle begun, Nelson signalled from his flagship, "England expects every man to do his duty." When the British sailors saw the signal, and realized the force of the simple words, they burst into cheers. The enthusiasm with which they were filled swept them on to victory. Napoleon was driven back and England was saved.

I say more particularly to the Democrats in this joint assembly, and through you to the democracy of Illinois, that we are facing a Trafalgar. The prosperity of our party—yea, its very life breath—depends largely upon the outcome of this senatorial election. As the battle is joined, I hold out for you the signal of Nelson, that the democracy of Illinois "expects every man to do his duty." (Applause.)

Mr. Ryan, of the House of Representatives, seconded the nomination of James Hamilton Lewis, and in doing so made the following remarks:

MR. SPEAKER AND GENTLEMEN OF THE JOINT ASSEMBLY—It gives me pleasure upon this auspicious occasion to say a few words in seconding the nomination of a man for the long term as United States Senator from this State, who is known well and favorably to every man present here today.

Were I blessed with the eloquence of Senator Piercy, I might be able to second, ably and well, from a standpoint of brilliance of oratory, the nomination of a man who is himself the prince of orators. However, realizing my limitations, I will endeavor to do the best that is possible for me, as a plain speaker and a sincere Democrat.

This is the anniversary of a day that will be forever memorable in American history, and dwells in the heart of every true American citizen. On this day, the birth anniversary of America's most noble statesman, greatest soldier and most distinguished man, the martyred president, Abraham Lincoln, it arouses within me a depth of feeling, however limited in expression, at this hour and in this place, to second the nomination of a man for the high office of United States Senator who is held in such high esteem, not only in the State of Illinois, but throughout the entire length and breadth of this great land, and not only in our own land, gentlemen, but in all the countries of the world.

Born in the state of Virginia, the birthplace of that great progressive Democrat who is about to become the president of this great nation, the Honorable Woodrow Wilson, the man I wish to second in nomination personifies the chivalry, the courage, and the wit of the old south.

He was educated in Georgia, and at one time was chosen as a congressman at large from the state of Washington. From thence he removed to the great State of Illinois, where he has practiced law with great success for nearly twenty years.

I know of no man better qualified geographically for the position of United States Senator than the Honorable James Hamilton Lewis.

The democracy of Illinois is proud of Colonel Lewis. Those of us, especially, who come from the county of Cook, owe much to his untiring efforts in behalf of the best interests of democracy.

He has advocated by his matchless eloquence in every campaign, from every platform, in every hall in Chicago, the election to office of every Democratic candidate, for years and years.

In truth, many of us who are members of this General Assembly are in some measure indebted to his eloquence and to the long battles waged for Democratic success, by Colonel Lewis.

This gifted man was the corporation counsel of the city of Chicago under Mayor (now Governor) Dunne. He personally conducted many great law suits before the Supreme Courts of the State and nation, including the actions involved in the great street railway crisis of those days.

In 1908 he became a primary candidate for Governor of this State, and carried Cook County overwhelmingly over all candidates combined.

He conducted himself with gallantry as an officer in the Spanish-American war, serving on the staffs of General Brooke at Cuba, and of General Fred D. Grant, at Porto Rico.

Assigned by the late and much-to-be-lamented President McKinley to membership upon a commission appointed to settle the dispute between England and the United States over the Alaska and Canadian boundary disputes; and appointed commissioner to Russia on the matter of the Behring Sea and Seal Fishery question, with which you are all familiar. Colonel Lewis gained a world-wide reputation as a diplomat, and a name to be conjured with.

He is a cultured and a traveled gentleman, having lectured on governmental customs in France, England, China, and far-off Japan, at the invitation of the officials of those governments.

He is a true, Democratic Democrat, untiring in his efforts in behalf of the oppressed of all nations, liberty-loving, kind and generous to a fault. He is the personification of the best type of American gentleman.

Because he is what I believe to be a genuine Democrat, a really progressive Democrat, it is my honor and pleasure to second at this time the name of the brilliant lawyer, statesman, soldier, orator and scholar, James Hamilton Lewis. (Applause.)

Mr. King, of the House of Representatives, placed in nomination the name of Hon. Lawrence Y. Sherman, and in doing so, made the following remarks:

MR. SPEAKER AND MEMBERS OF THE JOINT GENERAL ASSEMBLY—It is now the 12th day of February in the year of our Lord, nineteen hundred and thirteen. The sun has barely passed the Meridian. The tensy of the moment presses upon us with the import of a time memorable in the historic annals of subsequent days.

A crisis is impending. Let us not be deceived. Its patriotic recognition means for us the plaudits of posterity, while supine disregard of its presence shall not escape their condemnation. To see it not, is politics. Its acknowledgment is statesmanship. The glory of the politician is personal, while the glory of the statesman impersonal.

It is for us, whom the fates have decreed members of the Forty-eighth General Assembly of Illinois, here and now, at this momentous hour, to rise above the sordid field of characterless politics and meet the arduous duty assigned us with a conscientious determination to perform it in behalf of justice, humanity and our common country.

It is about to become our high honor and responsibility to select a man to represent the State of Illinois for a term of six years in the United States Senate—that greatest of the world's deliberative bodies wherein the Haynes and Websters, in might struggles of the mind have solved the nation's problems—within whose chambers arose the clear and pleading note of the great compromisor and the clarion voice of the fiery Calhoun, and wherein the mighty Senator Hoar and the heavy Edmunds held sway, and down whose aisles the “proud and imperious” Conklin trod, and where, using a familiar quotation, the dead, yet living, James G. Blaine, “like an armed warrior, like a plumed knight marched down the halls of the American Congress and through his shining lance full and fair against the brazen faces of the defamers of his country and the maligners of her honor.”

The importance of reaching a correct selection cannot be over-estimated. Within the term of him who is elected to this high office will transpire a most important part of our country's history. Great and terrific questions will strain and rock the framework of the nation. Confusion of desires and ideas will arise, which, if not met with calmness, firmness and intelligence, will transform orderly government into a babel of tumultuous, conglomerate misunderstanding and riot.

Then, Mr. Speaker, what sort of a man must be chosen by us to enter such an arena? First of all, he must be honest. Like Caesar's wife, his integrity must be above suspicion. He should be a man of experience in matter of state and endowed with the diplomacy of a Franklin, the determination of a Jackson, the judgment of a Marshall, the bravery of an Anthony Wayne, all tempered with a moderation indicative of a mind so broad as to take within its consideration the multitudinous variations and conditions of our national life.

He should be a lover of his country and devoted to her institutions, and above all, he must have sprung from the common people. He must be one of them in good standing.

Let the time never come, Mr. Speaker, when the common people shall fail to be the real rulers of the land. It has been made by them and it should endure to and for them. It was the common people who fought at Bunker Hill. It was the common people who captured Ticonderoga, “in the name of the Great Jehovah and the Continental Congress.” It was the common people who took Burgoyne's army at Saratoga, humbled the proud Cornwallis at Yorktown, and gave to us the grandest and most complete compact of the age—the constitution.

It was the common people who fought with Commodore Perry on Lake Erie, with Jackson at New Orleans and with Taylor in Mexico.

It was the common people who engaged in and put down the greatest war of modern times and who chose as their leader in that momentous struggle the most common of the common people, a common man from the common prairies of Illinois, Abraham Lincoln. (Applause.)

Such a man then, Mr. Speaker, the Republican party represented here believes that it has found.

On a cold bleak day in November in the year 1858, if you had then been traveling across the dreary plains of Miami County, Ohio, you might have noticed a little curl of smoke arising from the chimney of a lowly log cabin. Had you pushed in the frail door you would, no doubt, have received the information that a child had just been born, a boy. No further knowledge would you have received. You would not have then learned that in eleven months the parents of that child would, with him, in dire poverty, trek their way westward across Ohio and Indiana and take up their abode in Illinois, with whose history and progress, that child was to share a prominent part. Yet such was to be the case. The parents failed to gather more than the bare means of subsistence. The child reached boyhood and passed from boyhood to youth through the various stages of privation and managed, during the time he was not plowing the clay hills of Effingham County, by means of the friendly efforts of a one-eyed mule, to secure the rudiments of a common school education.

McKendree College saw him a student there from 1879 to 1882. It is related of him that he and two or three other students read law at night and so were enabled to complete their course in less than the regular time. For this reason a number of students objected to the faculty and insisted that no law diplomas should be issued except to those who had put in the full allotted time.

The faculty so ruled and the young law student, together with his fellows, slipped away one day and took an examination before the Supreme Court, were admitted to the bar and appeared before the faculty and the astonished and annoyed students as full fledged lawyers to whom the further assistance of the college was unnecessary.

Childhood, boyhood and youth having so passed, young manhood found him assiduously practicing law with marked success and honor at Macomb for twenty-three years. He served as city attorney of that city and as a member of the board of education. In 1886 he was elected to the county judgeship of McDonough County and in 1896 began his service to the State by ably representing the 32d district for four consecutive terms during which time most of the remedial and constructive legislation enacted was due to his untiring efforts. His history from that time is well known to every citizen of this State. Twice he was elected to the Speakership of this House, and the firmness, justice and impartiality with which he wielded the gavel now in your hands, Mr. Speaker, is a matter which illumines one of the brightest pages of Illinois history and is only equalled by his record as the Lieutenant Governor of this State and the presiding officer of the State Senate from 1905 to 1909.

Since then, it is needless to say that if there is any credit due for the good condition of our charitable institutions it results in a great part from the tireless and intelligent efforts put forth by him in their behalf.

This then, in brief, is the record of the man we propose for this exalted position. Surely he has done the State some service.

A self-sacrificing spirit, Mr. Speaker, is the true and ever present note which never fails to characterize the nature of the truly great. I have presented to you a magnificent record of achievement, yet it has all been accomplished without rancor, without hate and without dragging to the ground the worthy ambitions of others. Upon more than one occasion has he withdrawn from the pursuit of deserved honors in order that some one, perhaps less worthy, and within whose breast burned the fire of accomplishment, might reach the glorious goal.

But now his star ascends. All others are invisible. The man of the hour has come. Ah, would that I had the brush of a Raphael or the chisel of Michael Angelo that I might trace upon the canvass or carve upon the pedestal the master lines of character, then I might bring to you with an instrumentality far superior to language the inherent merits of him whom the irresistible logic of events is sweeping on to the fulfillment of his ambition, then I might truly obey his mandate in the words of Othello, "Speak of me as I am and nothing extenuate."

Bring forth the crucible of statesmanship and let us test his fitness. Is he honest, you ask, and I refer you to Whittier's lines who must have had him in mind when he wrote:

"Formed on the good old plan,
A true and brave and downright honest man,
He blew no trumpet in the market place,
Nor in the church, with hypocritic face;
Supplied with cant the lack of Christian grace,
Loathing pretense, he did with cheerful will,
While others talked of, while their hands were still."

Has he experience, and the pages of Illinois history cry out that it is sufficient.

Has he determination, and adversity answered, he has fought the fight with me and without money, without splendor and by the majesty of his own intellect, has won.

Has he judgment, and judicial records, affirmatively reply, and his love for truth, his love of man, the red blood in his arteries, his love of children, his great sorrows, his simple life, his horror or sham and his love of justice and his country, all crown him with the laurel of a brave man, whose moderation and solicitude for the weak, harmonize in a considerable degree with him who once said, "With malice toward none and charity for all," and with whose kindly face there is a slight touch of similarity, lit up, perchance, by the same angel who guards in the humble cabins where great men are born.

One hundred and four years ago today, the infant Lincoln opened his eyes to the light of a nation into whose future history he was to become a mighty figure and when the crisis came, the man had already been born and trained for its exigencies and its horrors.

Today another crisis approaches and again a man steps forth, born and trained for its exigencies and if need be booted and spurred to "ride the whirl wind and direct the storm," and so, Mr. Speaker, we offer this man upon his merits as he is, with the firm conviction of his success and in the belief that all of us of whatever political faith may support with equal ardor for the good of the State and nation, and I therefore place in nomination for the exalted office of United States Senator from Illinois, one whose candidacy was endorsed by an enormous electorate who are today demanding from every fireside throughout this broad commonwealth that he be commissioned to so represent them—a man whose term in the Senate will mark an epoch in history, Lawrence Yates Sherman, "one of the few, the immortal names, that were not born to die." (Applause.)

Mr. Munro, of the House of Representatives, placed in nomination the name of Hon. Frank H. Funk, and in doing so made the following remarks:

MR. SPEAKER, MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE AND SENATE—I am reminded today of a small, perhaps unimportant, scene in American history. After a great battle of the Civil War, when the soldiers came straggling into camp, there came, about the last of all, one soldier who bore all indications of having received the brunt of the battle. As the general, seeing him approach, noticed his shattered arm, and his perforation by the bullet of the enemy, he said, "Corporal, how goes it?" The soldier replied, "General, I am going to fight this fight through, but when this war is over, I will never love another country." (Laughter.)

We are here, however, not as fighters. We recognize the firing lines, at times, of party and of partisanship, but upon occasions like this we recognize that we are all citizens of a great commonwealth, and we are all fighting for the welfare of the State of Illinois. (Applause.)

My friends, I am no historian, but I believe what the historians of our time claim, that this country of ours is yet but an experiment in democracy, a Democratic country, forsooth, operating as we do through the party system, because when great issues are presented in a democracy, there must be organization, there must be a conveyance by which the common feeling can be expressed and carried out.

In the consummation of that doctrine there have, from time to time, in this country, arisen great political parties.

It is said that "history repeats itself." Going back a few years before the Civil War, there were in this country two great parties, the Whig party and the Democratic party.

There came before the people of this country a great moral issue, an issue which went to the heart of every man, and the question before the country for the Whig party and for the Democratic party was whether or not those parties would accept the great issue of this country; and because no party would accept the great issue face to face, a few whose names are immortal in American history met in this city of Springfield. On the wall you will see the names of Gideon, of Parson Lovejoy, of Fred Douglass, of Trumbull and of Abraham Lincoln. In October of 1854 they met and passed a resolution, to which I wish your kind attention:

"Resolved, That we believe this truth to be self-evident; that when parties become subservient to the ends for which they are established, or incapable of restoring the government to the true principles of the Constitution, it is the right and the duty of the people to dissolve the political bonds by which they are connected therewith, and to organize new parties upon such principles and with such views as the circumstances and the exigencies of the nation may demand."

Upon such a noble document was the Republican party founded in 1854. As time has gone on, we have found the parties of this country have been divided to some extent by the proposition of adherence to principle, on the one side, and to party organization, on the other; but I think I am well within the boundary lines of truth when I say that the dominant idea has been that the men of the party are bound to the party, to party service, a servile serfdom to the party organization primarily, and not to principle primarily.

A party, if you please, that seeks to hold the men of this country to its grip, regardless of which way the party may be going, and leaves not its men for the exercise of individual conscience is fundamentally wrong.

There is today a great principle going through this country. It is not an old principle. It was in evidence at the French revolution when the political party, a political coterie if you please, surrounding the King of France, sought to monopolize every industry, and sought to leave the people to pay all of the taxes for the benefit of the few.

It was then that the great Mirabeau demanded and stated on the floor of the States General that privilege must have an end but that the people are eternal.

That doctrine, if you please, has today come again into existence, and we find the conditions of this age similar to the conditions preceding the Civil War.

The Progressive party, to which I have the honor to belong, stands for a greater thing than mere politics. It exceeds an economic creed or a civic revolution. It is and has become an epoch in American history.

It is our privilege, as a party organization, having received a large number of votes throughout the State and nation, to present to the joint assembly the name of a man who expresses the principles for which we stand, fundamentally a Progressive, a son of the soil of Illinois, a man whose record, although short in political life, is not unknown.

The people of the State of Illinois may justly be proud of the candidate whom I wish to suggest; and, therefore, on behalf of the Progressive party, I have the pleasure and honor of nominating the Hon. Frank H. Funk, of Bloomington, Ill. (Applause.)

Mr. Ettelson, of the Senate, seconded the nomination of Hon. Lawrence Y. Sherman, and in doing so made the following remarks:

MR. PRESIDENT AND MEMBERS OF THE JOINT ASSEMBLY OF THE FORTY-EIGHTH GENERAL ASSEMBLY—We are assembled here to perform a solemn duty which the Constitution of the United States devolves upon us. We are met to choose a representative for the sovereign State of Illinois who shall sit in the greatest deliberative body in the world, the United States Senate, and shall speak and vote there in behalf of the people of our great State. The task is one which calls for the highest patriotism, the most unselfish and public-spirited action. We shall earn the respect and praise of our fellow citizens or their displeasure and blame according as we perform our task well or ill.

What the attitude of our fellow citizens will be as to our choice, we have no means of ascertaining until after the choice is made. Let us comply with the wishes and instructions as far as we may of the people of this State.

We are in a time of great social and political unrest which calls for changes in many branches of government. The immense industrial and commercial growth of the country has forced new conditions of life upon society, which in turn call for new adjustments of the law to fit these new conditions of life. The pressure of conditions and the demand for change is so great that men of small calibre and little ballast are carried away with the idea of change, and fail to discriminate in their speech and plans between that which must be changed and that which must not be changed. There is needed, now more than ever, a strong hand to guide the fiery steed of public opinion along the true road of progress. Men are needed to enact into law the will of the people, to give these enactments clear expression, to keep out of them incompatible clauses. Men are needed who have the ability to foresee the effect of a given enactment and to weave the necessary changes into the complicated fabric of the State.

It becomes my privilege to place in nomination the candidate of the Republican party for the office of United States Senator from Illinois for the six-year term. I say privilege advisedly. The office is one of the greatest within the gift of the people or of those who are chosen to represent the people and to act and to vote for them. Moreover, it is a privilege to nominate a man for this office who has the united support of the members of the Legislature who believe in Republican doctrines and who are true to Republican faith.

The Republican party has a great and an honorable history. Its record is written in deeds whose influence is as imperishable as is this government of ours. Its history is illuminated by the names of the greatest minds whose luster has shown upon every page of the annals of our government since 1860. Its present is exemplified by the fidelity to its principles of men who are most conspicuous in commercial and in civic life. Its promises are written into platforms that reflect conditions of today and betoken the determination of the men who drafted these platforms to solve in a beneficent and sane and salutary way the problems that are pressing for solution. It is peculiarly fitting that there should be a Republican representing this State in the high and honorable body of the United States Senate. It might almost be said that here the Republican party was given birth. In the convention in the city of Chicago the greatest man that has illustrated American life for over half a century was placed in nomination as the Republican candidate for President of the United States. He left here to become the chief executive and the savior of his country. Though he was not born here, he lived practically all his life in our State; he was truly a son of Illinois.

The convention that framed the Federal Constitution was held in 1787. A sharp debate ensued as to how United States Senators should be selected. There were statesmen in that distinguished gathering who advocated the selection of United States Senators by a direct vote of the people; others advanced the idea, and successfully, that this was too direct a method, and that it was preferable that the Senators should be chosen by the members of the Legislature who bore credentials from the people. The founders of our government were both wise and patriotic. But there can be no denial that they were not ready to trust the people completely with the reins of government. Some of them were aristocratic and believed that the multitude was inclined to be turbulent and should be kept under a certain degree of control. We find here and there in our governmental institutions restraints placed upon the right of the people to exercise a free and untrammelled will in the shaping of governmental policies and in the election of political representatives. A hundred years have wrought a great change in the condition of our people. Intelligence and political knowledge have spread apace. It is indisputable that public sentiment is now demanding the rule of the people. The people are insisting that they have a direct voice and vote both in the nomination and in the election of their public officials. The irresistible trend of public thought in America today is toward complete control by the people of their governmental institutions and governmental representatives.

In this State we have witnessed the enactment by the Legislature of laws which provide for the direct nomination of candidates for political office. Legislative and Senatorial deadlocks are an unanswerable argument for direct election of United States Senators. The day is not far distant when we shall be electing a candidate for the United States Senate by a direct vote of the people. We Republicans of Illinois believe that such procedure would be wise and beneficial. The candidate whom I desire to present to you is one who believes in the direct election of United States Senators. At the urgent solicitation of friends without number, he became a candidate for United States Senator. He submitted under the laws of this State, his candidacy to a popular vote. At the inception of his campaign he announced in clear and convincing tones that unless he received the highest vote at the primary he would not be a candidate before this Legislature for the office he sought. He announced, moreover, that if one of his opponents received the highest vote, he would cheerfully support his successful opponent for this office. At the primary, which everyone has conceded to be fair and just, he defeated his opponents by an overwhelming vote. If a Republican is to be elected by this Legislature, and we are confident that a Republican will be elected, then, in the opinion of every fair-minded man, the candidate of my naming is entitled to the place. If a Republican candidate is to be chosen, then let us by all means elect a progressive Republican.

The man whom I shall name is truly a progressive Republican, progressive in thought, progressive in speech, progressive in every act of public conduct. You members of the Legislature who now belong to the so-called Progressive party doubtless voted last April at the Republican primaries. You doubtless voted for some one of the candidates of the Republican party for the office of United States Senator. The great majority of the people you represent voted at that primary for one of the Republican candidates. Can you fairly violate the people's instructions? Are not some of you explicitly pledged to vote for our candidate, and are not all of you impliedly bound by the result of that primary election? Are you not in honor beholden to obey the will of the majority registered at that primary? Are you not obligated to vote here for the man who was successful in the primary in which you participated? If the cardinal principle that the people shall rule means anything, then we answer, the people voted, they voiced their sentiments, they have ruled, and their mandate should be obeyed. The will of the people cannot be defied with impunity. Let us not do aught here that will cast the slightest suspicion or discredit on the fair name of Illinois. Let us put aside party differences, and factional bickerings in an effort to send to the United States Senate a man who will be in accord with the wishes and sentiments of the people, a man who through a popular vote bears credentials fresh from the people. Let us in conscience and honor observe the mandate registered by the people at the polls.

Not only is the gentleman whom I have the honor to present to you entitled to this place because he secured the popular vote; he is entitled to it for many other reasons. He has lived substantially all his life in the State of Illinois. He was brought here when eleven months old. As a boy he worked on a farm. He attended the great common schools of this State. He studied at McKendree College and taught school in St. Clair County. While attending college and reading law, like many another practitioner at the Illinois bar, he was not blessed with riches or influence, but was compelled to eke out a livelihood through teaching school in order that he might gain entrance to his chosen profession. He drove a dray and handled freight on the railroad so that he could pay for a law office. He was successively honored with the position of city attorney at Macomb and judge of McDonough County. In 1896 he was elected a member of this House, and later reelected; in 1899 he was honored by his associates with the place of presiding officer in the House of Representatives. The esteem in which he was held by his colleagues was evidenced by his re-election to the office of Speaker in 1901. In 1904 he was elected Lieutenant-Governor of this State, thereby becoming President of the Senate and served in that capacity until January, 1909. He declined to become again a candidate for that office.

I was elected a member of the State Senate in 1906, when the gentleman whom I shall nominate presided over that body. What I say concerning him I know from my own personal knowledge and experience, I know from close intimacy with him. He was a fair, patient, firm and distinguished presiding officer. He was known as a man who had no peer in his complete knowledge of parliamentary law. Moreover, he was recognized as one of the greatest students and best lawyers of the bar of Illinois. Many a time it was my privilege sitting in the State Senate to listen intently to his words of counsel spoken from the rostrum of the Senate, and to his happy phrases, teeming with scholarly eloquence.

In 1909 the Board of Administration was created, combining the management of seventeen public charities in this State. He was appointed president of the board. The responsibility of the position is indicated by the fact that the charities have 18,000 inmates, 2,500 employees and expend five million dollars a year. Through him the work of the board has been thoroughly organized to a point where the highest standards of efficiency are maintained. The place is so tremendously important that it requires for its proper management the most tactful judgment and the highest order of administrative ability. Not one word of criticism or scandal has been uttered against his regime. For twelve years he occupied a conspicuous and influential place in the Legislature of this State—eight years a member of the House for four years as President of the Senate. This experience, this ability, this knowledge of legislation and of the law makes him especially fitted to occupy a place of dignity and of influence in the United States Senate.

Time was when the lawyer was viewed with disfavor and disrespect. We find in history and ancient verse abundant proof that the lawyer was an object of contempt and the profession despised. But happily and justly the public attitude toward the profession of the law has undergone a change. Today the profession is a reputable and an honorable one. The lawyer has achieved a place of influence in the community. He has entered politics and has acquired prominence and power. He helps to make laws and to inculcate in the minds of the people reverence for authority and respect for law. In the shaping of public policy he shows a master hand. The lawyer who is worthy of the name desires not controversy, but amity. He aims not at warfare, but at peace. We have witnessed in our day the establishment of the international peace tribunal at the Hague. An American citizen has been philanthropic enough to bestow upon the government of Holland a sum so rich that there will soon be established therein an international temple of peace. Doubtless the greatest lawyers and the greatest jurists of our time will be called there to settle in an amicable manner controversies arising between the nations. Amity will supplant armies; books will supersede bloodshed. Jurists will mete out justice and princes pray for peace. This is the lawyer of today and of tomorrow.

A great lawyer sees with unerring accuracy the principles of justice. He enunciates them clearly and convincingly. He knows that exact justice must be the basis of enduring law. Justice is the thought that animates him by noon and by night. Justice the inspiration that gives him might and majesty and matchless eloquence. Such a lawyer is the man of our choice; one who is learned in his profession, but is tolerant of the views of others; who believes in justice and the equality of all men before the law; one who is a devotee to the doctrine of universal peace.

He stands as a Republican; he is steadfastly adhering to Republican principles. He aspires to this office as the candidate of the Republican party. On account of the results of the recent election held last November, no one political party has sufficient votes in this Joint Session to elect a member of the United States Senate. I am sure that our candidate will not reject, but will cheerfully accept the vote of any man of any other party who believes that our candidate is fitted for the position and will reflect credit upon all the people of this State, irrespective of party affiliation, if he attains the office of United States Senator.

Plain, approachable, successful parliamentarian, able lawyer, incisive logician, scholar, orator, he rises in the fullest extent to the ample measure and might of a United States Senator.

Two years ago this very day I had the pleasure of attending a banquet in this city on the anniversary of Lincoln's birth. It was a magnificent banquet. There were seated at those festal tables a thousand men, assembled from all the walks and all the stations of life. On the Speaker's platform sat the President of the United States. The banquet was in honor of the greatest and most patriotic son that ever lived in the State of Illinois. These men were gathered together to keep fresh in the heart of every man, woman and child the memory of that sainted career. How our hearts beat with pride at the splendid reference made by the orators of that occasion to the great public record made by the son of Illinois, Abraham Lincoln. How the blood coursed more quickly through our veins as mention was made of Lincoln's glorious life. And when the melodious strains of "Illinois" were sung, when that martial band inspired the heart of everyone present with music that attested the greatness and the glory of this State of Illinois, we proudly felt as we had never felt before what an honor and privilege it was to be a citizen of this great State.

It is fitting that on this, the anniversary of Lincoln's birth, we should place in nomination and elect to the United States Senate as the Senator from Illinois, a man of the Lincoln type, a statesman sprung from the soil, a patriot loved of the plain people. Within the shadow of Lincoln's tomb where lie the mortal remains of that immortal soul—in this very house where Lincoln served as a member of the Illinois General Assembly—at this very hour when songs are sung and clarions sounded in honor of Lincoln's memory and name, it is peculiarly appropriate that we send to the United States Senate a man who will be worthy to succeed the distinguished Republicans who have gone before him.

Gentlemen, I take pleasure in nominating for the office of United States Senator from Illinois for the six year term, a Republican and likewise a patriot, a public spirited citizen, worthy of Republican suffrages and support, worthy of the support of every high-minded member of the General Assembly who desires to see here an honest election, a fair deal that will carry out the mandate of the people voiced at the polls. I place in nomination the Honorable Lawrence Y. Sherman.

Mr. Jones, of the Senate, seconded the nomination of Hon. Frank H. Funk, and in doing so made the following remarks:

The Progressive party, as you all know, is somewhat of an infant, only about six months old, and we feel somewhat diffident in the presence of the venerable Democratic party, whose life stretches back over a century, and somewhat diffident in the presence of the Republican party, whose life stretches back over half a century.

Jefferson, the founder of the Democratic party, believed in the people's rule and the Democratic party was founded to impersonate that idea, and in all the honorable history of the Democratic party, we, as Progressives, glory with you in your glory.

The Republican party traces its inception back to Abraham Lincoln, and in all the glories of the Republican party, we glory with you as Progressives.

In Biblical lore, we are told that Adam was put into a great slumber, and while he slept a rib was taken from his body, and woman was created.

I heard a minister one time say that the Lord labored for six days to create Heaven and earth, and then the Lord rested. Then the Lord created man and rested again. Then the Lord created woman, and neither the Lord nor man has had any rest since that time. (Laughter.)

And so, about six months ago, the political surgeons of the Republican party put into a deep slumber that great giant, and while the giant slept a rib was taken from his body to form the Progressive party; and neither the Republican party nor the Democratic party has had any rest since. (Laughter.)

Now, after you have balloted here, if the Democrats finally make up your minds that they would be satisfied with one United States Senator, we will be glad to clasp hands with you, and let you vote for a good Progressive for United States Senator, because the Democrats have been claiming relationship with the Progressive party ever since that party was formed.

And if you Republicans, after you have balloted for a while, believe that you want, as a second Senator, a man who will be in close relationship with the Republican party, we invite you to step across and clasp hands with us, and help elect a good Progressive to the United States Senate.

The Republican party was born to fight for the liberties of the people, under the leadership of Lincoln, just as the Democratic party was formed to fight for the liberties of the people under the leadership of Jefferson; and so the Progressive party has been formed to fight for social justice, and to fight for the right of the people to rule their government; and that fight has been led by another man whose name is destined to live in the history of this nation—"Theodore Roosevelt." (Applause.)

Roosevelt is too close to us today to be recognized in his full stature.

During the days of Abraham Lincoln, there were those who said harsh things about him; and if you will read the newspapers of more than a century ago, you will find that very harsh things were said against your patron saint, Thomas Jefferson.

It seems that it is only when a veil of tears has been thrown in front of any great man, that the people of later generations are able to see the genius and the bigness of the man, and we believe that the founder of the Progressive party will be viewed in this light, in the years that are to come. (Applause.)

On one side of this hall we find the portrait of the great Republican, (Lincoln); and on the other side the portrait of a great Democrat, (Douglas); and we are told that these men came from this community, near to the center of the great State of Illinois. They courted the same sweethearts. They fought in the same political campaigns.

One was a staunch and determined Republican. The other was just as staunch and valorous as a Democrat; but when the shot was fired on Fort Sumpter the Little Giant sent word to the Big Giant that, although he had been a Democrat, he was an American, and that he would stand back of the Republican President of the United States. (Applause.)

When, on the 4th of March, Abraham Lincoln arose to deliver his great inaugural address, it was Stephen A. Douglas who stood just behind, with Lincoln's hat in his hand, in order that the people of all the nation might know that Republicans and Democrats, alike, were united. (Applause.)

There was a companion and comrade of Lincoln and Douglas, in those days of strife and turmoil, a farmer who lived but a few miles from here, Isaac Funk.

He was a member of this Legislature, as had been Lincoln and Douglas, and when those years of strife were on, he stood in this body striving for the rights of the American people, and you heard read yesterday on this floor his eloquent words, when he threw defiance in the teeth of the enemies of the country, and said that although a farmer, and sixty-five years of age, he was willing to meet any of them, with anything as a weapon, from a pen point to the mouth of the cannon.

Upon the knees of that old farmer, a child listened to the stories of Abraham Lincoln, and to the stories of Stephen A. Douglas, and all the stories relating to those stirring times when this nation was fighting for its very existence.

That child, now grown to manhood, is the candidate of the Progressive party for the United States Senatorship.

You tell me that Mr. Sherman received the approval of one hundred and seventy odd thousand votes of the Republican party; and you Democrats tell us that Colonel Lewis received the approval of two hundred and twenty odd thousand votes of the Democratic party; but Frank H. Funk, as the candidate for Governor of the Progressive party, received the approval of more than three hundred thousand of the voters of the Progressive party (applause), so that if you should decide to cast your votes for a Progressive, you need have no hesitancy for fear you may be voting for a man who has not received the approval of the rank and file of the Progressive party.

And so it is my pleasure to second the nomination of Senator Frank H. Funk for the United States Senatorship of the great State of Illinois. (Applause.)

Mr. Gillespie, of the House of Representatives, nominated Hon. Charles Boeschenstein, for the short term, or known as the remaining portion of the vacated six year term from the 4th of March, A. D. 1909, and in doing so made the following remarks:

MR. SPEAKER AND GENTLEMEN OF THE HOUSE—This is the first time I have had the honor to speak to the Legislature of Illinois. It is a high honor to be a member of this body, and it is like a coat of many colors. Here are seated Democrats whose traditions go back for more than a century and bring to mind the principles of Jefferson. Here are seated men and true, members of the party of Lincoln, the greatest man who ever spoke in political and economic life, the man who said, "The eternal struggle between right and wrong will continue in this country long after my tongue and that of Judge Douglas shall have passed to dreamless dust."

Here sit the party of progress, whose leader, as the gentleman said, we are too near today to appreciate his stature, his mighty executive power and the real prowess of the man.

Here sit the Socialists, perhaps the advance agents of economic thought, who dream of a time when there shall come an economic life where all men shall be equal before the law, shall have an equal start and equal opportunity in life.

So, I say, it is an honor to address the gentlemen of the House and Senate, and while I have been here four weeks or more and have not been able to agree altogether with all of the gentlemen upon every question, I can say now that I like every member of this House, from the Socialists to the Democrats, and accord every man his right to think upon every question the same as I shall claim the right myself.

I rise to place in nomination a name of a gentleman for the short term of Senator, as we call it here, the vacant term.

I arise to present the name of a gentleman than whom there is no better Democrat in the State of Illinois, a gentleman who has worked in the ranks, and who has never drawn a salary from an office that he has held.

He comes from Germanic stock, that rugged stock of people that has taught to the Christian world the philosophy of civil government and political and economic and religious liberty and life.

It was the Germanic vote that threw the balance in favor of Lincoln and gave to him Illinois at the time when the nation needed Lincoln, and gave to him Wisconsin and Pennsylvania, and placed that giant statesman in the place that he alone seemed to be able to fill in the hour when the time demanded the man, giving to all other nationalities their recognition, for I am perhaps more of Irish extraction than of this nationality, according to all you will find in the ranks of the rebellion were enlisted few of this the Germanic race.

I happen to come from south of the Mason and Dixon Line, having lived here only twenty years of my short life, and it occurred to me while the gentleman was speaking that I was born in an environment where we did not know enough about Mr. Lincoln even to criticise him.

He heard that a man by the name of Lincoln was President during the war. We read the histories in the schools written upon the other side, but it was not until I came to this great State of Illinois and became a part of this environment that I appreciated that Springfield, Illinois, is a classic spot in the United States, and that Mr. Lincoln is the character and the great Democrat of our time and of our history, and that I learned to love the character and worship the name of Lincoln. (Applause.)

Gentlemen, I would like in this brief talk, and I will promise soon to quit, to call your attention to the tradition of the beautiful Penelope who sat weeping at her loom waiting patiently for the return of her husband who had gone upon his doubtful wanderings. While the marauders, the politicians of the time, took possession of her home and property, and demanded the dower of her wealth and beauty, by way of temporizing Penelope made the proposition that he who would bend the bow of Ulysses would receive this dower of wealth. They tried in vain and once too often. Aged in appearance, but physically strong, the wandering Ulysses returned, and seizing hold of the bow he bent it and drove the arrow through the heart of the revellers. He set his house in order and restored his home and his country.

The people of the United States seemed to have been asleep, but there has come an economic wave, there has come an awakening of responsibility out of which the Progressive party has recently arisen. There has come a self consciousness, both for the working class and the rich, out of which the social philosophy has arisen.

There has come a moral wave over the United States, and people have declared what they have always felt, that there should be honesty and justice in politics, the same as is required in business. So, I say, gentlemen, that these are the times when, if you present a candidate, you must believe in the man.

The gentleman I am to name may be criticised because, forsooth, you may say that he is an inexperienced man, not having had the opportunity to show that he is a statesman.

I reply that he has had about as much opportunity as any other Democrat in Illinois, because for the last 30 years, with a few exceptions, the Democrats have been on the outside, and looking in. (Laughter.)

This gentleman has contributed, through his genius for organization, to Democratic victories for the nation and State, in so far as we have had them.

He is now 44 years of age. He has fought valiantly the battles of Democracy, and through his efforts, from the fragments and remnants of a defeated party he has aided in constructing an organization that has swept into power the progressive Democracy.

He is a man who has come up from the crowd—who understands the common man, and like President Wilson, he knows what it is to struggle, and the men who have struggled are the only men who know.

Four years ago, the organization that he succeeded in building, out of the defeated and disappointed members of a party long in the minority, came near to sweeping into power that splendid, venerable man, the Honorable Adlai E. Stevenson, a neighbor and fellow townsman of mine. Judge Stevenson came within a few votes of being elected Governor of this great State, though the Republican party counted its majority by hundreds of thousands.

That same organization, able to be kept intact, has recently placed in the executive chair of the State a man of more heart power, thought power, and economic health than any man, except Altgeld possibly, who has ever been Governor of Illinois.

This man, beginning many years ago, with a genius for politics and for organization, has always been at the wheel, has always been contributing his force and power, his energy and industry, to the success of Democratic candidacies and Democratic principles.

He understands the economic conditions. He understands that labor has not received the just proportion of its products, and he seeks for labor that to which it is entitled. He understands that in our economic situation there have grown up abuses. He understands that want, and the fear of want, is the cause of most of the crimes. He understands that underpaid men and women, whose work clothes and feeds the world, are the cause of most of the crime that is committed, and that environment goes largely to make up the man.

He is a man of heart power and brain power. He has lived shoulder to shoulder with his fellow men. He is the right kind of a man to represent you, because you are typical of the people you represent. It requires a man who has come up from the crowd, by the force of his innate abilities, to understand how to represent his people.

It gives me pleasure to present his name because he is in favor of Democratic qualities, because he is in favor of the rule by the people, because he permits no man to go before him in endorsing the Honorable James Hamilton Lewis, to whose success he has contributed. He is for that statesman, that eloquent orator, that nominee of Democracy first, and if he must sacrifice this ambition—the first he has ever had to serve the people in a public capacity—he is willing to do that.

We present him because he says—"If you cannot elect Colonel Lewis first, I do not want the office, because the people have spoken and the primary has been held, and is binding.

Gentlemen, I have the honor, without taking more of your time now, of presenting the name of that rugged Democrat, that industrious man, that faithful servant of Democracy, the Honorable Charles Boeschenstein, of Edwardsville. (Applause.)

SENATOR DAILEY—Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that our distinguished guests, the German Ambassador, and former United States Senator Bailey, of Texas, are expected momentarily to arrive, I move that further nominating and seconding speeches be limited to the mere naming of the candidates.

SENATOR GORMAN—Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House and Senate, I desire, on the part of the Senate, to second the nomination of the Democratic caucus nominee, Charles Boeschenstein.

SENATOR GLACKIN—Mr. Speaker, members of the House and Senate, I desire to place in nomination for United States Senator, for the short term, Samuel Alschuler, of Aurora, Illinois.

Mr. Shaw, of the Senate, placed in nomination the name of Hon. Benjamin F. Caldwell, for the short term, known as the remaining portion of the vacated six year term from the 4th of March, A. D. 1909.

Mr. Stedman, of the House of Representatives, placed in nomination the name of Hon. Barney Berlyn, for the long term, or what is known as the term for six years from the 4th day of March, A. D. 1913.

Mr. Madsen, of the House of Representatives, placed in nomination the name of Hon. Duncan McDonald, for the short term, or what is known as the remaining portion of the vacated six year term from the 4th day of March, A. D. 1909.

Mr. Madigan, of the Senate, placed in nomination the name of Hon. William Ritchie, for the long term, or what is known as the term for six years from the 4th day of March, A. D. 1913.

Mr. Shepherd, of the House of Representatives, placed in nomination the name of Hon. Albert J. Hopkins, for the short term, known as the remaining portion of the vacated six year term from the 4th of March, A. D. 1909.

D. 1913.

The Presiding Officer of the Joint Session then directed that the first joint ballot be taken for United States Senator for the short term.

FIRST JOINT BALLOT FOR SHORT TERM.

The Secretary of the Senate then called the roll of the Senate for the first joint ballot for the short term, with the following result:

And it appearing from the vote aforesaid that no candidate had received a majority of the votes of the members of the Forty-eighth General Assembly convened in Joint Session, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, as Presiding Officer, announced that there was no election of a representative from the State of Illinois as Senator in the congress of the United States, for the remaining portion of the vacated six year term, from the fourth day of March, A. D. 1909.

On motion of Mr. Shanahan, the Joint Session was merged into the Joint Session to be held today as provided for by resolutions adopted by the House and Senate providing for a meeting to be held at this hour for the purpose of hearing addresses from Count von Bernstorff, German Ambassador to the United States and the Honorable Joseph W. Bailey, late United States Senator from the state of Texas.

The Joint Committee on Arrangements announced that the guests of the Assembly, to wit: The German Ambassador, Count von Bernstorff, ex-Senator Joseph W. Bailey, the Supreme Court, the State officers, the officers of the Lincoln Centennial Association and their guests were at at door, whereupon they were admitted and seated.

Count von Bernstorff, German Ambassador to the United States was then introduced by the Speaker of the House and he then proceeded to address the Joint Assembly as follows:

I wish to thank you most sincerely for the privilege of appearing before you today. I very highly appreciate the great honor which the Senate and the House of Representatives of the State of Illinois have conferred on me by holding a joint session of the General Assembly. It is not only a great, but a very unusual honor for me to address you and I am very proud to have been asked and very happy to address you on the birthday of one of your two great national heroes to whom this city owes the honor of being the capitol of this great State. I am well aware that in extending your courteous invitation to me you were less prompted by the wish to recognize my small personal merits than by the desire to give expression to the esteem and friendship felt in this State and city for the sovereign and nation which I have the honor to represent. I can assure you, that your friendly feelings are most heartily reciprocated by His Majesty, the Emperor and all the German people. From the time of the birth of the people of the United States as a nation down to the present day there has been unbroken friendship between the United States and Germany. My mission to this country can be summed up in the one wish, that the friendship may always continue.

Such friendship seems especially natural in this great State to which as to the whole Middle West a large current of German immigrants flowed since 1830 when the possibilities of the northwest territory had been discovered during the Black Hawk war. Especially St. Clair County became one of the centers of German immigration to the State of Illinois. These immigrants as well as many others who in later years reached this hospitable country have been Americanized and proved to be very good citizens. They have, however, not forgotten their old home and now form a natural bond of an ever-increasing friendship between the United States and Germany. They remained imbued with German culture and ideals and brought these gifts as a valuable dowry to their new country, where a continual blending of races and nationalities is carried on with such success, and has led to the formation of a new great nation different from all others but kindred to those from which it sprang.

The essential qualities of national greatness are moral and not material. Likewise in the government of the world mere intellectual gifts are not all powerful. High character and reputation exercise a more potent influence over mankind and they make the really great man. The combination of unusual intellectual gifts with the highest moral qualities raised Abraham Lincoln to the pinnacle of estimation where he now stands before the tribunal of history, which judges men without prejudice and uninfluenced by the fleeting passions of the day. That is why we have come today to pay our tribute of devotion to and gather inspiration and guidance from the character of Abraham Lincoln, a shrine to which the statesmen of all countries and in all succeeding ages may safely come.

To him we can well apply Pope's fine lines:

"Statesman, yet friend to truth, of soul sincere,
In action faithful, and in honor clear!
Who broke no promise, served no private end,
Who gained no title, and who lost no friend."

The Speaker of the House of Representatives next introduced the former United States Senator, Honorable Joseph W. Bailey, of Texas, who addressed the Assembly as follows:

MR. PRESIDENT, MR. SPEAKER, AND GENTLEMEN OF THE ILLINOIS JOINT ASSEMBLY—Although bound to your great commonwealth by no tie of blood—for none of my kin have ever lived in Illinois—I am bound to you by one of the earliest political sympathies of my life.

When a mere boy, and before I had left the groves of the Academy, I studied the life and services of Stephen A. Douglas, and though I am southern-born, the son of a Confederate soldier, I tell you this afternoon that if I had lived in 1860, and if I had been privileged to vote, I would have cast my ballot in that election for Stephen A. Douglas; and I will be permitted to say, without giving the appearance of partisanship to the same, that if the Democrats had followed Douglas, as I believe they ought to have done, the great man whose anniversary we come to celebrate tonight, would have been a great man and a patriot still, but he would never have been president of the United States. And it was the misfortune of the section from which I come, that they permitted themselves to be alienated from Douglas at that critical hour in their party's history. But it is not of these things of which I come to speak and it will not be appropriate for me to speak of them when I am thus the guest of gentlemen of numerous political parties.

But you will not deem it inappropriate for me to say that, as a Democrat, I sincerely trust, if you are able to elect a Senator to succeed Shelby M. Cullom, you will elect one worthy to take his place, and as an American, I may be permitted to express the hope that if the choice shall fall outside of the party to which I belong, Illinois will be fortunate indeed if Cullom's successor is of Cullom's worth.

I would not, even if I were not a stranger, venture to advise this Legislature, because, without intending to flatter you, your appearance denotes that you are better qualified to give advice than you are inclined to receive it.

I said to one of your honorable members a moment ago, what I believe I will venture to say to you now, although I will render myself immensely unpopular with the delegation from Illinois in the United States House of Representatives, and that is that in looking over this Assembly, if I were compelled to trust my destiny, or my share of destiny of this republic, to you or to them, I would trust it to you.

Now, gentlemen of the Joint Assembly, I indulge the hope that when you have adjourned, you will leave upon the people of Illinois as favorable an impression, from your work, as you have made upon me by your appearance, and there is just one way to do that, and that is to consecrate yourselves with single-mindedness to the public service and eschew all unworthy considerations.

These personal equations I understand. I understand personal attachments and personal animosities, but they have no place in a great assembly chosen to do the work of a great and free people. Men may come and men may go, but the glory and the welfare of Illinois, let us pray, shall endure forever.

It is your happy circumstance to be permitted to contribute something to that glory and that welfare, and you can only make a contribution that shall outlast your session by putting behind you all passion and prejudice that may cloud your mind, and looking only to the welfare of your magnificent State.

Whether what you do shall make for party solidarity, or for party disintegration, I cannot say, but this much I can say, that the man who deceives himself into thinking that the great governments of this Union, or the great governments of the states in this Union, or the greater government of this Union itself, can be conducted without the aid of political parties, is grossly and widely mistaken.

We have had parties, some people say, since Jefferson's first administration. I say, we have had parties since Washington's first administration, and the party spirit of that time ran so high, that Thomas Jefferson found it personally unpleasant to continue as the secretary of state in George Washington's cabinet.

But the parties which were organized in that time, were organized according to the great principles of the government, and not upon the narrow consideration of personal hates and personal ambitions.

The party that will re-consecrate itself to the service of the country under the guidance of great principles will come again into the control of this government, supported and sustained by a majority of the people.

But if we continue in the bad habit of the last few years, of feeling ourselves at liberty to dissolve our connection, whenever it pleases us to do so, with the knowledge that we will be permitted to renew our affiliation whenever it seems to be to our interest to do so, then parties must disappear and the American people must be divided into groups.

Would you permit me to say that your ballot of only a moment ago, illustrates how far you would proceed, when you proceed upon that principle? You must understand, of course, that I mean to criticize no gentleman. I impugn the motive of no member. I only call you to witness that it is impossible to accomplish anything, as a Democrat, or a Republican—or even as a Progressive, unless we acknowledge the obligation of our party allegiance.

As much as I abhor Socialism, I give my unstinted praise to the unity and solidarity of the Socialist party. I do not know how many of them you have in the Illinois Legislature, but if they are up here like they are down yonder where I live, they never divide. It is true they are not numerous enough to divide into many parts, but they seldom divide at all.

And I want to say this much to you, that when men exhibit the zeal, the energy, and the tenacity which the Socialists of this country have displayed,

I may know that they are wrong, but I am compelled to believe that they think they are right, and I want to warn you Democrats and Republicans and Progressives, if you go on quarreling over the small matters of politics, the next generation will be compelled to reckon with the growth of Socialism and the increase of the Socialist party.

As far as I am concerned, I am out of politics. I voluntarily retired. I mis-stated. I ought to say that I am out of office, though I am not out of politics, and I never mean to cease my interest in the welfare of my country, as long as I can find anybody to cooperate with me in promoting it.

And I want to say to some of those who, like myself, have now become privates in the ranks, that if we will do our duty, as well as those who serve us in official station, we will have less reason to complain about the state of politics.

Of all the despicable creatures in the world, it is a public servant who betrays the public confidence and interest of his people; but next to him is the citizen who thinks himself too good to help attend to the affairs of his country and his countrymen.

When I find one of these men, no matter what his station or pursuit in life may be, who draws his cloak of righteousness about him, and talks about politics being too low for his participation, I pity him, because I know that he lacks an understanding of his duty.

A few years ago, when you urged these men of commerce, of industry, and of great interests, to come to the conventions and the caucuses, and help us rescue the party from sinister influences, they said, "I will have nothing to do with these boss-ridden politics;" and now that the boss has disappeared, and let us hope has disappeared forever, when we solicit them to join us they say, "O, I am disgusted with these demagogues, and I will not attend."

My countrymen, let us remind those men that neither the boss nor the demagogue is the natural or necessary product of American politics, that both the boss and the demagogue can be forever destroyed, if only the American people will do their duty. Good men, instead of allowing the bosses and demagogues to drive them out of politics, ought to drive the bosses and demagogues out of politics.

My countrymen, I do not think every man is a boss, who is commonly described as such. I have learned in my political experience that the definition of a boss with many men is a leader who does not agree with them and the definition of a leader with many men is a boss who does happen to agree with them.

It is an iridescent dream to suppose that we can ever govern this world without leaders. We cannot do anything else without leaders.

When the geese start south in the fall, they follow a leader. When they come back north in the spring, they follow a leader. And one time a man more skilled in fowling than in politics, told me that if you kill their leader, they never proceed until they circle about, and a new leader asserts his right to lead.

So it is in politics. What would have become of this republic, if out of that mighty conflict of ideas, Abraham Lincoln had not been evolved to lead it through the carnage of a four years' war?

Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the Assembly, I am tresspassing too far upon your time. (Being assured he could have more time, Mr. Bailey said): It is very much better to quit when they are willing for you to go on, than it is to go on when they want you to quit.

Ex-Vice President of the United States, Adlai E. Stevenson, was then introduced to the Joint Assembly and he thereupon made the following remarks:

MR. PRESIDENT, MR. SPEAKER AND GENTLEMEN OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY— I appreciate more fully than words can express the honor you have conferred upon me, this opportunity to address a few remarks to the General Assembly of the State of Illinois.

It was my good fortune in my boyhood days to have known two distinguished gentlemen, one who presided over the Illinois Legislature and the other over its Senate, both of them from the historic county of St. Clair—John Reynolds, the fourth Governor of this State, who after having served as Governor, Representative in Congress and envoy abroad, was finally promoted to the high office of Speaker of the House of Representatives and died in his old age a member of this General Assembly. The other was Lieutenant-Governor Koerner, one of the most scholarly and distinguished statesman it was my good fortune to know and he had more courage than any presiding officer I have ever known.

It is a great honor to be a Representative or a Senator of the Great State of Illinois, a State with a population greater today than our entire country had when Washington was President of the United States.

Illinois, the third State in the Union, third in its business interests, third in population and wealth, must have and will have as its Representatives in this and the other chamber, men who understand the great interests of the State and who are prepared to meet every question that will arrive.

Mr. President, Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the General Assembly, I thank you for this great courtesy. I have never been a member of the General Assembly and never had an opportunity before of addressing you and probably may never have again but the honor of this hour will linger with me to the last.

Hon. John W. Bunn, of Springfield, was then introduced to the Joint Assembly to whom he returned thanks.

On motion of Mr. Karch of the House, a vote of thanks was returned to each one of the speakers for having honored the Joint Assembly with their presence and for the addresses made by them.

We, the undersigned members of the Senate of the 48th General Assembly, respectfully protest against the following matter contained in the Senate Journal of Thursday, February 27th, 1913, pertaining to the Joint Session of the General Assembly of said date, viz:

"And it appearing from the foregoing roll-call that neither a quorum of the House nor Senate was present, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, as presiding officer, announced that there was no election of a representative from the State of Illinois as Senator to the Congress of the United States for six years, beginning on the fourth day of March, A. At 10:30 o'clock a. m., on motion of Mr. Hurburgh, the Senate took a recess until 11:55 o'clock a. m.

In pursuance of the provisions of Senate Joint Resolution No. 25, which is as follows:

WHEREAS, Honorable W. J. Bryan, Secretary of State, is expected to pass through the State of Illinois Tuesday, March 18th, en route to a birthday celebration at his home in Lincoln, Nebraska; and

WHEREAS, It is the desire of the General Assembly of the State of Illinois to pay its respect to the Secretary of State; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Senate, the House of Representatives concurring therein, That an invitation be extended to the Honorable W. J. Bryan, Secretary of State, to stop over at the city of Springfield and to appear before and address a joint session of the General Assembly of the State of Illinois on the said date, at such hour as may be agreeable and convenient to him.

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House jointly execute an invitation upon behalf of the Senate and House and forward the same at once by telegraph to Secretary Bryan, at the Department of State, Washington, D. C., in accordance with the foregoing resolution; and be it further

Resolved, That, upon the acceptance of the invitation, a committee of six, three from the House, be appointed by the Speaker, and three from the Senate, to be appointed by the President of the Senate, be appointed as a committee to make the arrangements for his reception and entertainment while a guest of the General Assembly of Illinois.

The Senate, preceded by its President, repaired to the House of Representatives to hold a joint session as provided in the foregoing resolution and upon their being admitted to the House and seated the Speaker introduced Governor Edward F. Dunne as the presiding officer of the session and turned over to him the gavel, whereupon, Governor Dunne made the following remarks:

GOVERNOR DUNNE.

Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives:

Pursuant to the resolution passed by your joint bodies last week, it now becomes my pleasure to announce to you that there is in this room the gentleman whom you invited to address you. It is not necessary for me to introduce the Secretary of State of the United States. I have simply to mention the name of the gentleman whom you have invited and who will now address you, Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan. (Continued applause.)

HON. WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN.

Members of the Senate and House, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I appreciate the invitation extended by your Legislature and I am here in response to that invitation. I do not come in the character of an official of the Federal Government. If I can divest myself for the moment of all official titles and connections, I would prefer to speak to you as a citizen of a great country, speaking to those who are invested with great responsibility. I not only appreciate the invitation that comes from the Legislature of the State in which I was born, the State in which I was raised, but I also appreciate the honor done me by the Chief Executive of Illinois in presiding and in introducing me on this occasion. (Applause.) And you will pardon me if I say as a friend, speaking of a friend, that I am glad that my visit to your State's capitol comes at a time when I can be the guest of your Chief Executive. (Applause.)

I have known Governor Dunne for a great many years. My confidence in him is complete. I can commend him without mental reservation and I think I know him well enough to take the chance of endorsing in advance what his conscience would bid him do. (Applause.) That is about as strong a commendation as one public man can make of another. Usually it is difficult enough for one public man to endorse what another has done. (Laughter.)

I feel that I am so well acquainted with him and with his impulses, with his aspirations and with the principles that guide him, that I can with reasonable accuracy foretell his conduct by a knowledge of what he has done when he has had to consider questions similar to those that are yet to come before him. And, I am glad too, to come to address this Legislature at a time when progressiveism has been triumphant throughout the land. (Applause.) It needed no office to make my heart glad and make me happy at this time. It was not necessary that I should share personally or financially in the fruits of the national victory to fill my cup of happiness to overflowing. (Applause.)

Sanguine as I have been, I never expected to live to see the day when so many great reforms were marching on to victory. I have used a little illustration that gives my idea of the present condition. If any of you will suggest when I am through a better illustration, I shall substitute it for the one I shall give you.

We have had a long fight and a hard fight to bring the people into possession of their own government. I think, after all, that the fundamental issue—"Shall the government be a government of the people, controlled by the people and administered for the people" has been the supreme issue, and while other questions have come and gone and while we have had to apply the fundamental principle for which we are contending to many different surface issues, the great underlying question has been, "Shall the people control their government?" And the present situation I would illustrate in this way.

It appears to me like the trial of a great criminal case, in which the defendant was a man of influence and of means, able to employ the most able counsel, and, as the trial progresses, the attorneys for the defense ask every conceivable question, cross-examine to their hearts' content and endeavor to break down the character of every witness called by the prosecution. And, after the evidence was all in and the plaintiff rested his case, the attorney for the defense arose and asked permission to withdraw the plea of "not guilty" and enter a plea of "guilty" and throw his client upon the mercy of the court. (Applause.)

That, to my mind, illustrates somewhat the situation that we have in the United States today.

After a prolonged contest in which the people have had to confront, not only those guilty of the misuse of official power, but those guilty of doing things that ought to be prohibited by law, and after the people have patiently and persistently prosecuted their case until the evidence was all in, the enemy has surrendered and the United States in a day is a progressive nation. (Applause.)

It has been most gratifying to me to see a President inaugurated who was pledged to progressive policies, and, if you were not present at the inauguration, you will pardon me if I bring to your attention one of the impressions that that inauguration made. There we had the decision of a great nation given effect. We saw the supreme power in a great republic passing from one set of officials to another. We saw a President, whose administration had been weighed in the balance and found wanting, escorting his successful competitor to the place where the oath was to be administered. We see the two standing uncovered in the presence of an assembling multitude. We see the people's choice taking oath before his God to defend the Constitution of the United States and uphold its laws.

And, when by this simple act one had been installed who was to speak with the authority of the people of the United States, the retiring President took his seat beside the incoming President, while the incoming President interpreted the verdict rendered by the people at the polls.

Then, more than fifty thousand people marched in procession past the reviewing stand. Governors at the head of the soldiery of their state. Governors of different parties; governors who had supported different candidates, but as these governors passed, one not acquainted with them personally or politically could have told from their manner who was Democratic, who was Republican and who was Progressive. (Applause.) And then citizens passed and I was impressed by the civic feature of this great inauguration. College students passed, clubs of various kinds passed and under these various organizations there were members of every party, but all of them without regard to party, recognized the right of the people to rule and the one chosen for President became their President the minute he was elected. (Applause.) And the influence of this transfer of authority at Washington, the influence of this revolution in method and in plans, is not confined to the Federal Government. Every state government will feel the impetus of this national movement and the enthusiasm with which the new regime has been inaugurated cannot but have its influence in every state in this Union.

I come from the national capitol thus impressed by what I have seen to speak to you and to speak to you of the responsibilities of legislators.

Some of you may have thought that my coming had special reference to your senatorial situation. If so, let me tell you that I had what is to my mind a larger purpose in coming here than to participate in a senatorial election. (Applause.) And I am sure that when I say that, you will not think that I am unmindful of the importance of your senatorial election.

The election of one Senator is important, because there have been times when the vote of one Senator has determined a great question, and those who are interested in carrying out of the President's policies cannot be indifferent to the election of one Senator in any state.

In this State you have two Senators to elect, and therefore your action on this subject is doubly important.

When I say that I have a larger purpose than participation in your senatorial election, I only mean to say that however important your election may be, that there are principles that must govern, not merely the election of senators, but the transaction of all business with which you as the representatives of the people may happen to be connected. I am more interested in these fundamental principles than I am in any temporary application that may have to be made of them in the selection of an individual for any office.

I may go a step further and say I come with no secret message from the executive. The President represents the idea of publicity in politics and not the idea of secrecy. (Applause.) And I am glad that your Chief Executive when he thought it advisable to speak on this subject thought it wise to speak to the public and put his views in writing. (Applause.)

I had occasion to say not long ago to a man entering public life that the secret of success in public life is to have no secrets from the public, and I am not inclined to withdraw the advice on reflection.

So, today I have nothing to say to you in confidence as individuals that I cannot say to you in such a way that you may not only hear but that the newspapers may report. (Applause.) My only hope is that they will not leave out a part of what I say and thus give an unfair understanding. (Applause.) When I say that, I mean no reflection upon the press. I know of no higher body of men in character than the representatives of the press, if I may speak of them as a body. I would not be willing to say that there were no tares among the wheat. (Laughter.) I would not say that there is no alloy in the journalistic coin of the nation, but I certainly would make no reflection upon the character of the newspaper men as a class. But I have always found it convenient in dealing with human beings to assume that each one with whom I dealt was human and that the faults and frailties of human nature might be assumed to exist in those particular individuals, unless I had overwhelming proof to the contrary. (Laughter.) And one of the faults I find to be inherent in mankind is fault in memory and if I can judge others by myself I would not trust too much to the report taken down afterwards of things said and not reported at the time. The most honest, the most sincere man may leave out a sentence or a part of a sentence or a qualifying word that will give to the reader a different idea from that which the speaker intended to convey.

Let me, therefore, say just a word about the senatorial situation and only a word. I am not here to tell you what you ought to do. I decline to tell you, even if I am asked, for two reasons. In the first place the responsibility is not upon me. It is upon you. In the second place, your knowledge must be more complete than mine. One from the outside must rely upon those who communicate to him and if their communication is, for any reason, incomplete or inaccurate, he then is not well informed.

I will illustrate it in this way. If a man attempts to tell me about a flower garden that I have not seen, the accuracy of my information must depend upon the accuracy of his knowledge and if he should happen to be color blind, my knowledge of the flower garden must of necessity be meager. (Applause.)

I think the illustration is not entirely inaccurate because we are all colored by our interests and by our environments. I can easily conceive that two men equally intelligent on most questions and equally honest and equally patriotic, might present entirely different views of what was possible, and therefore, I would say advisable.

In discussing public affairs, we must consider the possibility, before we can well consider the advisability. We have to consider what can be done with the means at hand, what can be done under the conditions that we have to meet, before we can decide what it is our duty to do.

There is this thought that I desire to present—and I present it on this particular question: First, that I may have your attention when I discuss what I regard as weightier things. I fear if I postpone what I have to say on the senatorial question, that when I have stopped some of you might be so interested in what I was going to say that you would not know what I had said. (Laughter.) I desire, therefore, to get through with this question that hangs over you, so far as my connection with it goes, that you may be free to listen to what I have to say when I come to discuss the principles that I believe should guide those entrusted with legislation.

The duty of a democrat in a condition like this might be different from the duty of one outside of that party. That is, each man has his party obligations to consider and he has the representatives of his party to meet and he must make his account to them.

In what I say I want you to understand that I not only do not speak for the President, but I do not even speak for myself, that is, I am not asking you to do anything because I think it ought to be done. I would not think much of you if you substituted my judgment for your own. All that I ask of you is that you listen to the reasons that I have to give and then decide whether those reasons would justify you in doing what I would do if I were in your place understanding the situation as I do.

I believe that it is the duty of the representative to represent his constituents. I believe in the platform as a binding pledge. If a platform is not binding upon those who stand upon it, it is a delusion and a snare. If a platform can be ignored, it ought to be abolished. A man who can gain office on a platform and then without subjecting himself to just criticism ignore it, is like a man who obtains money under false pretenses. If a platform is not needed, it ought not to be adopted. If a platform is needed that the people may know for what the candidate stands, then he is not at liberty to ignore it after election.

I know that there are some who say that they ought to be governed by their conscience where it runs contrary to their platforms. I will not allow any man to go beyond me in respect for conscience, and I will not say that any man ought to follow his platform if to do it requires a violation of his conscience, but I do say that when a man finds he cannot conscientiously carry out a platform on which he is elected, he ought to be conscientiously enough to resign and let someone else get on the platform. (Applause.)

I believe in a conscience, but not in the conscience that hibernates during a campaign and comes out only after the election to justify the actions of the man.

When I speak of the binding force of a platform, I speak of it as applied to individuals as well as to principles. If a platform endorses a man and a man runs upon that platform, it is not necessary that he shall openly declare himself to be in harmony with the platform. His silence is an endorsement of his platform and he has no right to say that because he was silent he did not endorse that platform.

A man's silence at such a time can have no construction except that of affirmative endorsement. If a man is nominated upon a platform that he cannot wholly approve, according to my views, the man's duty would be to announce immediately that he cannot approve of the part from which he dissents and then trust his election upon his position stated to the people, and not upon the platform which they have a right to accept as describing him.

I would venture to apply it in your senatorial contest. The democrats and the republicans nominated candidates for the United States senate. I believe the progressive republicans did not nominate, but if I may speak of the republicans as the "regular republicans" although I do not, by using the word "regular" intend to discriminate between the two kinds of republicans, (laughter) but use it merely as a mark of identification, as we would say, "Exhibit A" or "Exhibit B." But, my understanding is that the regular republicans had a candidate and the democrats had a candidate—the republican party, Mr. Sherman, and the democratic party, Mr. Lewis. I understand that the progressives—it is not necessary I suppose to use any of the other terms applied to that party to enable you to understand which party I mean, (laughter), the progressive republicans, although I have somewhat resented the attempt to take the work again from the democratic party, had no candidate. They, as I say, had no candidate, and, therefore, would not be obligated to an individual as the democrats and republicans are.

Now, as I understand, the duty of a representative and the binding obligation of a party platform and a party declaration, a republican running as a regular republican, and a candidate in the same party that nominated Mr. Sherman, if that candidate for the legislature, or a candidate for an office that brought him into contact with this question, if that republican running on that ticket and as a representative of that party did not in the campaign openly state that he would not vote for that candidate as a member of the legislature, according to my view of it, he has no moral right to come out after the election and dissent from the declaration of his party. (Applause) That is, and continue to represent his party. When he continues, he does not represent his party. He misrepresents his party. And, if he finds after the election that he cannot conscientiously do that which he was expected to do by those who voted for him, according to my understanding of a representative's duty, he ought to return his commission to the people and either run again on a different platform or let them select someone who can give expression to their will. Should a democrat who ran for the legislature as a democrat run upon the ticket with the democratic candidate for the United States senate, and did not at the time openly and notoriously announce that he would not vote for this man and thus invite support upon his individual position as against his party, he has no moral right to refuse to support the man whom he silently approved during the campaign. (Applause.)

If such a man decides after election that his conscience will not permit him to support the man to whom he was pledged by his platform and by his silence, I believe that it is his duty to return his commission to his people and let them decide whether they want him to come back and send some one else to carry out their wishes.

That is my view of the duty of a representative and I mention it as applying to the senatorship as I expect to mention it as applying to other things.

As to what these new democrats may do, I have simply this to say, and in saying this I want it understood that I am not asking anybody to take my opinion or to substitute my judgment for his. I am simply giving you an opinion that I may give you the reasons upon which I base it and if the reasons are not sufficient to justify you in accepting the reasons, I could not expect you to indorse the opinions.

We are about to secure the election of United States senators by the direct vote of the people. This legislature has already approved the amendment submitted by Congress. I saw, a day or two ago, that 31 states had already ratified. That would leave only five states. When I mentioned the matter this morning, I was informed that only three more states were necessary. That was the information given to me by one. Another said only four more were needed. Whether we need five more, or four more or three more, it is only a question of a few months when we will have all we need and that amendment will become a part of the constitution of the United States, and it is one of the specific duties to which I look forward that it is to be my privilege as Secretary of State to announce officially the ratification of that amendment to the constitution providing for the direct vote of the people for United States senators. (Applause)

When I take my pen in hand to write that statement, which will conclude a reform for which the people have struggled for now more than twenty years, my mind will turn back to the time when as a young man, a candidate for Congress, 23 years ago almost now, I wrote into my platform a plank favoring the election of senators by direct vote of the people.

By the ratification of that amendment you have declared yourselves in favor of the election of senators by the direct vote of the people.

Is it improper to suggest that if you refuse now to consider that amendment which you have endorsed and which will soon be a part of the constitution, if you refuse to consider it now binding upon you, you simply make use of an obsolete system rather than the system which you favored and towards which our country is marching.

Does anybody doubt if we had the election of senators last fall that the democratic candidate would have been elected, as the democratic state officers and as the electoral vote of the state was given to the democratic candidate for President? Does anybody doubt that if we had had the election of senators by the people last fall that you would already have representing you at Washington the men whom the democrats selected and who, as their candidate was a part of their ticket?

Does anybody doubt that if the vacancy had occurred soon enough to permit nominations to have been made, that the democratic nominee for the short term, whoever he would have been, had he been a man of character and training and possessed the confidence of the people of the State, do you doubt that he would have been elected and that both of these senators would have been chosen by a plurality—and a plurality chooses in those questions, does anybody doubt that both of them would have been democrats had the people had a chance to speak? (Applause.)

If that be true, does it violate any republican's conscience to help to do now what he knows would have been done had the people of the State had a chance to do it? (Applause.) But, my friends, if I stopped here you might have more reason to criticise me than you will when I get through.

I have asked a question and I think what I have said indicates how I think it might be answered, and yet I recognize that there is no law that can be invoked to compel the members of this legislature to consider this amendment as already adopted and as binding upon them. And, therefore, I shall add this, that the democrats in this legislature are responsible to the people of the State and of the nation for the manner in which they settle this controversy. I shall not attempt to tell them how they shall settle it, but I shall say to each democrat who has been endorsed by his people and entrusted by his representatives with power to speak, that occasions like this distinguish between the statesman and the politician. (Applause.)

The statesman seeks to interpret correctly the will of those for whom he speaks. The politician seeks to secure some advantage without regard to the wishes of those whose representative he is. This is the only distinction that I shall try to see, because I would not assume that there were any other classifications than the two which I have mentioned. If there are any men in this Legislature who are governed by any other purpose than the purpose that actuates the statesman, or the purpose that actuates the politician, I shall not attempt to deal with them or to characterize them except to say that if there is any man in this Legislature, a member of any party, who would use his vote to advance a special interest through secret methods— if that is his purpose, he better do all he can now for the day will soon be past when these men will be permitted to capitalize power and use the government for this purpose.

The day was when men met and parceled out the advantages of government, when men met in the lobby, the representatives of predatory interests and made contracts grown in the dark. A new day has dawned, thank God, in our nation, and the friends of light are growing and the ones who hide their evil deeds beneath the cover of darkness are passing to the rear.

I hope that Illinois—Illinois the State that has not always set an example of purity in politics, will this year so act that no one can doubt the good faith of every vote cast in this senatorial contest. (Applause.)

It is not so important that men shall agree as that they shall have confidence that differences of opinion rest upon legitimate grounds. It is not so important that you shall all decide that the same thing is wise, but it is important that when this contest is over there will not be one single member of Senate or House of Representatives who cannot stand and face the people of the State and ask the people to search his heart and find there an impure motive that has led him in this fight. So, while I cannot see any reason why a democrat commended to the democratic candidate in the campaign can justify a refusal to support him now, and while I can see reasons why those calling themselves by name other than the democratic name can act as if the amendment for which they have voted and which will soon be in force, this giving effect now to what they believe would have been the people's will had the people been permitted to speak directly.

While I have said these things, I repeat and emphasize the fact that I have said them merely to give you the reasons for my opinion, and ask for my opinion no further weight than that you would give the reasons which support it.

I speak with equal earnestness when I speak to democrats and urge them to recognize the responsibility that rests upon them and to so act that when they go home to their people they can go with the assurance that with what light they had and to the best of their ability they sought to give effect to the people's verdict, they sought to send to Washington a man who would uphold the hands of the President and help him while he puts a nation's government in the hands of the people of the United States to make it their own indeed. (Applause.)

Now, let me pass to the consideration of a few questions with which you have to deal. What I have said indicates the general trend of my remarks.

Sometimes a text is so expressive that you can know the sermon in advance, and so my text is so expressive that you can know in advance just what I am going to say on every subject that I touch upon.

I desire to see the national government and the government of every state brought into absolute and entire harmony with the doctrine that the people shall rule. It is not a new doctrine. It is an old one. The Declaration of Independence that has been the inspiration throughout the world for more than a century declares that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed, and the first document issued by President Wilson embodied that declaration as the fundamental principle of popular government.

The government must derive every just power from the consent of the governed. The election of a senator by the people is a step toward the realization of this and I need not dwell upon it further than to say that in some states, in Nebraska, for instance, and in Oregon before us, and in some other states they have passed a law that provides for the submission of a pledge to every candidate for the Legislature so that he can, if he will, promise that he will support for the senate the man who received the largest vote as a candidate for that office.

When we adopted it in our state we called it the "Oregon plan" because it was adopted in Oregon before it was in Nebraska. I was talking today to someone in regard to it and he said that it looked now as if the amendment to the constitution was going to be adopted so soon that it would hardly be worth while to pass this law. I believe that the amendment to the constitution will be adopted in a few months but I have missed my guess sometimes on what the people were going to do and with much experience I have become more conservative in the forecasting of statements, so I would advise that you take no chances.

It will do no harm to adopt the Oregon plan. It will do no harm to bring the election of senators as near to the people as you can bring it without the amendment to the constitution. If you pass a bill, a measure embodying the Oregon plan, just remember that while it will help you until that amendment is ratified by thirty-six states, it will not hurt you after that amendment has been ratified. Therefore, there can be no objection urged to it that I know of and on the ground that you ought to act in an abundance of caution I would respectfully recommend that you take no chances about the ratification of this national amendment, but put yourselves upon the same ground that Oregon and Nebraska and a number of other states have, and thus in the future secure to the people of your State the right to make this approximation to popular elections, no matter what might occur as to the ratification of the amendment.

The Governor of this State has presented a program and so far as I have been able to read the program it is expressive of this fundamental doctrine, that the people rule. Take, for instance, in the matter of public utilities. I believe he has recommended a public utilities board. I know of no argument that can be made against it that will bear the light. I know of no argument that would present or suggest itself to the disinterested mind. We all recognize that these corporations are created by the public and we must assume that they are created on the belief that they will advance the public welfare but we must also assume that those who run them will look out for the interests of the stockholders rather than the interests of the public, and, therefore, there must be some one that will look out for the interest of the public. And, I believe that experience has demonstrated the wisdom of a public utility board before which corporations must go for permission to do those things which if done without public approval might be done to the injury of the people of the country.

I ask you to remember the difference between the corporation and the individual. Sometimes I hear a democrat invoke a maxim of Jefferson, "legislate as little as possible." I have heard that maxim invoked when a request was made for regulating corporations. I want to remind you that if you are going to apply that maxim you must go back to the time before these great corporations were created. You cannot create a corporation and then resort to the maxim that would lead you not to regulate after it is created.

Remember the difference between the God made man and the corporate man. There are several differences that are very marked. Here are a few. Man was made by the Creator. The corporation was made by man. Man has a higher origin than the corporation. God created man for a divine purpose. Man created the corporations to make money. A difference in the purpose of the creation. When God made man he put a limit to his existence and man does not know when the time will expire, and therefore, he is under restraint that the corporation is not. Not only that, but God breathed into man a soul and warned him that in the next world he would be held accountable for the deed done in the flesh, while the corporation recognizes that if they can escape punishment here it need not worry about the hereafter. (Applause and laughter.)

Then, there is a difference also in the size of the thing created. When God created man, he did not make the tallest man much taller than the shortest man, and did not make the strongest man much stronger than the weakest, but when man made the corporation, the corporate man, that corporate man was made a hundred, a thousand and a million times stronger than the God made man. Therefore, the God made man has a right to insist that as the government created this giant, the government shall control this giant and not permit it to trespass upon the right of the individual. It must be understood, therefore, that a corporation has no natural rights. It has no rights except those given it by the government, and as the corporation has rights that the natural man does not enjoy, if you insist that it also has every right that the natural man enjoys, you make it necessarily more potent than the natural man can be.

I ask you, therefore, to be careful and don't permit a corporation to be created without providing a means for restraining it and regulating it. And, as the people create corporations through government, I suggest that you require by law that every corporation shall put up a motto in its chief place of business, "Remember Now Thy Creator."

The public utility board is one of the means employed for the regulation of corporations, and, so far as I know, no substitute has been found for it. Nothing better has been proposed. I feel sure that when you come to examine the situation, if you will let the people's interests be paramount in your thought, you will gladly approve of the creation of a board that can exercise a restraining influence over corporations for the protection of the helpless and unorganized public.

If it were necessary to re-enforce what I have said by additional argument, I would remind you that when the government takes from the individual his club and says to him "you shall not protect yourself and your own rights by physical force" it assumes the solemn obligation of protecting the unarmed, the disarmed individual from every arm uplifted for his injury.

I believe the Governor has also recommended the giving to cities of the right to own and control their utilities. Why not? Is there anybody that has a better right to decide that question than the people themselves? If we abandon hereditary government and rule by divine right in order to substitute a kind of rule more obnoxious than hereditary rule—the rule of money is the most hateful that can be imagined and infinitely more oppressive than any hereditary rule, and when you say that the people of a city shall not own their utilities, you say someone has a right to own and operate them regardless of the people's wishes.

Is there any power in any city with a right so sacred that that right should be given precedence above the right of the people themselves? Are you afraid to trust the people to decide this question? Then, how dare you defend the principles of popular government? If the people cannot decide a question in their midst, how can they decide a question far away from them? Do you mean to say that the people lack capacity for self government? If you do, you assail the foundation principles upon which our institutions rest. Do you say that people will make mistakes? That is no objection. You cannot escape mistakes by escaping popular government or the rule of the people. It is not a question of who shall make mistakes. Haven't the people the right to make their own mistakes? Has anybody a God-given right to make mistakes for the rest of the people?

In a monarchy the king makes the mistakes for the people, and he has often lived up to his opportunities in that respect. In an aristocracy, the few make mistakes for the people, and those mistakes have not been infrequent; and in a plutocracy, the people who put the dollar above the man make the mistakes in their own interests and at the expense of the most of the people.

I feel sure that those of you who believe that governments must derive their just powers from the consent of the governed, will not deny to the people of the cities the right to decide for themselves when they shall do their own work and when they shall let it out to someone else.

You also have before you a corrupt practice act. I don't know what the terms of it are, but I can say this, that we are making progress in this direction and the things that were not considered corrupting a few years ago are now regarded as corrupting and as things that should be prohibited, and we are making progress in the nation, as well as in the different states, and one source through which we have made progress is through publicity, throwing the light on what was going on.

It is not so long ago that a great Senator said that "purity in politics was an iridescent dream." It is not so many years since the time if you asked where a campaign contribution came from you were told that it was none of your business, and then you apologized for asking an impudent question. That day has already passed. You will remember that a law was passed a few years ago prohibiting corporations from contributing to campaign funds. It was a good law. Before that time corporations had contributed large amounts secretly, and the influence that they secured by those contributions was used against the welfare of the people. It was found by investigation that in one campaign 73½ per cent of all the contributions made to the campaign fund of one party in a national campaign came from the corporations that have since been prohibited by law from contributing. That was a step in advance and the people will never go back.

The youngest person in this audience will never live to see the day when a corporation will be permitted to contribute to a national campaign fund and no corporation ought to be permitted to contribute to a state campaign fund, or to a county campaign fund, or a city campaign fund or a ward campaign fund. (Applause.)

The corporation ought not to be permitted to take part in politics and the money in its treasury belonging to its stockholders should not be used to advance the party principles or interests of any man who can control those funds. They are not, in fact. The demand arose for publicity before election and it seems strange now, when we look back and remember that four years ago last fall it was really a serious question whether we should know before the election or afterwards where the money came from. Prominent and well meaning men thought that it would not be wise to let the people know in advance of the election where the money came from. Reform has been marching on and when at last the measure came before the House and the roll was called, not one single member of any party voted "no" on roll call.

Now, we have in national politics a law that requires publicity in advance of the election, and I hope that law will be passed in every state in this Union, that the voters may know before they vote where the money comes from that is to be used in campaigns. Not only that, but when that bill went through the Senate, the Senate added an amendment limiting the amount of money that might be spent, even legitimately, in a campaign, and members of congress are limited to five thousand dollars, and Senators to ten thousand dollars. I believe the law is a good one and I think the limit is more liable to be reduced than enlarged in years to come. Why shouldn't we limit it? Why should a man be allowed to use money without limit, even if he uses it in such a way that you cannot bring a criminal charge against him? We believe that in a government like ours the poor man ought not to be at a disadvantage because some other man can spend more money than he can. (Applause.)

Without attempting to deal with the various questions that arise under your corrupt practice act, just let me make this suggestion, that if any proposition is made that looks to the purifying of politics and you have any doubt upon it, resolve the doubt upon the people's side rather than against them. Resolve it in favor of economy rather than against economy. If anybody tells you that anything you ask that you believe to be good is unconstitutional, give the benefit of the doubt to the good measure and let the courts decide instead of deciding yourself. If you decide that a question is unconstitutional, the court cannot review it, but if you decide it is constitutional and you are mistaken, the court can correct the mistakes. Therefore, give the benefit of the doubt to the people and not to those who raise the question of constitutionality. (Applause.)

I only came to speak to you for a moment and I find that the moments are extending. (Cries of "go on.")

I desire now to speak of a matter which I have left for the last because I regard it as the most important. I refer to the initiative and referendum. (Applause.) I am glad to be informed by your applause that you know what I am talking about. (Laughter.) There was a time when those to whom I have spoken were not so well informed. For instance, I remember that in Nebraska sixteen years ago last summer, we put a plank in our platform for the first time in favor of the initiative and referendum. A Republican paper the next morning said that when this plank was read the delegates looked at each other in surprise and that one delegate said to another, "what is that?" And the other delegate said "that is a new kind of Democratic drink," and the paper said it went through unanimously then. (Laughter.) That was the manner in which a Republican paper joked about this plank in our platform sixteen years ago. But, two years ago last summer this same paper led the fight in the Republican party for the endorsement of the initiative and referendum and it has won its fight and in Nebraska two years ago last summer every party submitted the initiative and referendum and last November the people adopted the initiative and referendum and the people of Nebraska are in control of the government of Nebraska. (Applause.)

These words are easily understood. The "initiative" describes a process by which the people can begin legislation themselves. The "referendum" describes a process by which the people can require that a measure that has passed through the legislature shall be submitted to them. Now, in neither case is the principle a new one.

How do you change a county seat in the state of Illinois? As I recall it, it begins by petition. The people of the county, a certain percentage of them, can apply through petition for a vote as to the location of a county seat, and when the percentage fixed by law joins in the petition, then, as a matter of right the people must have that question submitted to them. That is the initiative and referendum. When we ask for the initiative to apply to a state, we are merely asking for the broadening of the application of that principle.

The initiative simply means that when a percentage fixed in the law shall ask for a vote upon a proposition, that proposition shall be submitted to them and they shall have a right to act upon it, and when a majority of them act in favor of the proposition, it becomes a law as much as if a legislature had passed it.

When we ask for a referendum we mean that when a measure is passed by the legislature and a certain percentage ask that it be submitted to the popular vote, it shall be so submitted and if on that vote a majority vote against it, it acts as a repeal or nullification of it.

It is not a new principle, as we now submit questions affecting the issuing of bonds and other important questions, and we submit amendments to the Constitution in that way.

It is the referendum principle recognizing that the people are the source of power. I believe in the initiative and referendum, and if I had to choose between the two, I would prefer the initiative to the referendum. With the referendum you must wait until the legislature has acted, and sometimes that taxes the patience of the people. (Laughter.)

When you have the initiative you don't have to wait for the legislature. You can act whether the legislature wants to or not.

What argument can you make against it? Haven't the people the right to control their government and if, for any reason, a legislature refuses to do what the people want done, the people should not be denied the right to do it themselves.

Why have the people demanded the initiative and referendum? Because of the experience that they have had. Because of misrepresentation by those elected to represent them. It has cost hundreds of years of struggle and millions of dollars of money and has cost the blood of lives as noble as the world has known to secure to the people the right to representative government, and the money has been spent in vain, the blood has been spilled to no purpose, if, when you get representative government, those who may be elected to represent you can betray you and spit upon you while they draw money from your taxation. (Applause.)

It is the contempt that has been shown for the sovereign people by their servants to betray them.

It is this contempt that has led to this demand and if any of you think this is not a crying demand, I ask you to read the growing list of states that have adopted this referendum and if that is not enough, let me remind you that in the last presidential campaign something like three-fourths of the voters of this country registered their approval of candidates for the presidency openly committed to the initiative and referendum. (Applause.)

Also, that the only one of the three prominent candidates who was opposed to the initiative and referendum carried but two states in the union, and they so small that their combined vote numbered eight in the electoral college. (Applause.)

I do not mean to say that every man who voted for President Wilson, or for Ex-President Roosevelt, believed in the initiative and referendum. I don't mean to say that every man that voted against Mr. Taft was voting against him because of his position on this subject, but I do mean to say that the time has passed when you can scare the people of this country by threatening them with an imaginary evil, an evil that would follow from the initiative and referendum.

I mention this as an indication of the progressive spirit of the age. While I would not make application to any community in which I happen to be at the time, I will tell you that whatsoever may be your experience in Illinois, there are states where they need the initiative and referendum to rob the lobbyist of his power and drive him from the State House, that he may let the people alone to transact their business. (Applause.)

Nothing is more pathetic than to see a man go from his home, trusted by his constituents, and to see him returned disgraced. The private interests are so guarded that about the capitol you will find a throng of men who find a profit in leading astray the people's representatives. Give us initiative and referendum in every state, and you will find that the power of the lobbyist will be largely reduced, if not entirely destroyed. When you have the initiative and referendum, the lobbyist cannot plead, as he can now, with the representative. If the lobbyist comes to the representative when they have the initiative and referendum, and says to the representative—"Pass this bill, we want it, we will make it to your interest to pass it," the representative can say: "We have the referendum in our state and if we pass a bill that the people do not want, they will veto it and it will not help you to pass this bill, but it will hurt us."

Then if a lobbyist says to a representative, "Kill this bill, we do not want it passed," the representative says "The people want it passed and if we don't pass it, they will pass it themselves. If we kill this bill, it will not help you but it will kill us." (Applause.)

Isn't it worth while to strengthen the representative?

But my friends, I beg pardon for trespassing so long upon your patience, but I am interested in public affairs. From the time when I was a boy, my thoughts have been turned toward public affairs. When I was only ten years old, my father served as a member of the Constitutional Convention that assembled in this city to write the present constitution of this State. I believe the constitution of '70 is still your constitution?

SPEAKER McKINLEY: Yes sir; it is.

SECRETARY OF STATE BRYAN: (Resuming.) A little later he was a candidate for Congress, and in his home I had a chance to meet those interested in public affairs and from the days of my youth questions that affected the government have been uppermost in my mind.

While I was trained for the profession of the law and while I expected to practice law until I had acquired an independence, I always thought that I would in time give my attention to politics.

Circumstances were such that my attention was drawn to politics at a much earlier age than I expected, and by the confidence of my countrymen I was put in a position where I came in contact with the great national problems, and since that time I have not felt at liberty to withdraw from their study and discussion. And today my chief concern is in the perfection of government.

I rejoice as I see throughout the world the progress of man-kind toward the ideals of government established in our country by our Fathers. And, as I watch the march of these ideas, as they encircle the globe, I rejoice that in my own beloved land the progress is as marked as in any place outside.

I come to this State, the State of my birth, the State whose history makes me proud, I come to this State whose people are dear to me—I come to appeal to you who represent them to put Illinois on the firing line and let her fight with the leading states of the Union, for the application of the principles of popular government to every department of your government. (Applause.)

Don't be afraid to trust the people. Let them control their government. They will not make as many mistakes as will be made against them, if you trust the government to less than the people. If they make mistakes, they will bear them more patiently because they are responsible for them and will correct them more quickly because they will recognize both their responsibility and the suffering that follows from the mistakes.

The world is looking to us. No other nation is in position to lead, and in our nation no other state has more reason to desire to stand among the foremost than Illinois.

I appreciate the honor that you have done me. I appreciate the responsibility that rests upon you. I would not for a moment ask you to take anything I have said, because I have said it; but if the reasons I have given are sufficient, then give them weight as you deal with the problems that come before you, and let me assure you that no good thing in government or otherwise, that can come to this dear old State, will make its citizens happier than I will be at the coming of this good thing.

I thank you.

(Applause.)

Upon the filing of such petition, or petitions, the Secretary of State shall submit such amendment, or amendments, by title, to the electors at the next election of members of the General Assembly, and such amendment or amendments, as are approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon shall become a part of this Constitution.

The Governor, Attorney General and Secretary of State shall constitute a board to pass upon the sufficiency of each petition, and when approved by them its sufficiency shall not be questioned in any court. A finding of the board that a petition is not sufficient may be reviewed upon a petition for mandamus filed in the Supreme Court within thirty days.

Any one thousand legal voters residing within the limits of such proposed district may petition the county judge of the county in which such proposed district lies, to cause the question to be submitted to the legal voters of such proposed district whether or not it shall be organized as a forest preserve district under this Act. Such petition shall be addressed to the county judge of the county in which such proposed forest preserve district is situated and shall contain a definite description of the territory intended to be embraced in such district, and the name of such district. Upon the filing of such petition in the office of the clerk of the county court of the county in which such territory is situated it shall be the duty of such county judge to fix a day and hour for the public consideration thereof, which shall not be less than fifteen days after the filing of such petition. Said county judge shall cause a notice of the time and place of such public consideration to be published three successive days in some newspaper having a general circulation in the territory proposed to be placed in such district. D. 1909.

Mr. Compton, of the Senate, offered the following resolution, which was adopted:

Resolved, That a committee of ten be appointed by the Chair to wait upon the Honorable James Hamilton Lewis, and Honorable Lawrence Y. Sherman, and notify them of their election to the United States Senate, and invite them to address this Assembly.

The presiding officer of the joint session appointed the following as the committee above provided for:

On the part of the Senate—Compton, Piercy, Magill, Waage, Keller.

On the part of the House—Tice, Igoe, Morrasy, Gorman, King.

The committee retired, and in a few minutes returned with the United States Senators—just elected, and accompanied by Governor Dunne, whereupon the following proceedings took place:

SPEAKER MCKINLEY.

GENTLEMEN OF THE JOINT ASSEMBLY—It is no doubt a great gratification to all of us to know that this long deadlock has been settled and settled right. It gives me great pleasure, therefore, to introduce to you one of the next United States Senators from the State of Illinois, newly elected, Judge Lawrence Y. Sherman. (Applause.)

SENATOR SHERMAN.

MR. SPEAKER, MEMBERS OF THE JOINT ASSEMBLY, AND OTHERS—I appreciate the courtesy of having the first introduction, by the kindness of the Speaker, and by the request of Senator Lewis. Having yielded to me that courtesy, in turn I wish to yield to Senator Lewis the priority of addressing you, as he belongs to the majority party of this General Assembly.

SPEAKER MCKINLEY.

And it gives me further pleasure to introduce to you the man whom we have chosen for the long term for United States Senator, a man whom I have known for a long period of years and esteem very highly, Senator James Hamilton Lewis. (Applause.)

SENATOR LEWIS.

MR. SPEAKER, GOVERNOR DUNNE, GENTLEMEN OF THIS JOINT ASSEMBLY—I express my appreciation to the distinguished gentleman whom you have honored (Sherman) in yielding me the place for a moment, to express the gratitude and appreciation I feel.

I am not unmindful, gentlemen, of this particular occasion. I am wholly sensible of the long strain under which you have been for a considerable length of time. My trespass upon you shall be limited to the mere expression of the feeling that sincerely possesses me upon this particular moment.

You have had a long contest. Some of you gentlemen, from your view points, have not been able to agree with others—an excellent indication of the independence of mind and the freedom of character. The result you have achieved has no doubt been borne of the consideration you gave to the subject, and your final solution has evidently been the product of the best deliberation you could bring in behalf of your State.

I would be ungrateful to my own innate sense, if I did not, at the outset, acknowledge, as a prime indebtedness, the grateful obligation I am under to my long and sincere friend, the distinguished gentleman who honors the place of the governorship of Illinois, Edward F. Dunne. (Applause.) But as much as I am constrained to believe that his personal regard of me might stimulate him in any enterprise to aid me, I still must accredit to him that which he has done, was done rather in the pursuit of what he felt was the demand of the people of the State, and in the pursuit and obedience of the thing which he felt was ordered by the commonwealth of Illinois.

Gentlemen, of my own party, I wish a word with you. You all have not been in unanimity, so far as your candidate was concerned. I would have you know, at the outset, that so far as I, now your public servant, am concerned, I neither could entertain resentment on the one hand, nor execute vengeance on the other. I recognize the right of every man to have his difference, whether born of his affection to some man, or his opinion upon the merits of others.

I would have you feel that as the representative of your party, to whatever extent you have credited me, that I hope I may continue to be, without the slightest suggestion from any source that I carry within me either the thought of retaliation upon any man, or even the memory of any man's honest position.

You gentlemen of the political parties with which I am not affiliated, I express to you my very great appreciation of the confidence you have seen fit to bestow in me. I may differ from many of you upon some of those elements which go by the designation of politics, but as your public representative, the public servant of the State, I do beseech you that you shall at all times feel that I am your servant, in common with the servant of the State; and any service that I may do our splendid commonwealth, through you—the representatives—at any time, is the service which is due you, and which you have a right to command of me under all conditions, and I trust you will, without regard to any party differences, believe me at your service. I will delight to be your obedient servant in all instances where that service can be for the benefit of our splendid glorious commonwealth—Illinois.

I tender to the gentlemen who have so long clung to my personal fortunes, my heart-felt gratitude and endless indebtedness. Now, as I take my leave of you, with my thanks, contemplating as I do the future—so far as a man may anticipate—conscious of the great responsibilities awaiting both myself and my distinguished colleague, aware of the newly awakened conscience of the public, aware of the great problems of the tomorrow—I do not advance to the undertaking with an abounding confidence of my capacity to deal with them correctly. I can only succeed, if succeed I shall, by the aid of counselship from my fellow citizens, through the aid of your assistance, your sympathy and your good advices, under all conditions when you feel it appropriate to render such to me.

Promising you the best service in my power—anxious to be no disappointment to this glorious State, and sensible of the splendid men who have gone before me in this exalted station—I do, in this Sumblime Presence, tender, without sacrilege, to Almighty God, the prayer that what I may do for this splendid State may be some credit to me and much honor to Illinois.

I thank you. (Prolonged applause.)

SPEAKER MCKINLEY.

Senator Sherman having yielded to Senator Lewis, I will now ask Senator Sherman to address you. (Applause.)

SENATOR L. Y. SHERMAN.

MR. SPEAKER: TO THE MEMBERS OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY—Let me first refer to such matters as are personal to those of the party with which I am affiliated. I thank the Republicans for the unselfish and unfaltering support they have given me. I congratulate them, and the party which they represent in this hall, on the admitted fact that there are 75 of them, and among the 75 there was no difference of opinion upon the matters requiring their effort.

"The Lord Chasteneth those whom He loveth." We had our chastening in November, and we love each other better than we did before we were defeated. (Applause.)

One thing I regret. I mention it in the same connection. In the final action, that became necessary, to affiliate with you, my Democratic friends—temporarily, I hope (laughter)—there was some difference of opinion found in our own ranks for the first time. This was inevitable. When final action is to be taken on matters requiring a departure from the established lines of party procedure, those differences are bound to occur. I repeat, I regret it, but if a solution of the difficulties facing us was to be had, it was not expected that we could be entirely unanimous on the best course to pursue.

For those who differed from us, I have nothing but the same persistent friendship and respect, now, that I had before. They were entitled to their opinions. I extend to them the same liberty of action that I ask them to give us. I believe it will be done.

To the members of the General Assembly, without regard to party, I congratulate you again, the 204 members, in being present to write the epitaph "Farewell, Deadlock" in the election of senator. Hereafter the amendment of the federal Constitution, soon to be ratified, will place the candidate's name on the ballot, to be voted for at the November election by the entire voting body of the State. (Applause.)

When that occurs, the people will not deadlock. The morning after the election, we will all know what has happened.

We have had three months of difficulty here—in a General Assembly divided into three considerable divisions, and one consisting of four members.

So far as I represent, with my esteemed colleague, the 200 members of the 204 members, I will act and vote consistently to cause this government to remain a government of regulated individualism. (Applause.) That is my platform and it is my creed and I do not believe in the reverse of it.

I have no apologies to offer, nor will I offer any, even though there should be sharp differences of opinion arise. I believe in the development of the individual, reaching out and governing him only when it is necessary to protect the rights of person and property. (Applause.) I do not believe the government is able to do everything from nursing an infant to running an elevated road. (Applause.) It will be, by me, a belief in the efficiency of government, of the regulated individualism of the American people.

Those of you who indulge in this method of thought, who read that literature, and study its alleged principles, will know exactly to what I refer.

To all the members of the Legislature, without regard to party division, the whole 204: Hereafter your deliberations will not be disturbed by questions of the kind that for two months have proven an obstruction to the legitimate legislation that sent you from your constituencies into the two branches of the General Assembly.

I cannot here do more than my distinguished colleague—to thank you, and, through you, all who have had part in the settlement of the difficulty of this dead lock.

I wish to thank, personally, the distinguished Governor of this State, who has consistently and fairly pursued, as a matter of principle with him, this solution which this day is carried into execution. (Applause.)

I do not, at all times, expect to vote as my colleague votes. (Laughter.) I do not expect to vote on the tariff schedules with my colleague at all times. I do not expect to vote with him on other matters that are part of the division of party creed. Sometimes, I know, we will vote together. Sometimes, I know, we will agree, and consequently on any new thing that may come into the field of American politics, it is an open one, and we will talk it out between us.

Whatever may be done in the matter of legislation, always passes through the retort of party organization before it takes permanent form, calling for the action of the political party that presents it.

I am not bound by party tradition; by party organization, nor by anything save the written, adopted and promulgated platforms of my party—the last known expression.

With a fair primary, under the safety and regulations of law, when the people rule, I obey the mandates of a fairly regulated primary. I go no farther than that. I will not allow any autocratic party organization to do my thinking for me. I reserve that right for myself, holding myself strictly responsible to you members, and beyond you to the million voters of this State that constitute the constituents of us all. They are the real source of power, they are the dynamic force from which government comes, and through all its subdivisions and departments they are the authority that regulates it all.

You have been here a long time today and days before. You have broken in on your regular habits. You are anxious to leave. I cannot keep you longer, I ought not. You are hungry; you are tired. You are weary. I did not mean, when I said, in looking at the Democratic side of the House, that you are hungry! (Laughter.) We were induced here to break the speakership deadlock, in order that you might, as early as possible, obtain something to satisfy that hunger. We regret that not much expedition has been made in that direction, but it was no fault of ours, so yesterday, when I threw an unpremeditated, but in disguise a friendly brick bat among you, I hoped that the obstruction of the senatorial deadlock might soon be removed, in order that you might advance in solemn phalanx toward the spot where the refreshments are kept. (Applause and laughter.)

SPEAKER MCKINLEY.

Governor Dunne is called for, and he needs no introduction. (Great applause.)

GOVERNOR EDWARD F. DUNNE.

GENTLEMEN OF THE SENATE AND OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES—I recognize that, hidden under the keen humor of Senator Sherman, there was a great deal of truth expressed in the last two sentences that he uttered. I recognize that you are both hungry and thirsty, and that you are tired, as the result of the tremendous strain under which you have labored for the last two months, and particularly today, and recognizing that he told, in his humorous and witty way, the truth, I am not going to keep you here but a few seconds.

I simply want to say, my friends, and I call you my friends, because your conduct shows, today, that you are acting in the interests of the people of this State, and the man who acts patriotically in the interests of the people of this State, I do not care whether he calls himself a Democrat or Republican, a Progressive, or a Socialist, is my friend (applause) and I believe that you have acted patriotically and consistently, and prudently and wisely, in doing the thing that you have done today.

We all have studied arithmetic, and we all know and have known, since we left school, that 97 votes do not make a majority, and that a party that has only 97 votes, and that lacks 6 or 7 votes of a majority, cannot elect a Senator to the United States Senate, without receiving votes from some other party, and therefore I thought, three weeks ago, after you had spent three weeks here in the vain and fruitless effort to secure two United States Senators of the Democratic party from this State (and I think I am as intensely Democratic as any member in this Assembly) I reached the conclusion, that we were trying to do the impossible thing, and that it would be fair and just to present some sort of a proposition to the membership of this Joint Assembly, and to the whole people of this State, that would meet with popular approval because it was just and fair and reasonable, under the circumstances; and therefore, not only as a Democrat but as a citizen, and as the executive of this State, I thought it wise to take the people of this State into our confidence, gentlemen, and to propose a solution of this situation that was sane and just and prudent, and I congratulate you that after reflection—I congratulate you, my Republican friends—after three weeks reflection; and I congratulate my Democratic friends, that after reflection of three weeks, they have seen that this is the wise and the prudent thing to do; and I think that I can safely predict that over ninety-five per cent of the people of this State, no matter what their political affiliations may be, will approve the settlement you have reached, upon honorable terms, this day, without dicker and without trade, openly and above-board, honorably and decently.

I congratulate you upon the result, my friends, of the breaking of this agonizing and unfortunate deadlock, that was delaying the legislation demanded by the people of this State; and now that it is dissolved, let us get to work, my friends, no matter what party you belong to, and put upon the statute books of this State the laws that the people demand. (Applause.)

At 3:30 o'clock p. m., on motion of Mr. Shanahan of the House, the joint session arose, and the Senate, preceded by its President, returned to the Senate Chamber and resumed the consideration of business.

Mr. Hurburgh offered the following resolution:

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 31.

Resolved, by the Senate, the House of Representatives concurring therein, That when the two Houses adjourn on Thursday, March 27th, 1913, they stand adjourned until Wednesday, April 2nd, 1913, at ten o'clock A. M.

At 3:35 o'clock p. m., on motion of Mr. Hurburgh, the Senate adjourned.

THURSDAY, MARCH 27, 1913, 10:00 O'CLOCK A. M.

Senate met pursuant to adjournment.

Hon. Barratt O'Hara, Lieutenant Governor and President of the Senate, presiding.

Prayer by the Chaplain.

The President of the Senate announced that he had examined the Journal of yesterday, and found no corrections or changes to be made, and if the Senate had no changes or corrections to offer, the Journal would be ordered to stand approved. No corrections being offered, the Journal was ordered to stand approved.

EXECUTIVE MESSAGES.

A message from the Governor by William L. Sullivan, Secretary to the Governor:

Mr. President—I am directed by the Governor to lay before the Senate the following communication:

STATE OF ILLINOIS, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.

SPRINGFIELD, March 26, 1913.

To the Honorable, the Senate:

I return herewith without my approval Senate Bill 197, a bill for an Act to amend an act in relation to criminal jurisprudence. The subject matter of this bill is a duplication of that of House Bill 212, which was approved by me on March 21, 1913, the two bills on the same subject having evidently been passed through inadvertence.

I withhold my approval of this bill, therefore, in order to avoid the encumbering of the statue books with an unnecessary and redundant measure.

Respectfully submitted,

E. F. DUNNE,
Governor.

M., the full sub-committee being present, and before your sub-committee then appeared Messrs. Weil and Weed, attorneys appearing on behalf of the contestant, and I. C. Pinckney, Esq., appearing on behalf of the contestee, to present testimony and arguments as they desired in this cause, pursuant to notice filed with the Secretary of State, and in further pursuance of the time set for hearing of said cause.

Your committee further respectfully reports that at the conclusion of all the testimony and arguments presented by respective counsel, and authorities cited in support thereof, your sub-committee reported back to the general elections committee of the Senate, and after a full and thorough discussion of your sub-committee's report, the following motion being offered, was duly seconded and unanimously carried, to wit:

"And we your Committee on Elections, accordingly find that said John Dailey is the duly elected Senator from the Eighteenth Senatorial District of the State of Illinois, and that he be declared entitled as such to a seat in the Senate and petition of Jefferson R. Boulware be dismissed."

WHEREAS, Roumania is now demanding that in the division of territory resulting from the Balkan war, a portion of such Bulgarian territory be ceded to Roumania; and,

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 17.

Resolved, by the Senate of the State of Illinois, the House of Representatives concurring therein, That there shall be submitted to the electors of this State for adoption or rejection at the next election of members of the General Assembly, a proposition to amend Article IV of the Constitution of this State by adding thereto an additional section to be known as section 35, to read as follows:

Section 35. The people reserve power to propose and to enact laws as herein provided. Eight per cent of the electors of the State may propose an Act by initiative petition, verified as to signatures, and filed with the Secretary of State not less than thirty days prior to the date of convening of any regular session of the General Assembly. The Secretary of State shall transmit a certified copy of the proposed Act to the House of Representatives and to the Senate at the convening of the next regular session of the General Assembly, and the same shall be treated as a bill introduced in the name of the people. Unless such proposed Act shall, without change, become a law by regular legislative enactment within one year after the date of convening of the General Assembly, the Secretary of State shall submit the same by its title to the electors at the next general election: Provided, that if a proposed Act shall be placed upon its final passage in each House, and shall fail in each House to receive the affirmative votes of one-fourth of the members elected, it shall not be so submitted. If a proposed Act, when submitted to the electors, shall be approved by a majority of the electors voting on the proposition, it shall become a law, and take effect on the first day of January, next, thereafter.

All laws enacted under the provisions of this section may be subsequently amended or repealed by the General Assembly, and they shall be subject to the same constitutional provisions and limitations as are Acts passed by the General Assembly: Provided, such provisions and limitations are not inconsistent with the provisions of this section.

The people reserve power to reject laws passed by the General Assembly, and to stay the time for their taking effect, as herein provided. Five per cent of the electors of the State, by a referendum petition, verified as to signatures and filed with the Secretary of State before the taking effect of an Act, may require that such Act shall not take effect until submitted to the electors. The Secretary of State shall submit such Act by its title to the electors at the next general election, and if rejected by a majority of the electors voting on the proposition it shall become void, otherwise it shall take effect on the first day of January, next, thereafter. Acts passed in case of emergency by a vote of two-thirds of all the members of each House, and Acts making appropriations for the ordinary and contingent expenses of the government or of any existing institution of the State, shall not be subject to referendum petition. State before the taking effect of an Act, may require that such Act shall not take effect until ninety days after it became a law, pending the filing of a petition supplementing and completing the said referendum petition.

The Governor, Attorney General, and Secretary of State shall constitute a board to pass upon the sufficiency of every initiative and referendum petition, and when approved by them its sufficiency shall not be questioned in any court. A finding of the board that a petition is not sufficient may be reviewed upon a petition for mandamus filed in the Supreme Court within thirty days. CONSIDERATION OF RESOLUTIONS.

The following resolution, offered by Mr. Madigan, April 8, 1913, was taken up for consideration:

SENATE RESOLUTION No. 53.

WHEREAS, On March 26, A. D. 1913, Senate Bill 126, known as the "Board of Trade Bill" passed the Senate; and,

WHEREAS, One John Hill, Jr., a member of the Chicago Board of Trade, in an open letter addressed to members of the General Assembly, under date of April 6th, 1913, and published in the newspapers of that date, charges that a "fund" was raised to aid in the passage of the said bill by the General Assembly; and,

WHEREAS, The charges of the said Hill reflect particularly upon the membership of the Senate, since forty Senators voted aye, and but two voted nay; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That a committee of five Senators be appointed, pursuant to the rules of the Senate, to investigate the charges of the said Hill, with power to take testimony and to compel the production of books and papers, and to report their conclusions to this body, for such further action as the Senate shall seem just and proper.

The question being, "Shall the resolution be adopted?" it was decided in the affirmative.

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE.

Mr. Waage, rising to a question of personal privilege, made the following statement, which at his request, was ordered spread on the Journal of today's session:

MR. PRESIDENT AND GENTLEMEN OF THE SENATE—In view of certain newspaper articles and comments that have recently appeared in the Chicago press, tending to reflect discredit upon the Senate Committee appointed under Senate Resolution No. 44 to investigate the subject of unclaimed deposits of money, and particularly upon myself as chairman of the committee, I deem it proper that I should state the facts with reference to the activities of the committee up to date.

The committee first caused a representative from each of two Chicago banks to be subpoenaed before the committee with the view to obtain such preliminary information with reference to the subject in hand, as would enable the committee to determine upon a policy of the investigation to be made, and to that end held a meeting at the LaSalle Hotel, Chicago, on Monday of last week. The representatives of the banks in question were there present in response to the process of the committee and were interrogated with reference to unclaimed deposits in their respective banks, and the manner of dealing with such deposits. At the conclusion of the meeting, it was determined, at the suggestion of the bank representatives, that a statement of such deposits as had remained undisturbed for a period of seven years, be compiled and presented to the committee at its next meeting. The bank representatives made it clear that it would be impossible to furnish but a partial statement by the next contemplated meeting, viz., Saturday, last. The committee thereupon adjourned to meet again upon Saturday last to receive such statements as had then been compiled by these two banks. I believe it was the general impression, at the time of adjournment, that at the next meeting no particular hearing would be had, except to receive the lists referred to in order that the committee might thereupon be guided in the determination of the future policy of the investigation.

As before stated, the next meeting announced was to be held on Saturday last, at ten o'clock a. m., at the LaSalle Hotel. I believe all the members of the committee returned from Springfield either Thursday night or Friday morning. Personally, I was in my office all day Friday and, among other things, had a conference in my office, by previous appointment, with railway claim agents of the leading railroads of the State, relative to the subject matter contained in Senate Bill No. 55, with reference to claims for loss and damage to freight. In the meantime, the date set for the meeting by your committee entirely escaped my mind, as I was under the impression that the hearing was adjourned one week and until Monday of this week. I did not therefore go to the meeting on Saturday morning, and was first apprised of the fact that the meeting was to be held Saturday morning when I met Senator Broderick, of the committee, in company with Senator Denvir, about ten minutes after eleven o'clock a. m., Saturday morning, who had then just come from the LaSalle Hotel, and who had been late in going to the meeting, and had been informed by Mr. Scouten that, owing to a lack of a quorum of the committee, he had suggested to the bank representatives that unless the committee should arrive and convene the meeting, they would be excused from further attendance, unless again called. I am informed that Senator Olson was attending an important convention and was altogether prevented from being present, and that Senator Barr was delayed in reaching Chicago from Joliet, by reason of his train being delayed.

Personally, so soon as I was corrected in the matter of my impression of the day set for the meeting, I immediately went to the LaSalle Hotel, arriving there about eleven-fifteen a. m., and there found that the meeting had been postponed subject to a future call, owing to a lack of quorum of the committee being present. At that time, I there met Senator Dailey and other gentlemen whom I knew, among them, Mr. Finnegan, of the Chicago Daily Journal. There was no suggestion by anybody that the bank representatives, or anyone else, had been seriously inconvenienced by reason of the failure of the committee to formally meet and receive the partial statements I have before spoken of.

The accuracy of what I have stated, can be verified by Senators Broderick, Denvir and Dailey, as well as Mr. Finnegan and others whom I met and spoke to on Saturday morning, and I deem it unnecessary to make further comments upon the newspaper reports here referred to.

The next meeting of the committee will be held in Chicago, on Monday morning, next, and sessions will probably be continued during the day and Tuesday following.

At 11:20 o'clock a. m., on motion of Mr. Hurburgh, the Senate adjourned.

FRIDAY, APRIL 11, 1913, 10:00 O'CLOCK A. M.

Senate met pursuant to adjournment.

Hon. Walter I. Manny, President pro tempore of the Senate presiding.

The President pro tempore of the Senate announced that he had examined the Journal of yesterday, and found no corrections or changes to be made and if the Senate had no changes or corrections to offer, the Journal would be ordered to stand approved. No corrections being offered, the Journal was ordered to stand approved.

WHEREAS, April 23, 1913, is the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Stephen A. Douglas, who was one of Illinois' foremost sons of his time and generation; and,

WHEREAS, It is fitting and proper that the General Assembly of the State of Illinois, a State which he so ably represented in the Senate of the United States and a State which he also served so well as a member of its Supreme Court should pause in its deliberations long enough to pay tribute to the memory of this man, one who also did so much at the opening of the Civil War to uphold the hands of the then President, Abraham Lincoln, whose opponent he was for that office and whose political competitor he had been for years in the political arena of Illinois and the nation; therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Senate, the House of Representatives concurring therein, That a committee of five be appointed from each House, who shall make all the necessary arrangements for the holding of a Joint Session of the General Assembly on April 23 at two o'clock p. m., in the Hall of the House of Representatives for the purpose of listening to such appropriate addresses as the committee hereby authorized shall arrange for.

No corrections being offered, the Journal was ordered to stand approved.

COMMUNICATION.

The President of the Senate presented the following communication, which was read:

April 10, 1913.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY—POWERS OF THE SENATE TO PUNISH FOR CONTEMPT.

To the Honorable President and Members of the Senate, Forty-eighth General Assembly, Springfield, Illinois:

Gentlemen—In compliance with your request contained in Senate Resolution No. 56, passed April 10, 1913, for my opinion as to the extent of your power to bring before your honorable body one John Hill, Jr., and to punish him as for contempt in uttering and causing to be published in the public press of this State and country, certain alleged false, contemptuous and scandalous insinuations and charges concerning a majority of the members of the Senate in their action in voting for Senate Bill No. 126, known as the "Board of Trade Bill," which passed the Senate, March 26, 1913, and by such charges imputing to the members of your honorable body, so voting, a lack of integrity and respect for their oaths of office, I will say that, under our form of government vesting, as it does, all judicial power in the courts created by our Constitution, and by it authorized to be created, the inherent and unlimited power to punish for contempt does not exist in the legislative branch of this government, as it did in the Parliament of England, except where there is found in the Constitution of the State a general power to punish for contempt. Where the power to punish for contempt is by the Constitution confined to particular enumerated cases, such power in the Legislature is limited to the cases enumerated, and such additional cases where the same is necessarily implied from the constitutional functions and duties to the proper performance of which such power is essential. See Kilbourn v. Thompson, 103 U. S., 168, People v. Keeler, 99 N. Y., 463, and In Re Falvey, 7 Wis., 630.

The Constitution of Illinois, in defining the powers of the General Assembly, among other things provides:

"Each house may punish, by imprisonment, any person not a member, who shall be guilty of disrespect to the house, by disorderly or contemptuous behavior in its presence, but no such imprisonment shall extend beyond twenty-four hours at one time, unless the person shall persist in such disorderly or contemptuous behavior."

Hurd's Stat. 1912, p. 57, Constitution, art. 4, par. 9.

The implied power to investigate charges or accusations made against members of your body in the public press, imputing the acceptance of bribes or disregard for their oaths or duty, is essential to the exercise of your constitutional right to expel such members as you may find unworthy.

The statute of this State recognizes your right to hold such investigations or trials and to compel the attendance of witnesses, and recognizes, further, your right to compel the production of all evidence, whether written or oral, relative to the truth of such charges. Paragraph 4, chapter 63, Hurd's Revised Statutes, 1912, page 1256 provides:

"The presiding officer of each house, and the chairman or any member of any committee appointed by either house, or of a joint committee appointed by the two houses of the General Assembly, may administer oaths and affirmations to witnesses called before such house or committee, for the purpose of giving evidence touching any matter or thing which may be under the consideration or investigation of such house or committee."

Paragraph 6 of the same chapter provides:

"Any person may be compelled, by subpoena, to appear and give testimony as a witness, and produce papers and documents before either house or a committee thereof, or a joint committee of both houses. The subpoena shall be signed by the presiding officer of the house, or the chairman of the committee before whom the witness is to appear, and may be served in the same manner as subpoenas from courts of record."

Paragraphs 7 and 8 provide for the arrest of such persons who refuse or neglect to appear, and provide for a penalty to be inflicted for such failure or neglect. See Hurd's Stat., 1912, chap. 63, pars. 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8.

In view of the provisions of the Constitution and the statutes of this State, as above set out, it is my opinion that your honorable body is without authority to punish the said John Hill, Jr., as for contempt of the Senate, under the circumstances set out in Senate Resolution No. 56, passed April 10, 1913, unless the said charges were made in the presence of the Senate, but it is my opinion that your honorable body has full and complete power to compel his appearance before you as a witness, upon an investigation into the truth or the falsity of the charges made by him against the members of the Senate voting for Senate Bill No. 126, and, in case of any contemptuous, disorderly or disrespectful conduct on his part, while present at your deliberations or hearing, he may be by you punished as for contempt, by imprisonment.

Your resolution further requests the Attorney General to draw such forms of procedure and such documents as may be proper to cause the said John Hill, Jr., to either substantiate his charges or retract his accusations or be dealt with as the exigencies of the case may require, and such documents as may cause the said John Hill, Jr., to be brought before your body on April 17, 1913.

In compliance with this request, I will say that paragraphs 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9 of chapter 63, Hurd's Revised Statutes, 1912, on pages 1256 and 1257, accurately define the course of procedure, except the institution thereof, of the investigation above suggested, as a means of procuring the presence of the said John Hill, Jr., before your honorable body, and I respectfully suggest that said investigation may be instituted by the passage of a resolution, constituting your entire body, or any number of the members thereof, a committee of investigation, reciting in said resolution the charges that may have been made, by whom made, and requiring such committee to subpoena the said John Hill, Jr., and fixing April 17th as the day upon which his presence is desired and his testimony is to be heard. In advance of the exigency occurring, it would be impossible to determine the forms which your body may require in the conduct of such proceedings.

I herewith respectfully submit to your honorable body a form of resolution which I deem sufficient to initiate the proceedings to investigate into said charges, and to cause the said John Hill, Jr., to appear for examination.

Very respectfully,

P. J. LUCEY,
Attorney General.

PRESENTATION OF RESOLUTIONS BY UNANIMOUS CONSENT.

By unanimous consent, Mr. Clark offered the following resolution:

SENATE RESOLUTION No. 57.

WHEREAS, One John Hill, Jr., circulated a letter respecting Senate Bill No. 126, known as the "Board of Trade Bill," and which passed the Senate on March 26, 1913; and,

WHEREAS, The said John Hill Jr., therein in substance charged that said bill had been passed by the Senate through and by corrupt influence, and thereby impliedly accused the forty Senators, who voted for said bill, of being parties to an illegal scheme, and of voting for such bill for personal and corrupt motives, and in violation of their oaths as Senators in the Forty-eighth General Assembly; and,

WHEREAS, The accusations contained in such letter so circulated by the said John Hill, Jr., have been given wide publication in the public prints of this State, and is an intentional, deliberate and unjust attack upon the integrity of a majority of the Senators in this General Assembly, and is calculated to impede and bring disorder in the transaction of the legislative affairs of the State; and,

WHEREAS, It is due the Senate to take immediate and summary action with respect to said charges and accusations made by said Hill; be it, therefore

Resolved, That this Senate, as a committee of the whole, with the Lieutenant Governor, the President of the Senate, presiding, proceed, beginning at ten o'clock in the morning, April 17, 1913, to investigate into the truth or falsity of said charges, and summon and subpoena the said John Hill, Jr., to be and appear before the bar of this Senate at ten o'clock in the morning, April 17, 1913, and to bring with him such letter above referred to, together with all books, papers and memoranda of any kind or character, touching upon the truth or falsity of the alleged charges made by him, and there to speak the truth concerning said charges in so far as the same may there be inquired of him, and that in case of his neglect or refusal so to appear, that compulsory process be issued in conformity to the statute, compelling him so to appear.

By unanimous consent, on motion of Mr. Clark, the rules were suspended and the foregoing resolution was taken up for immediate consideration.

Mr. Jones offered the following amendment to the resolution, which was adopted:

PRESENTATION OF RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. Madigan offered the following resolution, which, under Rule 39, was laid on the table for one day:

SENATE RESOLUTION No. 58.

WHEREAS, Section 15, of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of Illinois, adopted in 1870, expressly provides that "no member of the General Assembly shall be interested, either directly or indirectly in any contract with the State, or any county thereof, authorized by any law passed during the term for which he shall have been elected, or within one year after the expiration thereof;" and,

WHEREAS, The purpose and meaning of the said provision is to prohibit the representatives and servants of the people, delegated especially to guard the public treasury, from becoming personal beneficiaries in appropriations made by the General Assembly, of which they, themselves, are members; and,

WHEREAS, The statement of amounts appropriated by the Twenty-sixth and Forty-seventh General Assemblies to the single State office of Attorney General (as shown by a transcript of the books of the Auditor of Public Accounts hereto attached and made a part of this resolution) exhibits numerous instances of payments made directly to certain members of the present and other General Assemblies, who, at the time such appropriations were made and at the time of entering into such contract with the State by which they participated in such appropriations, were members of the General Assembly, and as such expressly forbidden from being "interested, either directly or indirectly, in any contract with the State," and some of the members at the time of this betrayal of trust were acting in positions of highest influence and power on the Committee on Appropriations, through whose special diligence the public funds are supposed to be safeguarded; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That a committee of three (3) members of the Senate be appointed, pursuant to the rules of the Senate, to investigate the matter of public expenditures made during the past ten years in the form of payment of money for services to "the State or any county thereof," rendered or purporting to have been rendered by persons who, at the time of such service, were members of the General Assembly of Illinois, with power to take testimony and send for books and papers and to report their conclusions with recommendations for appropriate legislation for the suppression of such practices.
